EMERGENCY NURSING

Emergency nurses assess, prioritise and treat patients in a range of busy clinical settings within the Emergency Department (ED). Gain the skills to be an effective member of the ED team. With Commonwealth Supported Places available, there’s never been a better time to further your nursing career.

Gain the skills to support and provide advanced level care to emergency patients across age groups and from all socio/cultural and economic groups. You will learn and develop your experience with experts and leaders within the emergency nursing field.

This advanced and highly flexible course is designed to prepare you, a registered nurse, with leadership skills for planning, implementing, coordinating and evaluating health care. You will learn to formulate policy for a diverse and multicultural society and be equipped to improve the health of individuals, families, communities and the development of the profession.

In the Emergency Nursing specialisation you will:
- Gain leadership skills in emergency nursing management to plan, implement, coordinate and evaluate health care.
- Learn to utilise an evidence-based approach to critically reflect on emergency nursing care and practice.
- Develop an understanding of the pathophysiology of disease processes, which underpins the assessment and emergency management of disease processes.

“Undertaking this course has given me a much broader understanding of critically unwell patients and the skill set to be able to care for them independently. I have been able to work in leadership and mentor roles, share my passion for emergency nursing, and ultimately have a positive contribution to the service we provide.”

ELECTIVES
As part of this Master’s degree, you’ll have the opportunity to customise your degree around your interests, with a choice of electives. You can pick nursing electives, or even units from another area of study (with the permission of the course convenor).

Explore a list of approved electives at handbook.monash.edu/current/courses/M6031

If you are studying in the on-campus mode you may need to attend either/both the Clayton and Peninsula campuses depending on where your elective is offered and some travel between campuses is expected.

RESEARCH PATHWAY
Monash is recognised globally for research excellence. As part of the Master of Advanced Clinical Nursing, you may have the opportunity to work on a nursing research project, with one of our expert supervisors. Completing this can be used as a pathway to a graduate research degree, such as Doctor of Philosophy.

“I am an experienced emergency nurse with more than 15 years clinical nursing and education experience. I maintain my emergency nursing expertise through my work with CENA. My research has also focused on emergency care with work on occupational violence and my PhD exploring the waiting room nurse role in ED waiting rooms.”
