TEACHING'S THEIR CAREER

108 Students settle in

Frankston's new Teachers' College opened last Thursday with an enrolment of 108 students. They form one group of a total of about 1500 student-teachers who have entered the Victorian Education Department's teachers' colleges this year.

Altogether there are nearly 4000 teachers in training. The total number of teachers in the service is approximately 20,000.

When the college opened at Frankston, the principal, Mr. Warwick Eunson, welcomed the students to the service. He pointed out the historic occasion in that the college was the first to be established on the Peninsula.

As part of their training the students are being drafted out on teaching rounds to district schools, Davey-st., Frankston East, Overport, and Carrum. The first group commences next week.

Students at Frankston will be welcomed to the training colleges and to the profession by the principal, Mr. J. Wilson. The principal will give a short speech to the students, and then the assembly will be divided into class groups. The first class will be held at 9.30 a.m. and will be commenced at 9.30 a.m.

Commencing next Monday, groups of students will attend classes in the Frankston area, and in the local area, for instance in teaching special education. The first classes will be held at Frankston, and then at breakfast, and then throughout the day. These classes will be held at the same times as the normal classes, and they will not be taught in the usual way.

Plans are in hand for the building of the new college and the students’ hostel on the 27 acres of land at the corner of Hastings and McMahon’s Roads, Frankston.

It is anticipated that the college will be built this year, but the accommodation hostel will not be commenced before 1960.

Commencing next Monday, groups of students will attend schools in the Frankston area for an introduction to teaching.

Five schools have been chosen, three at Frankston, Davey Street, Frankston East and Overport Road, and one each at Carrum and Seaford.

Students will be divided into four groups. Three groups will remain in college whilst the fourth is at a school gaining a picture of classes at work.

DIRECTOR WELCOMES STUDENT TEACHERS

During a recent assembly at the Frankston Teachers’ College students and members of the staff listened to a welcoming speech by the Director of Education, Mr. Ramsay.

The director was introduced by the principal of the college, Mr. W. Ramsay, who referred to Mr. Ramsay’s distinguished war record and his inspiring character.

Commenting on his address, the visitor stated that the staff body of teachers, of whom the students were so proud, was the most important section of the institution. All staff members were expressed for the obvious excellence of the teaching and the atmosphere of the college.

In reference to the staff, the assembly was held at the main hall of the college, and it was described as the most enjoyable event of the day.

A great compliment was paid to the students when they were called "students".

DIRECTOR WELCOMES STUDENT TEACHERS

During a recent assembly at the Frankston Teachers’ College students and members of the staff listened to a welcoming speech by the Director of Education, Mr. Ramsay.

The director was introduced by the principal of the college, Mr. W. Eunson, who referred to Mr. Ramsay’s distinguished war record and his inspiring character.

Commencing his address with a colorful description of his own early teaching career, Mr. Ramsay was able to make the students realise how favorably their conditions of training compared with those of some years ago. Many teachers of that time had had to face classes of their own before being trained, as the Melbourne Teachers’ College was the only training institution, and could cater for a limited number of students only.

A great compliment was paid to the students when the visitor stated that the main body of teachers, of which they would soon be part, was the most important section of the educational system. All his listeners were impressed by the obvious sincerity behind this statement.

In reference to the difficult conditions under which the new colleges are working, the director encouraged both students and staff by telling of the spirit of good will and companionship which rapidly grows up among “pioneers.”

E.M. Expansion at Teachers' College

Advisory committee suggested

Mr Dennis introduced the features and usefulness of the new high-rise college to the students and visitors. The college is designed to accommodate the growing needs of students and teachers.

Fourteen ultra-modern lecture rooms and a commodious library will be part of the new block. The college is being built in a block 300 feet long, all sound-proofed and air-conditioned.

Mr. Dennis was pleased with the quality of the new college and its location. He said, "The location is perfect. It is close to the city, yet it is quiet and peaceful."

Mr Dennis also emphasised the importance of the college in educating future teachers. "The college is not only a place for learning, but it is also a place for growth."

The students are looking forward to the new college. They are excited about the new facilities and the new opportunities it will offer.

The college is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The students and visitors are looking forward to the opening ceremony next month.

The government has allocated $1.5 million for the construction of the new college. The college will be completed in 18 months.

The college will accommodate 1,200 students. The government is expecting that the college will be fully operational by the end of the year.

The college is located on a 15-acre site. The site is surrounded by trees and is located near the river. The river provides a serene environment for the students.

The college will have a library, a gymnasium, and a cafeteria. The library will have 10,000 books and 500 periodicals. The gymnasium will have facilities for all sports.

The cafeteria will have seating for 500 students. The cafeteria will be open to the public during the day.

£1¼M. EXPANSION AT TEACHERS’ COLLEGE

Fourteen ultra-modern lecture-rooms and a commodious library in a block 392 feet long, all sound-proofed and air-conditioned, are part of the new Teachers’ College being built in McMahon’s Road, Frankston, for the Victorian Education Department.

There are now 100 students at the College in temporary quarters (the home of the late Dr. P. R. Vincent), but when the overall plans are finished, including a hostel, 500 will be accommodated.

C. W. P. Mair, M.L.C., president of the Shire of Frankston and Hastings (Cr. A. Gowans) and other councillors, bankers, businessmen and women and many other representative citizens were entertained at afternoon tea by the Principal (Mr. Warwick Eunson) last Wednesday.

Mr. Eunson received the guests in one of the temporary lecture rooms. Later the guests were shown round the buildings in course of construction.

The Education Department bought 17 acres of land from Dr. Vincent before his death, and ten more acres adjacent to this property which is ideally situated for a college.

The students are being trained exclusively for primary education.

Two gymnasiums are being built in a separate building running parallel to the lecture rooms block.

The Government has allocated £120,000 for the two blocks in course of construction, excluding the cost of the installation of electric light, power and fittings.

Tenders have not yet been called for the construction of the hostel, cost of which could exceed £180,000.

Two sports grounds are to be graded and grassed. Tennis and basketball courts are also planned.

The hockey field will be ready for use in a few months, but other amenities will have to wait until finance is available.

A 392 foot corridor serves the lecture rooms from the main administrative section.

Most of the rooms have glorious views either of the Dandenong Ranges or the foreshores of Port Phillip Bay.
Advisory committee suggested

Mr. Eunson introduced the lecturers and members of the administrative staff individually to visitors. He then gave a short address on what was happening, and what was going to happen on a site which, he said, an officer of the Public Works Department claimed was the most suitable for the purpose in Victoria.

“We went into occupation in our temporary quarters last February,” added Mr. Eunson. “We found this most convenient. We could have 400 students on the roll next year.

“This is not the largest teacher’s college in Victoria, and we are not anxious it ever should be. We have 24 on the staff now.”

Mr. Eunson said students were lectured on Education, English, Social Science, Music, Art, Physical Education and Science.

Students with Leaving Certificates were eligible for admission, but the future policy of the Education Department would lift the academic qualification for eligibility to matriculation standard. That would give the institution the prestige of a University college.

Formation of an Advisory Committee of Representative Citizens was suggested by Mr. Eunson.

Mr. Eunson said he was sure the community could help the administration with constructive advice on the development of the college.

Future co-operation between the community and the college was vital to its welfare, progress, and cultural expansion.

That was why he had invited so many representative citizens to meet the staff and see for themselves what was going on.

“All meetings like this one are journeys to understanding,” Mr. Eunson added. “We are training youth, and we want a better understanding between youth and maturity in relation to education.”

Mr. Eunson said there were eight teachers’ colleges in Victoria without such a committee as he had suggested. Frankston was in a transitional stage. It was no longer a country town. He would welcome shire councillors on the committee.

It was not right that the Government should shoulder the whole of the responsibility for education.

Cr. Gowans assured Mr. Eunson shire councillors would co-operate with the college staff to the limit of their ability.

Dear Mr.,

You are doubtless aware that a new educational venture has begun in Frankston, and are proud that your town has been selected for the site of the newest Teachers' College in this State.

We do feel, however, that many local residents have not had the opportunity to see this establishment, and would perhaps be glad to visit the college, meet the staff and students, see the progress on the site, and hear something of our work and plans for the future. On our side, we would like to meet you, too.

Would you then accept this as an invitation to you and your wife to visit the College on the afternoon of Wednesday, September 23rd at 2.30 p.m. for an informal At Home?

We do hope that you will be able to come, and would appreciate it if you would reply on the form below by September 17th.

Sincerely yours,

PLANS READY FOR NEW £270,000 TEACHERS’ COLLEGE

The principal, Mr. W. Eunson and Mr. Phil. Mair, M.L.C. examine plans of the new District Teachers’ College at Frankston.

The Teachers’ Training College, housed in temporary quarters at present, includes many student teachers from the City of Chelsea. Construction of new buildings, to cost £150,000, is already well advanced.

A three-storey brick hostel estimated to cost £120,000 will be erected later, to make the college one of the best appointed in Victoria. Between 300 and 400 students are expected next year, and the number will rise to 600 in four years.

The staff next year will increase from 25 to 30.
£1.1 MILLION EXPANSION AT TEACHERS' COLLEGE

The principal of the Frankston Teachers' Training College, Mr. W. Rowan, told representatives of Frankston and Hastings Shire, the donors, other public citizens and the Press last Tuesday that buildings costing £135,000 were under construction at the college.

Mr. Rowan said a three-storey block would be erected later at an estimated cost of £250,000, making the college one of the best in the State.

The buildings under construction would consist of three blocks, lecture block containing 12 lecture rooms and offices, an administration block and a physical education block, which would also contain rooms for students' use.

The large gymnasium would be able to accommodate a full-scale basketball court.

It was stated that extensive plans were being undertaken by the Works Department and provision was made for the college for two weeks for the construction of a hockey field.

These facilities would include the city grounds for use of schools in the district.

Mr. Rowan stated the influence of the college would extend the city in Frankston. He said that Roy of the Frankston and Hastings Shire Board was the first to support the college. He was interested in the college's work, and the full cooperation of the district would be necessary for the college to flourish.

Mr. Rowan said that the buildings would be available for occupation next term and the four-year course for the honours degree would begin next year.

The course would be based on the British system of education and the college would be well equipped for the teaching of the course.

900 STUDENTS

New campus roads were planned for the college, which would accommodate 900 students. The students would have common rooms and a free library for the use of students, who would be able to take part in extra-curricular activities such as sports and local art activities.

The college would be built on 25 acres of land and the construction would be completed by 1950.
MILLION EXPANSION AT TEACHERS' COLLEGE

The principal of the Frankston Teachers' Training College, Mr. W. Eunson, told representatives of Frankston and Hastings Shire, the clergy, other public citizens and the Press last Tuesday that buildings costing £150,000 were under construction at the college.
Mr. Eunson said a three-storey brick hostel would be erected later at an estimated cost of £120,000, making the college one of the best in the State.

The buildings under construction would consist of three blocks: lecture block, containing 12 lecture rooms and offices, an administration block and a physical education block, which would also contain rooms for students' use.

The large gymnasium would be able to accommodate a full-sized basketball court.

He said that extensive site works were being undertaken by the Public Works Department and provision was made in the plans for two ovals including a hockey field.

These facilities would help relieve the congestion in the sports grounds for the schools in the district.

Mr. Eunson stated that the influence of the college stretched far wider than Frankston. He said that five of the Frankston and district schools were in use and it was anticipated that seven more would be used for 1960.

Students for the college were drawn from an area south of North-rd., Caulfield, and extending to Dandenong and the Mornington Peninsula, but the full cooperation of the district would be necessary for the college to function as an educational establishment.

He said that it was hoped that the college would be able to take part in such functions as art festivals, dramatic festivals and local sporting activities.
particular when resident students were available.

Mr. Eunson said that the college considered itself fortunate regarding its site, as the total area comprised 27 acres and there was a perfect view of the bay and the Dandenongs.

The availability of temporary accommodation in a former mansion home had relieved many of the housing difficulties.

He said it was hoped that some form of parents' and citizens' committee might be established to help the college play its rightful part in such a thriving community and emphasised that the committee would be fully representative of the district.

It was certain that the buildings already under construction would be available for occupation next year, owing to the co-operation of the builders, and work on the hostels would begin next year.

The new lecture block would be 396 ft. in length and the gymnasium would be used as an assembly hall to seat 500.

The students would have recreation rooms and locker rooms as well as showers and it was hoped that a canteen or cafeteria would be established.

600 students?

New access roads were planned from the corner of McMahon's and Hastings

He said that at the present time there were 110 students attending the college and between 300 and 400 were expected next year, rising to 600 in four years.

The courses were for either two or three years—the two-year course for the trained primary teacher's certificate and the three-year course for the trained infant teacher's certificate.

However, it was fairly definite that in a very short time all courses would be for a minimum of three years, requiring the equivalent of university standard.

There was at present a teaching staff of 10 at the college, consisting of: principal, Mr. W. Eunson; assistant principal, Mr. A. H. Fry; Miss G. Kentish, Mr. D. Boyd, Mr. T. Digman, Mr. J. Sherwill, Mr. B. Gleeson, Mr. T. Wells, Mrs. M. McMahon and Mr. P. Ladd.

It was anticipated that the staff next year would increase from 25 to 30.

The shire president, Cr. A. Gowans, thanked Mr. Eunson on behalf of those present and assured him that the council would be happy to assist in every possible way.

Following afternoon tea, about 50 people were conducted on an inspection of the buildings.

Veterans’ secretary talks to students

Mr. Perry Hockings, secretary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, told the history of automobiles and the members of the veterans to student teachers at the Dunnage College.

He talked about how automobiles were invented in the 19th century. The first automobile was manufactured in 1876 and later cars were developed. The first cars were powered by steam engines, but later they were powered by gasoline engines.

Mr. Hockings said that all students should be familiar with the history of automobiles.

Mr. Hockings also talked about how the students could use the history of automobiles in their teaching.
Veterans’ secretary talks to students

Mr. Percy Hosking, well-known Frankston jeweller, who is secretary of the Veteran Car Club of Victoria, outlined the history of automobiles and their creators to student teachers at the Training College last Wednesday.

He told the students that although several attempts were made to produce a horseless carriage in the 18th century, it was not until the 19th century that any such machine was successfully manufactured.

Britain took the early lead but Continental companies, such as Peugeot, soon seized the initiative.

The first cars were powered by steam engines, but these gave way to the more practical internal combustion engines, which were still used today.

Mr. Hosking said that all cars manufactured before 1917 were known as veteran models, while those manufactured between 1917-38 were vintage models.

His own car, a 1905 Cadillac, which could do about 50 m.p.h. when stripped for racing, was imported from America by a Mr. Tye (of the furniture family).

He pointed out that the car travelled at walking pace in first gear so that it could stay behind the man with the red flag who was supposed to precede it.

He bought the car in a dilapidated condition for less than £100, and spent more than 800 hours in restoring it to its original state.

Mr. Hosking concluded by telling the students that the club’s motto was: “You don’t have to be mad, but it helps.”
Mr Hosking takes Clare for a drive in his veteran Cadillac.

1. THE COLLEGE ANTHEM

Hail to our College—with hearts brave and hopeful,
Strong for life's battles we leave its old walls;
Eager where light hands of pleasure are beck'ning,
But ever responsive when stern duty calls.

Chorus:
Non omnis moriar, non omnis moriar!
All is not mortal; let us be gay;
That which is best in us—great thoughts,
Deeds glorious—ne'er will decay.

Hail to our fallen, their spirits triumphant,
Faithful to duty, not fearing to die:
They give to our College a glory unfading,
A new note of triumph resounds in our cry.

2. A COMMEMORATION OF THE FALLEN

(Unison)

O God, Who art not the God of the dead but of the living, and Who dost swallow up death for ever, we thank Thee for the hope of life that is eternal. We bless Thee for the fellowship of the unseen; for those who are gone into the world of light; who see Thy face and serve Thee still. Their heroism and their sacrifice, their deeds and their endurance shall be the heritage of children's children. With humble hearts and memories and lowly pride we commemorate before Thee those who have fallen in the war.

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the sons of God."

IN MEMORY—

(Unison)

Of all the gallant soldiers, brave sailors, undaunted airmen, who have been faithful even unto death.

IN MEMORY—

(Group)

Of poets who left their unsung songs, and did the deeds that shall make others' songs.
Of those who dropped their instruments of music and the tools of art.
Of students who forsook the cloistered paths of learning and in a stern road laid down their lives.

IN MEMORY—

(Group)

Of men of science who, through sacrifice, have found the truths of life and death and immortality.
Of statesmen who passed from the Senate House to serve upon the field and came not back.

IN MEMORY—

(Group)

Of those who came from shop and office at the urgent call.
Of men who left their husbandry and daily craft.
And of the poor, whom their country gave no heritage, who yet have died for it.

IN MEMORY—

(Group)

Of those who died fulfilling ministries of help and healing.
Of chaplains, doctors, nurses, and workers under the Red Cross, who saved others, but themselves they did not save.
IN MEMORY—

Of seamen of the transport and merchant services who went down with their boats,
Of fishermen who left their nets to sweep destruction from the seas,
Of workers who in dangerous tasks met accident and death,
And of all innocent and helpless lives that have been sacrificed.

IN MEMORY—

Of our own, our dearest and our best.
Beloved sons and brothers, fathers, husbands, friends.
Dear names for ever written in our hearts.

(Unison)

The work we do is harder for their absence; the road we tread is lonelier for their passing. We trust to meet them at the journey’s end; we lift to Thee the sorrows of our homes. Give us the grace to make the sacrifice complete. Aid us to live as faithfully and bravely as they died, to cherish their memories in living monuments, and greatly to resolve to build the city of their ideals in the land for which they gave themselves.

3. READING OF THE COLLEGE HONOUR ROLL

4. “ANZAC DAY” (Remembrance Day)

We would remember them to-day,
Who from their homeland sailed away,
So blithely and so willingly
To give their lives for you and me;
Father, guard their sleeping.

We would remember, too, the brave,
Who of their dearest treasures gave:
Their solace in the years to be,
Pride in a lonely memory.
Hear their quiet weeping.

Then there are those who lived apart:
The maimed, the blind, the sad at heart;
Raise for them, in their time of need,
Friends who are friends in very deed.
Have them in Thy keeping.

5. READING OF (a) CAPT. W. R. HOGGART’S LETTER

Written prior to landing at Gallipoli.

(b) H. R. BRODIE’S POEM—“An Airman’s Prayer”

6. “RECESSIONAL”

God of our fathers, known of old—
Lord of our far-flung battle line—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies—
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

ANZAC DAY AT FRANKSTON TEACHERS' COLLEGE

College paused for a few quiet moments last Wednesday, to reflect on the immense sacrifices which the Australian nation has made in the past to preserve for us of the present generation the right to determine our own destiny, free from foreign domination. As we thought of the thousands of young men who had offered their lives in this cause; of the women who had supported them; of civilians in other parts of the Commonwealth who faced terrifying bombardment from the skies in order to maintain the nation's independence, we hoped we would prove worthy guardians of such a heritage as ours.

The reading of a letter written by Captain Haggart who enlisted in the First World War, brought back vivid memories of the solemn occasion. It was written when he was aboard the transport "Bryalus", early in the morning of the landing at Gallipoli. He spoke of the wonderful serenity of his men as they talked of home and their loved ones; each man believed he would survive the ordeal which was before him. Captain Haggart made the supreme sacrifice.

In his moving poem, "An Airman's Prayer", E. R. Brodie, a young teacher among of the 2nd World War asks simply for the strength to die; the enemy, he knows was loved by his own, as Brodie was loved.

The sounding of the Last Post and the Reveille preceded the laying of the wreath in the hall.

Early Days at Frankston

Students at the Teachers' Training College at Frankston were told last week by ex-Cr. Frank Wells that he could remember when shops in Bay-st. could be bought for £200 or two for £300.

No more able person could have been approached to give such an account as he has been mentioned in the Mornington Peninsula Press. He is now a resident of Frankston. Wells was born in Frankston in 1909. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Wells, the first white family born in the town.

In his early years, he held his taste for horses, and he was said to be a good horseman. When he broke, there was a widespread depression.

First Industry

The early industry of Frankston was the export of bricks and wood, but when the depression came, they were closed down. The "first time" affected the Peninsular adversely.

Bullock Drays for Transport

Travel in the days of his youth was by bullock and horse stages. The road to Melbourne was constructed of earth, and his horse was unduly affected. Many journeys to Melbourne were made by horse and bullock, as the present CWA hall.

Depression Caused Low Prices

The depression caused low prices. The weekly wage was 25¢. Pork was 1¢ per lb., and beef was 40¢. A good ten-year-old horse was 4½ per ton. A ton of grass was 20¢ per bag of sugar.

Working Hours

The working hours were long. Ex-Cr. Wells was employed by the Frankston and Hastings Shire council, working from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., except on Saturdays.

Blacks on CWA site

When asked whether any absences were observed, the foreman replied that there were only one or two, but early retirement was unusual because of the nature of the present CWA hall.

He concluded an enjoyable chat by saying that he hoped some of the present generation would ever experience the depression. "During the depression, Frankston was no dead at all for Fraser's Creek," he said.
EARLY DAYS AT FRANKSTON

Students at the Teachers’ Training College at Frankston were told last week by ex-Cr. Frank Wells that he could remember when shops in Bay-st. could be bought for £200 or two for £300.

No more able person could have been approached to give such an address because ex-Cr. Wells has lived in Frankston all his life. His grandparents arrived in Australia in 1841, settling at Sorrento. The trip to Australia was their honeymoon and took six months. They were amongst the first settlers on the Mornington Peninsula and ex-Cr. Wells’ aunt, the late Mrs. David Kelly, was the first white female born on the Peninsula.

Ex-Cr. Wells was born in Frankston in 1880. In his opening remarks he told his listeners that before 1890 there was a land boom. When it broke there was a widespread depression.

FIRST INDUSTRY

The early industry of Frankston was the manufacture of bricks and wood, but when the depression caused these works to close down the “hard times” affected the Peninsula adversely.

BULLOCK DRAYS FOR TRANSPORT

Travel in the days of his youth was chiefly by bullock and horse drays. The road to Melbourne was constructed of earth and tea-tree and travel was understandably difficult. Many journeyed to Melbourne in the fish carts which went to and from Melbourne daily.

DEPRESSION CAUSED LOW PRICES

The depression resulted in low prices. The average weekly wage was 25s. Pork was 3d. or 4d. per pound; a 4-lb. loaf of bread was 4d.; a 70 lb. bag of sugar 10/-, and a 200 lb bag of flour 13s. A bar of soap, the size of a “corner post,” cost 6d. Wood was 7/- a two-ton load and was cut at 1/6 per ton. Shops in Bay-st.. Frankston, were sold at £200 each, or two for £300.

WORKING HOURS WERE LONG

Ex-Cr. Wells was employed by the Frankston and Hastings Shire council driving a horse and dray eight hours daily for 7/- per day for his services and the use of the horse and dray. He said work began at 8 a.m. There were other people who worked 10 hours daily.

Ex-Cr. Wells then went on to tell of some of the early personalities. Oliver’s Hill, for instance, was named after a fisherman, James Oliver. Previously it was known as Davey’s Hill.

BLACKS ON C.W.A. SITE

When asked whether many aborigines were living on the Peninsula, he replied that there were only a few, but early corroborees were held on the site of the present C.W.A. hall.

He concluded an enjoyable talk by saying that he hoped none of the present generation would ever experience the miseries of depression.

“During the depression Frankston was as dead as Julius Caesar,” he said.
STUDENTS HEAR HOW HOSPITAL OPERATES

On Wednesday, June 24, Dr. Galbraith, a noted child specialist from the Orthopaedic Hospital, visited the Frankston Teachers' College to explain about the hospital and its duties.

He maintained the importance of the psychological aspects of a child's health and development. Dr. Galbraith visited the College to go to the hospital for an inspection. He had some interesting observations to make about the patients and the care they received.

ADVENTURE CAMPS DESCRIBED TO STUDENTS

The assembly of staff and students at Frankston Teachers' College on Thursday was addressed by Mr. Hurstbourne, of the National Fitness Council of Victoria.

The boys were formed into groups of eight members each, with Mr. Hurstbourne assigning them to the various groups.

STUDENTS' LECTURE ON FITNESS WORK

Mr. Hurstbourne of the National Fitness Council visited the Frankston Teachers' College on Thursday, June 18, to show films and lecture upon the council's work.

He told the college that the council is working upon an English theory in establishing "Adventure Schools" at various holiday centers in Victoria. He also talked about the importance of fitness in children's education.

LECTURE ON BOOKS AND LIBRARIES

Students of the Frankston Teachers' College were privileged to have as their guest speaker last week Mr. Feeley of the Public Library of Victoria—the occasion being Library Week.

He said that books will be used as long as they are people and themes. He spoke about the birth of radio and its effect on the audience, and the advent of television and the rise of the star system. He also discussed the advent of the concept of a psychological family.
STUDENTS HEAR HOW HOSPITAL OPERATES

On Wednesday, June 24, Dr. Galbraith, a noted child specialist from the Orthopaedic Hospital, visited the Frankston Teachers' College to explain about the hospital and its duties.

He emphasized the importance of the psychological effect of the hospital on its inmates, whose ages range from infancy to 17 years. So that young patients will not feel strange or left out they are shown over the hospital by other patients of their own age. The parents of the children are encouraged to go to the hospital with them to preserve the link between them and to avoid the feeling of the child's being deserted.

Special quarters are provided for the accommodation of parents who wish to stay overnight. Sometimes parents are requested to stay at the hospital to learn how to care for the children after they are dismissed from the hospital.

Dr. Galbraith explained that before operations, the children are given a drug which makes the patient drowsy. After this, he is given an anaesthetic. When the operation is over there are no unpleasant memories and the child is left with no fear of another operation.

To help with other treatment, there is a swimming pool which is filled with sea water and heated. Provision is made for special training of children who are too badly crippled. Being near the beach, the patients are easily transported there.

Answering a question on the meaning of orthopaedic, Dr. Galbraith explained that it meant a "straight child."

Dr. Galbraith invited the College to go to the hospital for an inspection one day. His talk and slides were enjoyed by everyone.

—Janice Hill,
LECTURE ON BOOKS AND LIBRARIES

Students of the Frankston Teachers' College were privileged to have as their guest speaker last week Mr. Feeley of the Public Library of Victoria—the occasion being Library Week.

The interest of students was immediately captured when Mr. Feeley referred to libraries and teachers having much in common—both dealing with human material.

The speaker wondered if book weeks make any impression on the general public as a very small percentage of the population actually use the libraries.

Many people think of them as places where a collection of books is kept or where a sneeze sounds like Gabriel's trumpet.

Mr. Feeley referred to a library as a car with the customer as the driver, the librarian as the starter motor and the books as the machinery or the engine.

He said that books will be read as long as there are people to read them.

The birth of radio had very little effect on the reading of books as people could listen and read at the same time, but in these days of T.V. it is very hard to read a book and watch the Television at the same time. But the habit of wide reading must come back.

The speaker was of the opinion that if the habit of reading dies then libraries will die and if that happens then the State of Victoria will die with them.
ADVENTURE CAMPS DESCRIBED TO STUDENTS

The assembly of staff and students at Frankston Teachers’ College last Thursday was addressed by Mr. Henthorne, of the National Fitness Council of Victoria.

His talk was well-illustrated by slides taken at one of the “Adventure” training camps at Wilson’s Promontory. At that particular camp there were 25 boys present (aged 15-17 years). They were required to live self-disciplined, hard, vigorous lives during their stay there.

Rising time was at 6 a.m. (actually 4 a.m., because of the daylight-saving system) after which followed swimming, athletics, climbing, then breakfast.

Throughout the day, tests of courage, of mental and physical resources were held, from which most of the boys emerged successful. Qualities of leadership were brought out in these tests.

The boys were required to cook their own food and often provide themselves with shelter at night.

These camps were established to give an outlet to youths’ craving for adventure as a psychological need.

His talk captivated the college students and many of them are looking forward to seeing him at a Tidal River camp later in the year.
STUDENTS’ LECTURE ON FITNESS WORK

Mr. Henthorne of the National Fitness Council visited the Frankston Teachers’ College on Thursday, June 18, to show films and lecture upon the council’s work.

He told the college that the council is working upon an English theory in establishing “Adventure Schools” at various holiday resorts in Victoria.

The boys arose at 4 a.m., took an early morning swim, ten minutes physical education, and then an hour’s athletics before breakfast.

After breakfast (which was cooked by the boys themselves), they passed through different initiative tests. These included dangerous rock climbing, bush rescues, erecting tents blindfolded and other equally difficult tasks. All of these tests were designed as character training and brought out the best and poorer qualities in the boys.

As the school progressed, each boy was closely observed by members of the staff and qualities of leadership and initiative were recognized and recorded.

Mr. Henthorne concluded by saying that although the camp was hard work, all the boys agreed that it had been “beautiful fun.”

VISIT FROM BALLARAT
On Thursday, the students of Ballarat Teachers' College visited the Federation Teachers' College to participate in various activities. They left Ballarat early in the morning and arrived at Federation about 10 AM. A group of students and teachers had prepared a warm welcome for them, a little bit of which was captured in the photo at the Federation of Teachers' College in the hot sun. During the visit, the students and teachers enjoyed a variety of activities, including tours of the college facilities and discussions with the faculty. One of the highlights was a presentation by the students on the history of the Federation of Teachers' College, and everyone was impressed by the enthusiasm and knowledge of the students.

HAYSEED HOP
A "hop" for "shyly" led to the Social Service Club of the Federation College on Friday night. Among the "shyly" characters were Sally, Sue, and Mary, and several others.

The young men from outside the college who came to their "hops" "looked" and "shyly" were surprised when a tiny student of the college announced that she would bring them for such games as "creeping the wall" and "sneaking in the dark". Meanwhile, the ladies of the college were spending their time dancing and even singing together.

A square dance, called by one of the staff, was quite enjoyable.

Music was provided by a group called "The Night Owls". The evening ended with some delicious confectionary, a wonderful time of fun and excitement for everyone involved.

Ballarat Teachers' College Visit
The students of Ballarat Teachers' College were pleased and surprised by the welcome from the Federation Teachers' College. After the visit, the students returned to their dormitory and were grateful for the opportunity to experience the different college environment. They were excited to share their experiences with their fellow students and the faculty.

Ballarat Teachers’ College Visit

The students of Frankston Teachers’ College prepared a gala welcome for their visitors from Ballarat Teachers’ College. After this welcome, in which the head boy of Ballarat was “sacrificed” to the Sun God, the visitors were taken on a tour of the college. They showed a great appreciation for the scenery around the fine old building in which the students of Frankston College are residing temporarily.

Lunch was waiting for the visitors in the “Art Room”
VISIT FROM BALLARAT

On Thursday, June 18, Ballarat Teachers' College visited the Frankston Teachers' College to take part in various sports. They left Ballarat early in the morning and arrived at Frankston about 11.30 a.m.

Frankston Teachers' College had prepared a warm welcome for them, a feature of which was the "sacrifice" of the President of Ballarat S.R.C. to the Sun god. During the break between the welcome and luncheon, which was provided by the social committee, parties of students were shown over the college. Many of them commented on the smallness of the present college, but were impressed when shown the plan of the future one.

After luncheon, the various groups proceeded to the sports grounds where many keenly-contested games were played. Ballarat proved their sporting strength by being victorious in all but tennis.

Afternoon tea was served in the squash courts at Frankston.
HAYSEED HOP

A “hop” for “seedy” characters was held by the Social Service Club at the Teachers’ College last Friday night. Among the “seedy characters” were Hoby Gilman, Dave and Mabel, and several cowhands.

The young men from outside the college who came in their “dacs”, “D.B.’s” and “sloppy joes” were surprised when a tiny student of the college demanded penny fines from them for such crimes as wearing two socks the same color, for formal city dress and even for looking unhappy.

A square dance, called by one of the staff, was quite a highlight.

Music was provided by a group called “The Night Owls,” who helped brighten the evening with their gay rhythm.

During the evening drinks and carrots were on sale. Prizes (large carrots) were awarded for a Monte Carlo and for the “seediest” character.

To God eternal the heav’n’s utter glory,

Let all mankind receive their word.
Who holds the numberless stars in their places?
Who bids the sun His light diffuse?
He comes with brightness and smiles in our faces,
And hero-like His way pursues.
