

CALL FOR BACHELOR OF ARCHITECTURE TUTORS

Semester 2, 2021

The Monash Architecture Mission

Monash Architecture is committed to preparing students to become positive change-agents through architecture: via the design of buildings, cities, ideas, fabrication systems, advocacy platforms, policies, and so on. We are committed to social and spatial justice, and environmental sustainability, as the central challenges of our age. We believe that architects have much to contribute to addressing these challenges, and our educational offerings are oriented towards addressing complexity in inclusive and ethical ways.

In light of this mission, Monash Architecture is seeking like-minded and energetic tutors to contribute to our teaching programs. For the second semester 2021 we are seeking participants in the following areas:

Architectural History and Theory

We are looking for articulate and knowledgeable tutors for our 19th & 20th Century Architecture unit, examining evolving architectural ideas in global and local contexts through case study analyses, discussions and essays.

Please contact jacqui.alexander@monash.edu

We are looking for tutors to contribute to the Architecture and the City unit exploring diverse approaches to urbanism in dialogue with a separate suite of urban focused design studios.

Please contact charity.edwards@monash.edu

Architectural Performance

We are looking for tutors for our Architectural Performance 1 unit, which introduces students to materials and construction systems.

Please contact: maryam.Gusheh@monash.edu

We are looking for tutors for our Architectural Performance 3 unit, familiarising students with environmental concepts and construction systems and performance through project-based learning.

Please contact: peter.graham@monash.edu

Architectural Communications

Please contact: tom.morgan@monash.edu
