A Centre for Everything (Gabrielle de Vietri & Will Foster) is a collaborative project established in 2012. Open to anyone who wishes to participate, the project takes form as a series of regular events modelled on a Venn diagram of disparate interests that manifest as workshops, discussions, activities, and meals.

FREE ENTRY

A Centre for Everything will host three events at MUMA in association with the exhibition Direct Democracy. To reserve your place for these events please contact A Centre for Everything: centreforeverything@gmail.com

ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION: ROUNDTABLE DISCUSSION

SATURDAY 11 MAY 2013

2.00PM - 4.00PM

Venue: Monash University Museum of Art

The trend of establishing creative, small-scale, non-accredited systems of teaching and learning is not new, but has found a strong following in Melbourne in recent years. Join some of the main players in Melbourne's 'altucation' scene: Melbourne Free University, Laneway Learning, Small Giants (responsible for bringing School of Life to Melbourne), and Homehouse for a roundtable discussion with the aim to envisage a new institution.

THE HOUSE: PLEIN AIR DRAWING WORKSHOP

SATURDAY 8 JUNE 2013

1.00PM - 4.30PM

Venue: Monash University Museum of Art

Situated on a generous block, 11 Princes Avenue is the last residential property standing within the heart of the Monash University Caulfield campus. Such properties are referred to by developers as 'nail houses' or 'holdouts'. To the owner occupiers, however, "it's not just a house... it's a home", to quote Darryl Kerrigan from the film The Castle. It is expected that in the not so distant future the building will no longer stand. On Saturday 8 June, A Centre for Everything invite you to take part in a drawing and painting class in order to record this moment in history. A selection of the results produced on the day will be displayed in Direct Democracy and one work will be donated to the owners of the house.

PARTY FOOD POLITICS

SATURDAY 6 JULY 2013

5.00PM - 8.00PM

Venue: Monash University Museum of Art

In the lead up to the Federal Election A Centre for Everything ask you to put your vote where your mouth is: If Tony Abbott were an ingredient, what would he be? Salt? Sprouts? Tinned Pineapple? Sausage? How about Adam Bandt? He's a Green, so does that mean he would be Peas or Broccoli? And would this make a difference to your preferences?

To vote:

1. Enrol. Fill in the enrolment form and post it in the ballot box at MUMA. You will then be sent a voting card.
2. Vote. The results of the ballot will determine the meal cooked.
3. Eat. A random selection from the voting registry will form the guest list invited to eat. The meal will be served as a 'finissage' to Direct Democracy on Saturday July 6.

YOUR VOTE TASTES!
