Pain management in osteoarthritis and other musculoskeletal conditions

I research the causes and treatment of pain in osteoarthritis and back pain.

These conditions are very common and combined, are the top cause of disability worldwide. Despite this, most people do not achieve good pain control.

There is an urgent need to improve pain control for these conditions.

We have variety of projects on offer for students to get involved in, depending on their interests and goals for their research elective, whether using data to evaluating the literature.
