The Handbook

The handbook will provide you with your degree structure and the course requirements you have to meet to complete your degree.

It is important that you refer to the year in which you began your course: https://monash.edu.au/pubs/handbook

The Graduate Certificate of Legal Studies section of the handbook includes:

• Course structure and unit requirements
• Learning Outcomes
• Alternative exits
• Progression to further studies.
The Structure

This is your course map for your course. This is the most basic structure you can follow, please refer to the handbook for additional unit options.

Teaching periods and modes

You can view the full list of elective units available to you as a Graduate Certificate of Legal Studies student on the handbook page for your course.

You will see in the postgraduate elective timetable that your units are offered across many different teaching periods (terms, trimesters and semesters).

The simplest way to manage your enrolment is to split the academic year by months rather than by teaching periods.

For example:

First half of the year (“semester 1”) = January – June
Second half of the year (“semester 2”) = July – November
Let’s Enrol!
Get Started

• In order to accept your offer and enrol you need to follow the steps in Get Started to create a computer account, register your details and then complete your online enrolment.

• Domestic students, you will need to create or retrieve your Unique Student Identifier (USI)

• All students must enrol for a full year but don’t worry you can amend your enrolment at a later stage.
What’s Next?
Enrolling into your subjects

Almost all amendments to your enrolment can be done via WES. Once you have registered your details you will be able to confirm your enrolment or add/remove units.

If you’re unable to enrol yourself please submit an Enrolment Amendment Form.

Tip! Your enrolment will only have been changed if you receive a transaction number that starts with the letter U. If you do not receive this, your enrolment has not been changed.
What’s Next?
Timetable – LAW5081 and Electives

In order to choose your units for the year, you should refer to the timetable that is published online each year.

The timetable has information about when a unit is run, in which mode, by whom it is being taught, and a rough guideline of when you can expect assessment tasks.

After you are enrolled, your enrolled units will appear in the timetabling system Allocate+ so that you can keep track of when you need to attend classes.
What’s Next?
Allocate+ Introductory Unit LAW5000

One of the unit options for domestic students is the introductory unit LAW5000 Australian legal reasoning as methods.

If you choose to enrol in this unit please note that it requires the extra timetabling step of Preference Entry. This is where students register their class time preferences during the Allocate+ Preference entry period. Allocate+ is the system you will use to choose the particular stream of classes for LAW5000 that you would like to attend.

Once you are enrolled you will be able to log into Allocate+ and pick your preferences for LAW5000. Step by step instructions can be found here.

Tip! Have a look at the Postgraduate Allocate+ Dates so that you don’t miss out on your preferences.
What if I have credit or am applying for credit?

- It is important that you enrol in a standard enrolment in order to secure your place in your degree.
- Your enrolment can be amended after your credit application has been processed.
- You can apply for credit online for completed university level subjects.
- You can use the online search engine to search for previous credit decisions to give you an idea of what you may be granted.

Tip! If you are granted credit for Law units and are unsure of how to amend your enrolment you can request course advice online.
