Introduction to Health Education Research: Intensive Online Course

GROUP
OF EIGHT
AUSTRALIA

A two-week intensive online course on education research in health professions and sciences. This course will help you to plan and conduct your own education research projects.

This course is designed to introduce participants to health education research methods.

Through a mixture of webinars, online activities and discussions, and self-directed learning participants will develop foundational knowledge and skills to support their education research. The course covers the full research process including: identifying a topic of inquiry, formulating research questions, selecting and implementing appropriate methodologies and methods, and disseminating findings. The role of theory in designing and implementing education research, along with maintaining ethical standards and rigour in the research process will also be covered.

30 November – 13 December 2020

Cost: A$1500
