

POST-APPLICATION TIMELINE

Once applications close, it can take up to four months for the assessment and allocation process to be completed.

Monash Abroad assessment of applications

The International Education Coordinators (IECs) will review your application. When assessing applications, your IEC takes into consideration your grades, your proposed area of study and your personal statement.

Faculty assessment of study plan

Your faculty will confirm that the proposed units can be approved and that you have sufficient space in your degree for your exchange.

Allocation phase

After assessment, your IEC will assign you a place at the host institution.

This does not mean you have been accepted by that host institution yet, it is the first step in the process and is an internal Monash process.

Nomination phase

Once allocated, your IEC will formally confirm with your host institution that they have selected you to receive an exchange spot.

You will be required to then submit an application to your host institution.

Complete MAP requirements

You will be required to complete the remainder of the administrative tasks in MAP

Host acceptance letter

A host acceptance letter will be sent to you or your IEC. This will be uploaded to your MAP application and your faculty/school will be notified to enrol you in exchange units.

Pre departure event

You will need to attend a compulsory information session to help you prepare for your departure. You'll also have the chance to meet other students going on exchange.
