

Mr. Treseder is an orthopaedic surgeon and he holds the position of staff orthopaedic surgeon at the Royal Melbourne Hospital. He has subspecialty training in the areas of general orthopaedics, trauma reconstruction and upper limb orthopaedics. He has practiced as an orthopaedic surgeon at several high volume orthopaedic centres including The Alfred Hospital and the Royal London Hospital in addition to the Royal Melbourne Hospital. His post fellowship training included fellowships in the United Kingdom and France with upper limb arthroscopy surgeon Mr Philippe Collin. He is a lecturer at the University of Melbourne medical school in the areas of fracture management and trauma management, upper limb orthopaedics and the management of arthritis.

He has multiple international publications and presentation awards in the areas of rotator cuff injury and periscapular nerve dysfunction. He is involved in training orthopaedic surgeons through the Royal Australian College of Surgeons and also several foundation based orthopaedic education institutes.