Section A Report

Vice-chancellor's statement

During 1992, Monash University reinforced its position as an integrated institution, with the potential to rank among the world's great universities.

The mission of the university is to:

- foster scholarship, the pursuit of truth, and the advancement of knowledge and its dissemination by providing an environment that encourages excellence in both teaching and research;
- facilitate developments in teaching and research in which particular and outstanding Monash skills and potential can be identified;
- contribute to the enrichment and development of society, socially and economically;
- protect the university's standards of scholarship but also to consider new ideas and concepts fairly and objectively;
- encourage creativity, adaptation and innovation; and
- contribute to the nation's future by pursuing international programs of academic quality especially with nations of the Asia-Pacific region.

We have consistently argued for the enhancement of standards through:

- providing high quality teaching to include income-generating activities as well as the major degree courses;
- reaffirming Monash's commitment to scholarship, including various forms of consultancy, technology transfer and income-generating activities in the university's research portfolio;
- vigorously pursuing outside research funding and strongly encouraging entrepreneurial initiatives;
- attracting the highest possible quality graduate and undergraduate students and providing greater access for disadvantaged students;
- creating an environment where academic, administrative and general staff can work with satisfaction and pride and appropriately rewarding staff performance;
- strengthening the management of the university particularly with reference to the roles of deans and heads of departments;
- actively developing interfaces with the university's alumni, the private and public sectors and the community in general;
- targeting the Western Pacific Rim as an area of special interest to Monash; and
- communicating the university's achievement in teaching and research to ensure that the community knows and understands what Monash stands for.

The enlarged university, resulting from a merger with the former Chisholm Institute of Technology, Gippsland Institute of Advanced Education and the Victorian College of Pharmacy, is uniquely positioned to move ahead as an innovative, outward-looking, enterprising institution. During 1993 our mission and objectives will be reviewed to ensure that the university will continue to play a leading role in education in Australia and beyond.

The beginning of 1992 saw two significant changes in the senior management team. Professor Robert Porter, began as a part-time deputy vice-chancellor while continuing in his position as dean of the Faculty of Medicine, and similarly Professor Robert John Pargetter, dean of the Faculty of Arts, also took on the role of deputy vice-chancellor. At the first meeting of Council for 1992, Mr David William Rogers was welcomed as the new chancellor.

Members of the Council joined by the vice-chancellor's executive and the deans met together for a day in May to discuss issues raised by the vice-chancellor's paper, Monash: Toward 2000. As one of the consequences of this seminar, I announced a mechanism to review the senior administrative structures of the university.

The initial success of the TV Open Learning pilot program encouraged the Commonwealth Government to expand the program. Monash University was successful in winning the ownership of the Open Learning Agency of Australia Pty Ltd, an incorporated body, whose Board of directors I chair.

The Waller Report, on research in the university, was presented to the Academic Board by Professor Louis Waller, Professor of Law. The creation of the full-time position of deputy vice-chancellor (research), a major recommendation of the report, was endorsed, and subsequently Professor Robert Porter was appointed to this position.

Monash University submitted 1815 research applications during 1992, attracting about $32 777 839 from external granting bodies. Substantial funding was attracted from major Commonwealth competitive granting bodies such as the Australian Research Council (ARC), National Health and Medical Research Council (NHMRC), DITAC Industry Research and Development Board Grants (GIRD), and the Office of the Chief Scientist (Cooperative Research Centres Scheme). These grants included:

- ARC A total of $5 360 500 for new and continuing grants was received in 1992 for projects commencing in 1993. This represented an increase of 5.8 per cent awarded in the previous year. A further $1 296 100 was allocated to the university for internal allocation by the ARC for the Small Grants Scheme; 144 applicants were awarded funding under this scheme. The university was awarded five Mechanism B grants totalling $722 000 for 1993 and was involved in 15 Mechanism C proposals worth $3 095 000.
- NHMRC A total of $5 507 401 was awarded to support 86 continuing and competing NHMRC grants.

In 1992, the Monash Development Fund comprised $4.275 million, an increase of more than $1 million over the 1991 allocation. Research and teaching projects were funded across a variety of fields consistent with Monash strategic objectives. These included Asian studies, environmental management, biotechnology, public policy and health issues.

Special teaching initiatives supported by the fund included the development of a distance education major in Japanese and the Graduate Diploma of Occupational and Environmental Health by Distance Education. The fund was also used to provide institutional support for cooperative research centres and for the three national key centres for teaching and research operating within the university. Research travel grants amounting to $95 000 were awarded to support attendance by academic staff at international conferences, and $80 000 in grants-in-aid was provided for conference travel for postgraduate students. $100 000 was provided to support collaborative projects between Monash and the CSIRO.

The practice of offshore graduations, established in 1991, continued with increased success, extending this service to hundreds of international students who complete their degrees at Monash University on an Australian campus.

The university put in place measures to enhance and guarantee quality in all its endeavours, extending through administration, teaching, research, consultancies, departmental leadership and external advice. The Working Party on Quality was established under my chairmanship. The Vice-Chancellor's Awards for Distinguished Teaching were awarded for the first time, at the last 1992 graduation ceremony.

The State Government made the decision to locate the new Monash University campus at Berwick; the university is closely involved in the planning of all facets of the operation. As part of the merger process with the Victorian College of Pharmacy, a college board, which mirrors closely the structure of a Monash University faculty board, was established.

Monash University is now an academically integrated institution comprising some 35 000 students on five campuses. In most reviews of the quality of Australian universities, Monash consistently comes in the top three or four and in numerous areas of study is clearly the first. It has more international students than any other Australian university. It has deliberately positioned itself, both internally and externally, to take advantage of the nation's involvement with the global economy, especially in the Asia-Pacific region.

Establishment

Regulation 7(a)

Monash University was established by an Act of the Victorian Parliament on 15 April 1958. A body politic and corporate known as 'Monash University', it has perpetual succession, a common seal, and is capable in law of suing and being sued.

Objectives, functions, powers and duties

Regulation 7(b)

The objectives of the university, as stated in section 5 of division 1 of the Monash University Act are:

- to provide facilities for study and education and to give instruction and training to all such branches of learning as may from time to time be prescribed by the statutes, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, pure science, applied science and technology, engineering, agriculture, veterinary science, medicine, law, arts, letters, education and commerce;
- to aid by research and other means the advancement of knowledge and its practical application to primary industry and commerce;
- to confer after examination the several degrees of bachelor, master and doctor and such other degrees and diplomas as are prescribed by the statutes; and
- to provide facilities for university education throughout Victoria by the affiliation of existing educational institutions to the university, by the creation of new educational institutions to be affiliated to the university, by the establishment of tutorial classes, correspondence classes, university extension classes and vacation classes and by such other means as the Council deems appropriate –

● and in the giving of instruction and training in any branch of learning the university shall aim to foster a desire for learning and culture for a knowledge of the social and cultural as well as the technical and practical aspects of that branch of learning and an understanding of its relation to the whole of human life and knowledge.

The governing authority of the university is the Council, the constitution of which is set out in division 2 of the Act. The Monash University (Chisholm and Gippsland) Act 1990 came into force on 1 July 1990 and substituted in division 2 of the Act a new constitution of Council which came into effect on 1 July 1991. The Council manages and supervises the affairs of the university and is advised by its subordinate standing committees, other boards and committees, the vice-chancellor and senior officers of the university.

Nature and range of services

Regulation 7(c)

The university provides post-secondary education and study facilities primarily to the Victorian community. The ten faculties located within the Monash campuses at Clayton, Caulfield and Frankston — Arts, Business, Computing and Information Technology, Economics Commerce and Management, Education, Engineering, Law, Medicine, Professional Studies, and Science — offer undergraduate and postgraduate degrees and diplomas. Monash University College Gippsland has seven schools including Applied Science, Business, Education, Engineering, Health Sciences, Social Sciences, and Visual Arts. During the year the seven schools at the College were integrated into the faculty structure and MUCG is to be known as Gippsland campus. It has a firmly established regional orientation within Gippsland and this regional role continues to be actively encouraged following the merger with Monash University. The Victorian College of Pharmacy, located at Parkville, will operate as a faculty of Monash University.

In addition to the faculties and the Pharmacy College, there are centres which express the research interests of staff members and provide a specialised nuclei for postgraduate and some undergraduate study. Many of these act as a focus for interdisciplinary research. The work of the university is expanded and supported by affiliated institutions which cooperate in various ways with teaching and research programs at Monash.

Shared policy responsibilities

Regulation 7(d)

The university operates in collaboration with the Commonwealth Government through the Department of Employment, Education and Training and with the State Government Department of Education in the funding, planning and administration of its work.

Note: The officers starred (*) constitute together the Committee of Deans

The Office of University Development, comprising the Publishing, Marketing, Graphic Design, Asia Bureau, Advertising, and Public Affairs offices, produced over 300 publications during the year.

The Public Affairs office published a monthly staff newspaper, Montage, and a weekly news-sheet, Etcetera. These publications were distributed to all staff on all campuses. A quarterly magazine, The Monash Quarterly, was produced and mailed to alumni and the corporate section. A monthly newspaper, Business Victoria, was also published. Schools Update (produced in conjunction with the Course and Careers Centre) was issued four times a year, and the annual research review booklet, Eureka, was published. Monash University College Gippsland also produced a weekly newsletter which was distributed to all staff at the college.

The Career Planning and Development Branch also produced its regular publications: Careers Weekly (50 issues per annum), Career Planner (four issues per annum), and Courses at Monash (80 000 copies per annum). Booklets available on a continuing basis included Hints for job hunters, Interview questions, Reasons for choosing, On starting work, and a report on an annual survey of graduate starting salaries.

In 1992 Monash University College Gippsland produced a handbook which provided information on the operation and the governance of the College together with details of all courses and units offered. Also produced, on behalf of the Monash Distance Education Centre, was a guide to distance education booklet. This booklet gives details of courses offered in the distance education mode by Monash University College Gippsland and other campuses of Monash University, as well as other information including costs, requirements for studying by distance education and methods of enrolment.

Review of operations

Operational objectives and performance indicators

Regulation 8(1)(a)

Since the passing of appropriate legislation, the full integration of four institutions, Monash University, Chisholm Institute of Technology, the Gippsland Institute of Advanced Education, and the Victorian College of Pharmacy, has been proceeding effectively. Monash University is now a large multistrand institution of excellence, catering to the needs of a wide population of students as well as achieving high standards of consultancies and research. It is the multifaceted nature of Monash that is recognised as the distinctive element upon which the university can continue to build. Through the institution's diverse programs of instruction, research and service, plus its geographically dispersed network of campuses, Monash is uniquely placed to respond to community expectations. Faculty and administrative leadership will manage the university to ensure balance among the diverse functions.

The overall goal of the university remains unchanged, and is based on its founding Act, which states that Monash University 'shall aim to foster a desire for learning and culture and for a knowledge of the social and cultural as much as the technical and practical aspects in branches of learning and an understanding of their relation to the whole field of human life and knowledge'. The university will also strive to aid by research and other means the advancement of knowledge and its practical application to primary and secondary industry and to commerce.

The further development of the university's objectives, while taking account of the strengths of the merging partners, has remained consistent with the founding Act described above. To ensure its success, Monash University is developing its objectives (as stated in the Act) along the following lines.

Research

Monash will strengthen its commitment to research and research training by being: active in scholarship and supporting a substantial number of identified national and international areas of research excellence; a leader in demonstrating responsible involvement in research, development and service with industry, commerce and state enterprises; active in establishing financial sources of research funding independent of those provided through regular government channels. Monash aims to encourage all staff to be active in research and scholarship; achieve and maintain a world class research standard in key fields; promote individual excellence in research; and strive for a balance between pure and applied research. The university will effectively apply both internal and external resources to achieving these aims.

Teaching

Monash will be: committed to excellence in teaching and in being responsible to the needs of our client base, while devising ways acceptable to both staff and management to evaluate staff performance each year; continuing to offer a range of teaching programs extending from doctoral to undergraduate programs; a major provider of postgraduate professional education and vocational training ranging from short courses to course-work masters degrees; a major centre in postgraduate research training.

Monash will promote tertiary education and provide equitable access to undergraduate courses for students, particularly in the south-east corridor area; endeavour to attract the best students from throughout Victoria; foster excellence in teaching; provide a range of teaching programs responsive to clients' needs, including professional upgrading, stronger academic links with TAFE, competency-based training and provision for international students; and proceed with the development of the proposal for the establishment of a Monash campus at Berwick.

Postgraduate teaching is of particular priority: Monash will strive to attract the best students, both nationally and internationally, to enrol in postgraduate degrees, especially in our fields of identified research strength.

Early in 1992 the Vice-Chancellor's Awards for Distinguished Teaching were introduced as part of a set of initiatives to recognise and improve the quality and status of university teaching. The winners, who were announced in October, receive a $5 000 grant to further their teaching interests, a commemorative award to be presented at the final graduation ceremony of the year, and a permanent citation in the university Calendar.

Internationalisation

Monash will be: the strongest Australian university in Asian studies, languages and business, and have an appropriate balance of Asian and other perspectives in all degree programs; among the best known Australian universities throughout the world. Monash has a substantial international reputation, especially in Europe and the United States of America. In Asia and Asian studies, Monash has an unrivalled reputation.

Further development of the internationalisation of Monash University will follow these routes: academic staff, departments and faculties will be encouraged to extend their international links and in particular attempt to mainstream Asia; the university will target universities in Asia and the Pacific, the USA, Europe and Canada, for the development of institution-to-institution collaborative agreements; the international promotion of Monash will continue, especially through innovative formats to exploit Monash's position in taking a broad lead on a new approach to the Pacific, rather than the conventional academic approach; the establishment of an offshore Monash campus is being explored.

The broad objectives of these strategies are in teaching, students, research and development which will include the establishment of cooperative centres funded by private and university resources.

Strong demand occurred in 1992 for the Bachelor of Applied Science (Nursing) conversion degree which is offered in conjunction with Hong Kong Polytechnic. In 1992 there were further links with the profession in Singapore, Malaysia and Japan.

November saw the graduation of the first cohort of offshore nursing students. A total of 180 students graduated in Hong Kong with 112 of these students receiving a degree in nursing. Professor Fran Kretlow, Head of the School of Nursing, and Mrs Bridget Swearse, course coordinator, attended the ceremony together with senior officials of the university.

Strong demand also occurred for the Bachelor of Business course offered offshore in Hong Kong, with the promotional sessions in July 1992 reportedly well received by the local market.

Discussions have been conducted in Singapore on the possibilities of offering social science courses and the Engineering Graduate Certificate – Reliability Engineering stream. The School of Business has been examining ways of delivering its services into Singapore on a fee-paying basis.

Enrolments of on-campus international students increased strongly in 1992 with business and arts applicants dominating, although demand strengthened from engineering, applied science and computing applicants. Some enrolments were achieved in education and visual arts. Applicants from Singapore were still dominant but interest from Malaysia noticeably increased.

Alternative modes of delivery

Monash will be: a major provider of distance higher education programs and of programs delivered by broadcast and electronic mode. Monash will achieve these aims by continuing to strengthen its distance education base through the provision of programs for upgrading professional qualifications, for retraining, and for satisfying the cultural and personal development needs of the adult community, and by further expansion of Open Learning into new discipline areas. Monash will continue to explore the application of new and innovative technology to teaching, in Australia and internationally.

The Open Learning Agency of Australia has now been established and will have its first intake of students in March 1993. Two new Monash University degrees, the Bachelor of Business Studies and the Bachelor of General Studies, which may be completed by Open Learning studies and other non-traditional forms of learning, have been developed and approved by Council. Monash has also been successful in gaining DEET support to run a Year 13 Pilot Project in 1993, with sixteen schools providing tutorial support for Open Learning studies in the first semester and many more schools interested in entering the Pilot later in the year.

Distance education student numbers exceeded 5000 in 1992 and, with the inclusion of students enrolled in the Monash unit of the TV Open Learning Project, totalled over 6000. Enrolments in distance education programs in Hong Kong and Singapore exceeded 1000, and the first group of Hong Kong distance education students graduated with the Bachelor of Applied Science (Nursing).

New courses approved during 1992 for offering by distance education are the Master of Family Medicine and Diploma of Occupational and Environmental Health. The Distance Education Centre is also involved in the preparation and delivery of Monash units through the Open Learning Initiative. The first four of these will be offered from March 1993.

A Distance Education Office has been established on the Caulfield campus. The office handles assignment traffic and academic staff liaison for distance education courses based at the metropolitan campuses. It provides office space and wordprocessing support for distance education course developers working with metropolitan academic staff.

A tender for the provision of a new desktop publishing system has recently been finalised and this system will be installed in early 1993. Work has begun on computerisation of the study materials production system, and a pilot project in computer mediated communication for distance education delivery will be conducted in the first semester of 1993. A combined taskforce with Student Administration staff has streamlined a number of distance education systems during 1992, with excellent gains in productivity.

A planning conference of Distance Education Centre senior management was held in December 1992 to define current challenges and plan responses to these.

The construction of a new Distance Education Centre building is ahead of schedule. The Production Administration, Wordprocessing and Graphic Design sections moved in during the first week of January 1993, and the remainder of the Administration and the Course Development Group will transfer in early February.

An agreement between HEARU and the Educational Development and Research Unit (EDRU) of the Distance Education Centre for cooperation in academic staff development activities was finalised in December 1992. Staff development activity in 1992 was strong with the Distance Education Centre, through Dr Michael Parer, hosting the Annual Conference of the Higher Education Research and Development Society of Australia (HERDSA) and conducting a very successful preconference workshop at the International Conference on Distance Education (ICDE) in Bangkok. Papers were presented by staff of the centre at four national or international conferences during 1992.

Community and culture

Monash will continue to extend its cultural activities to be: an active cultural centre for the local and Melbourne communities. The southern and southeastern suburbs, and the Gippsland region, are major population centres. Monash provides, and will continue to develop, access to community facilities, performing and visual arts, and informal public education. Monash will continue to seek wide government and community participation in these valuable developments and activities.

The faculties

Monash is a faculty-based university with considerable autonomy and responsibilities devolved to the faculties. Comprising ten faculties in 1992, Monash will continue the process of devolution and encourage faculties to develop their own objectives and strategic plans in ways that are consistent with and which implement the overall university objectives. The deans have a key role in their advisory capacity to the vice-chancellor on all major policy issues and in their implementing role in their faculties. The continuation of these arrangements with possible devolution of more responsibilities to deans is envisaged.

Factors affecting the achievement of operational objectives

Regulation 8(1)(b)

Prospective students have reacted favourably towards the merged Monash in terms of the number and quality of applications for enrolment. The depressed economy has also had some effect, as study is increasingly considered as an alternative to work. Some of the additional administrative workload resulting from the larger numbers of applicants and enrolled students has been handled by reviewing administrative processes and structures. A new student information system (MUSIS) will streamline administrative procedures, particularly during the enrolment period. Benefits for students are speedier enrolment and change of enrolment, access to up-to-date enrolment information and the possibility of postal enrolment. While the dollar has been devalued, the number of scholarly publications available has been increasing. The University Library has been working on strategies to stress access over collection-building, to enhance scholarship at Monash. Such strategies are involving an increased investment in information technology. A voucher system was developed to accommodate Open Learning students.

Academic staff development

The Higher Education Advisory and Research Unit (HEARU), which is responsible directly to the vice-chancellor, has the responsibility for academic staff development, for the provision of advice to assist administrative decisions, and for the monitoring and commenting on the higher education sector in Australia and overseas.

The responsibility for academic staff development is met through the provision of advice and activities on all campuses now associated with Monash University. Workshops on issues of interest to the staff are conducted throughout the year, with an increasing number being held within departments. All HEARU workshops are free to Monash staff.

The vice-chancellor's five Teaching Taskforce Working Parties reported to the Academic Board during 1991, and in 1992 two projects which flowed from these working parties were funded by the Department of Employment, Education and Training (DEET), under the supervision of HEARU staff. The first was an investigation at Monash of how students' work is assessed. In November, a two and a half day conference sponsored by the project team highlighted the need for staff in the Greater Monash to listen to the student view and to discuss assessment practices because of the effect such practices have upon student learning. The second project, again funded by the National Priorities (Reserve) Fund, was designed to promote the importance of the quality of teaching in courses offered to first-year students. Six academic staff were given awards in recognition of the excellence of their teaching to first-year students in 1992.

The vice-chancellor also responded to the recommendations of the Teaching Taskforce and provided three Distinguished Teaching Awards. These inaugural major awards were offered in 1992.

A Professional Development Program was accepted for funding by the National Staff Development Fund (Cathie Committee) in 1992, which gave time-release to 23 academic staff to participate in a five-month, half-time program designed either to develop the areas of teaching, research, administration and community service (Stream A) or to enhance the research capabilities of staff who had been denied such experience (Stream B). Fifteen of the 23 staff who benefited from this program enrolled in Stream B.

Staff appraisal

The training of supervisors under the second tier award continued and by the end of the year only a small number remained who had not participated. The staff appraisal procedures project, funded by DEET, was completed to draft form by the end of the year. The project reflected the uncertainty which exists in the industrial relations area in higher education because of changing legislation and the likely introduction of a new award called 'Staff appraisal for developmental purposes'.

Major changes to objectives, functions or organisational structure

Regulation 8(1)(c)

The functions of the university were extended during 1992 as a result of the merger with the Victorian College of Pharmacy. The courses taught by the college will be continued by the university.

The organisational structure of the university has been altered as the schools and departments of the MUCG have been integrated into the faculty structure. From 1 January 1993, MUCG will be known as Monash University Gippsland campus.

Subsequent to the announcement of a major internal review of the Monash administrative structure, the student and academic support services provided by the registrar have been reorganised. The new administrative structure will be finalised early in 1993.

As a result of another review conducted during the year, the Faculty of Professional Studies is to be dissolved in 1993. The Caroline Chisholm School of Nursing, combined with the School of Nursing at the Monash University College Gippsland, will become a sub-faculty of the Faculty of Medicine. The School of Art and Design will become a sub-faculty of the Faculty of Arts, and the Department of Applied Psychology will become part of the Faculty of Science. Plans have been made for reviews into Welfare Studies, Social Work and Librarianship. The Department of Police Studies will become a Centre in Policing and Public Safety.

During 1992, the Faculty of Science was also reviewed. The review committee, headed by Professor Tom Healy of the University of Melbourne, made a number of recommendations, the main focus being on the creation of streams within the Bachelor of Science degree. Streams identified were biomedical science, environmental science, maths and computer science, and physical and chemical science. Working parties were established to bring forward proposals for programs of study which can be implemented for the 1994 academic year.

As a result of the university's review of psychology, departments at Caulfield/Frankston and Gippsland were integrated into the Faculty of Science's Department of Psychology, to take effect from 1993. This has produced a department with strengths across the broad range of the discipline, and with teaching on four campuses as well as by the distance education mode.

In response to the changing demands on management in the tertiary education sector, the university has altered the structure and workings of the senior executive. One deputy vice-chancellor now devotes his time solely to research, while the other oversees academic projects. A pro vice-chancellor has also been appointed for International Programs and Development. A new position of senior deputy vice-chancellor is to carry responsibility for the day-to-day management of the university on behalf of the vice-chancellor. Professor Ian William Chubb, who has been appointed to the position, will take up duty early in 1993.

Major external reviews

Regulation 8(1)(d)

No major external reviews were conducted during 1992.

Summary of operations

Regulation 8(1)(e)(i)

Major initiatives and operational achievements

The varied administrative, research and development initiatives of the university during 1992 are covered in the vice-chancellor's statement, and in sections 8(1)(e)(iii) and (iv).

Major works

Regulation 8(1)(e)(ii)

On the Clayton campus of the university, construction of the new General Purpose Building was well advanced as was the extension of the Law School. Building Contract Documentation for the Performing Arts and Information Services Buildings is nearing completion.

On the Caulfield campus, construction work on Stage 1 of the General Teaching and Business School development is well advanced. This includes facilities for the Student Union.

On the Frankston campus, contract documentation for Stage 1 of the Union Community Centre has begun. The Technology Building has been completed.

At Monash University College Gippsland, a new Outdoor Hydraulics Laboratory was completed. An additional six student residences accommodating 36 students was built, and the development of two tennis courts and a basketball facility within the west residences site was completed.

Work on the Student Union Building and the link (including the Council Room) between the Knuckle and the School of Health Sciences was also completed. A practice golf range has been established on campus as a joint project with the City of Morwell. During 1992, a clock tower was also built, and work on the General Teaching and DEC building was continued with the ground floor being completed in late 1992.

Major research and development activities

Regulation 8(1)(e)(iii)

During 1992, Monash University staff submitted 1815 grant applications through the Office for Research. A total of 362 new grants and 823 continuing grants were awarded funding in 1992 totalling $32 777 839.

ARC large grants scheme: In 1992, 278 grant applications were submitted to the ARC for funding in 1993. This represented an increase of 27 per cent in applications. Monash staff were awarded 53 initial and 10 renewal grants totalling $2 808 000, and together with continuing multiyear grants, a total of $5 360 500 was awarded for 1993. Monash received an increase of 5.8 per cent in funds over the 1992 allocation.

The Office for Research continued to organise university-wide faculty and departmental ARC information sessions, and researchers were provided with advice on the preparation of ARC large grants applications.

ARC small grants scheme: This scheme provides $2 000–$25 000 to researchers from laboratory-based departments and $2 000–$15 000 to researchers from humanities, social sciences and mathematics, continued to be administered by the university in accordance with ARC criteria. In 1992, $1 296 100 was available to the university for distribution. A base of $25 000 was allocated to each faculty, Monash University College Gippsland and Victoria College of Pharmacy. A further allocation was made on the following basis – 75 per cent of the funds was distributed to the faculties based on the funds attracted by each of the faculties in the previous ARC large grants round and 25 per cent on funds sought in the following ARC large grants round. In 1992, 338 small grant applications were submitted for funding in 1993, and of these, 144 grants were awarded.

ARC fellowships: In 1992, the university received one ARC Postdoctoral Fellowship (50 awarded nationally), one ARC Queen Elizabeth II Fellowship (15 awarded nationally), and three ARC Senior Research Fellowships (15 awarded nationally).

ARC research infrastructure grants – Mechanism A:

In 1992, the ARC continued to provide universities with research infrastructure Mechanism A funding as a way of returning some of the 'claw-back' funds to tertiary institutions so that they would be directed to areas identified by the institution as a research priority. The ARC calculated the infrastructure funds allocation on the basis of success of the institution in attracting support from Commonwealth competitive grants during 1991. The university was allocated $1 584 000 for 1992, of which 15 per cent was allocated to the library. The remaining $1 346 000 was allocated to faculties in proportion to their success in attracting funds from the designated Commonwealth competitive grants scheme.

ARC research infrastructure development grants – Mechanism B

The Mechanism B is designed to provide research infrastructure support to develop the research capacity of institutions from the former advanced education sector. Nineteen applications were submitted by researchers from the former Chisholm Institute of Technology, Gippsland Institute of Advanced Education, and Victoria College of Pharmacy. During 1992, five proposals were granted a total of $722 000 for 1993.

ARC research infrastructure cooperative grants – Mechanism C

Monash was involved in 15 successful Mechanism C proposals, totalling $3 095 000 from a total national allocation of $14 850 000.

National Health and Medical Research Council grants

During 1992, Monash submitted a total of 99 applications requesting $6 673 824. 24 competing and 62 continuing NHMRC grants. The university was awarded funding for 1993 totalling $5 507 401.

NHMRC fellowships: Two researchers from Monash University won NHMRC R Douglas Wright Awards to commence in 1993.

NHMRC large equipment grants: Three equipment grant applications were awarded $88 260 for 1993.

Committee for the Advancement of University Teaching – National Teaching Development Grants

A total of 39 National Teaching Development Grants were submitted during 1992 requesting $1 530 720. Of these, three applications were granted funding totalling $108 887.

Cooperative research centres: During 1992, a total of 18 new CRCs were selected, together with two proposals to extend established CRCs selected in earlier rounds. Of these, six Monash-based submissions (Southern Hemisphere Meteorology, Freshwater Ecology, International Floriculture, New Technologies for Power Generation for Low-rank Coal, Research Data Network, and Australian Geodynamics) were awarded a total of $10.8 million for seven years.

Victorian Health Promotion Foundation: During 1992, three Victorian Health Promotion Foundation project grants received $140 132 and two program grants received $300 000.

Vice-chancellor's conference travel grants: In 1992, the vice-chancellor allocated $114 425 to assist staff who wished to present papers at overseas conferences. Two rounds of applications were invited with a total of 187 grants awarded. The maximum level of travel grant awarded in 1992 was $610.

MUCG staff were successful in gaining grants totalling $281 295 from a number of organisations. These included two major grants from the Department of Health, Housing and Community Services, one for $96 000 under the Rural Health Support Education and Training Program, and the other for $63 160 under the General Practice Evaluation Program.

Other significant activities and achievements

Regulation 8(1)(e)(iv)

Further integration

Following the release of the vice-chancellor's paper entitled 'Future Development of MUCG' towards the end of 1991, discussion began on the possibility of further integration of Monash University College Gippsland into the university's faculty structure. A working group was established to formulate proposals for the integration into the faculty system, and following meetings of the working group a number of meetings were held between the schools at Gippsland and the corresponding faculties at the university. The outcome of these meetings was a series of draft agreements between each of the schools and faculties that were widely circulated within both for comment. Final versions of the agreements received approval of the Gippsland Advisory Council, Academic Board and Council in the latter half of 1992. In addition, arrangements were agreed to for the non-school areas of the college including the library, computing facilities, general staff, budgeting arrangements, distance education and a number of other areas. In the process of further integration, Monash University College Gippsland will become Monash University Gippsland campus as of 1 January 1993.

The Victorian College of Pharmacy is to operate as a faculty of the university from 1993.

Other activities

The Department of Community Medicine opened a hospital-based community medicine unit in Bendigo. The Bendigo Rural Medical Unit is the first of its kind to be established by a university in a regional centre. It will provide extended medical services for the area and be a base for undergraduate teaching, as well as develop a rural research program.

The Faculty of Medicine has continued to develop arrangements for externally funded Chairs, the appointees having significant roles both in the provision of clinical services, and in teaching and research in the faculty. Appointments made during 1992 include Chairs of Radiation Oncology, Respiratory Medicine and Anaesthesia. These developments will strengthen teaching in those areas and will also strengthen the links between the faculty and the teaching hospitals.

Also in the medical area, a new adolescent and family psychiatry service is being developed by the Dandenong Hospital in association with the Department of Psychological Medicine at Monash. This would provide the community of Dandenong and the south-eastern growth corridor with an accessible specialised child, adolescent and family psychiatric service.

A blood test for the detection of cancer has been developed by researchers at the Centre for Molecular Biology and Medicine. The new test can be used to detect cancers of the digestive tract, particularly stomach and large bowel cancers, and will significantly boost rates of detection.

A major study of nicotine addiction has been conducted by the Department of Social and Preventive Medicine. Over 1 000 moderate to heavy smokers will be trying out transdermal nicotine patches. The Department of Social and Preventive Medicine is conducting the largest world-wide study of asthma and the environmental factors that cause lung health problems.

Researchers in the Department of Physiology have been studying a radical new approach to population control of feral animals in Australia. It is proposed that a compound such as RU486 could be used to limit feral animals by blocking their reproduction but by having no effect on the native animal population. Particular targets for the research are mouse plagues, rats and foxes, which have wrought environmental havoc, damaging ecosystems and driving some native animals to extinction.

The Centre for Health, Education and Social Sciences (CHESS), located within the School of Health Sciences, has entered its second year of operation. Strong ongoing links have been forged with the university's Centre for Rural Health, with a number of joint research projects being developed and participation by school staff in the activities of the centre.

Three Monash key centres – Advanced Materials Technology, Industrial Relations, and the National Languages and Literacy Institute of Australia – were among nine national centres to receive Federal Government funding for three years. This period will allow them to capitalise on their achievements, while moving towards financial independence.

In 1992, the Faculty of Engineering, in partnership with other bodies, was successful in opening three Commonwealth cooperative research centres. The Australian Maritime Engineering CRC includes Monash, the Australian Maritime College, the University of New South Wales, Curtin University and the participation of 17 industry partners. A project has commenced on ship hull condition monitoring in collaboration with BHP Transport. The Cooperative Research Centre for Hardwood Fibre and Paper Science includes Monash University, Melbourne University and the CSIRO. The Cooperative Research Centre for Catchment Hydrology brings together eight participants, and aims to provide basic programs of research in catchment water and salt balance, waterway management and erosion control, urban hydrology, and flood hydrology.

The Victorian Minister for Manufacturing and Industry, Mr David White, launched the university's new Advanced Manufacturing Technology Centre (AMTC) at the Caulfield campus. The centre features the latest manufacturing research and development equipment, including factory simulation models, teaching robots, computer-controlled lathes, and computer-aided design and manufacturing equipment. The aim of AMTC is to improve the competitiveness and viability of Victorian industry by ensuring that training and development take place in areas that are commercially viable. The centre is partially funded by the Victorian Education Foundation.

A new research facility, Ceramic Fuel Cells Research Facility, to employ 21 scientists, is to be constructed on land adjacent to the Gippsland Engineering and Science laboratories. The project involves a consortium including CSIRO, SECV, BHP, Pacific Power, the Victorian Government Strategic Research Foundation, and the Federal Government Energy Research and Development Corporation. This is an important development for Monash University and the Gippsland campus.

A study being conducted in the Department of Materials Engineering aims to evaluate the ageing processes of fossil fuel fired power stations that were built during the 1960s. The study will assist planning for replacement or maintenance of steel pipes, headers and other components.

As part of the Monash University College Gippsland strategy to develop research activities, the Digital Imaging Applications Centre (DIAC) was established. The concept was to create a multidisciplinary research and development centre in which a number of discipline areas could focus activities. The strengths of the School of Engineering in the digital imaging field were built upon and the scope of activities expanded to embrace other modern high-technology research projects. One particular major new project area was the knowledge engineering area associated with the establishment of the National Information Processing Centre of the Australian Securities Commission in the Latrobe Valley. During 1992, the establishment of DIAC physical facilities, the seeding of initial research activities with the ASC, and the initial development of an academic research infrastructure for DIAC have been achieved.

The Gippsland School of Engineering has been reregistered as an Accredited Energy Auditing Organisation until 30 June 1993. The school is currently carrying out energy audits and related work for both campuses of the Latrobe Regional Hospital.

The new Outdoor Hydraulics Laboratory was completed at Gippsland in 1992. The laboratory will enable engineering students to carry out tests on the complete range of industrial pumping systems which they will encounter in industry. It also provides a facility for the provision of refresher courses in pumps and pipework for local engineers.

The Faculty of Engineering continues to act as host to the Tournament of Minds, organised by the Victorian Association for Gifted and Talented Children. Faculty staff participated this year in assisting with the organisation and with setting problems and judging solutions. In 1992, the Faculty of Engineering put in place an exchange scheme with the University of Waterloo near Toronto, Canada. The first group of students from Monash went to Waterloo at the end of the year, and Monash in turn is receiving its first group of students from Waterloo in 1993.

The Accident Research Centre at Monash is investigating the design and construction of bumper prototypes. The aim is to reduce the number of fatalities that occur when cars underrun trucks in rear-end collisions on Victorian roads.

With the help of funding by the Victorian Education Foundation and Industry, the university's Geophysical Image Analysis Laboratory was established. The laboratory is a Victorian Institute of Earth and Planetary Sciences facility in the Monash Department of Earth Sciences. It enables third- and fourth-year geology and geophysics students to gain hands-on experience locating ore deposits, mineral zones and structural features of the earth using the most up-to-date computer facilities.

An industrial experience program for students in the School of Applied Science Computing degree was negotiated with the State Electricity Commission of Victoria (SECV). A limited number of trainee analyst places will be made available on a competitive basis each year.

The first section of Gippsland's Basic Operations course was completed in 1992. It is a contracted industrial training course targeted at open-cut mining operations in the State Electricity Commission, Yallourn Operations Group. The course is being developed jointly with Hi Tech Promotions Pty Ltd and involves new educational technologies.

A training course for SECV supervisors and engineers entitled 'Basic Engineering Statistics and Probability' was run in April 1992 by the School of Applied Science.

With the aid of a research grant from Digital Equipment Corporation, Monash bought a DEC MPP 1200 massively parallel computer system. Programs suited to this style of machine may run hundreds of times faster than those using the university's VAX 6520 research computer.

The Faculty of Science reviewed its role, distribution of resources, research, the structure and direction of its programs, and student recruitment. As a result, four programs of study within the Bachelor of Science degree were defined, directing attention to employability of science graduates. A review of psychology was also carried out to bring together the teaching of the discipline while retaining the diversity gained from the different focus of psychology on each campus.

The Faculty of Computing and Information Technology has rationalised and developed courses for greater coherence and a wider selection of subjects for students. There is now substantial cross-campus teaching. The Pearcey Centre continued to offer a wide range of computing courses to the public on a commercial basis, operating profitably despite the difficult economic climate.

Staff of the Faculty of Education were engaged in planning for the introduction of the following new courses: Master of Special Education, Master of Educational Computing, and Graduate Diploma in Children's Services. As a result of the enlargement of the faculty to include the School of Early Childhood and Primary Education at Frankston and the School of Education at Gippsland, planning is proceeding on the rationalisation of the faculty's various postgraduate bachelor degree programs.

The faculty established two centres in 1992: the Centre for the Economics of Education at Clayton, and the Centre for Early Childhood Research and Development at Frankston. Plans are proceeding to merge the Professional Development Centre at Clayton with the Centre for Continuing Education at Frankston.

Victims of crime in Frankston now have a trained, professional referral service to turn to for help. There is a $35 000 six-month pilot research and training program which involves Monash's Centre for Continuing Education, the Frankston CIB, the Citizens Advice Bureau and the Victorian Police Victim Liaison Officer. CIB detectives are to be given extra training at the Centre for Continuing Education to ensure they refer victims of crime to the Citizens Advice Bureau.

The faculty's Centre for Continuing Education played a big part in the Drink Driver Education Program and the National Campaign Against Drug Abuse. The Centre for Continuing Education also worked with the YMCA to provide the Professional Education Project on Staff Guidelines, dealing with potential child abuse. Through the Centre for Stress Management and Research, a public clinical service and stress management package to industry were offered.

The Faculty of Education continued work on the significant Mathematics in Industry Project, with the development of videotapes showing the application of mathematics in everyday contexts. A project to develop curricula, assessment and publications to increase awareness and com-mittment to health education in Victorian primary schools has been nearly completed.

The Faculty of Education again taught bridging courses in physics and chemistry for science and engineering degree students. The School of Engineering at Gippsland conducts a summer school for the same purpose. The courses are part of the university's strategy to improve access for the socioeconomically disadvantaged and gender balance in physical science and technology courses.

The Faculty of Education continued the Cooperative Education Scheme set up in 1990. Under this scheme, companies provide substantial scholarships and industry work experience for students, with beneficial results for both parties. The Faculty of Engineering also funded a number of dean's scholarships for first-year students in 1992.

The Krongold and Elwyn Morey Child Study Centres continued to provide community programs for multihandicapped preschoolers and assessment of children with special needs.

The Professional Development Division of the School of Education, Gippsland, ran a number of successful courses and activities including sales training and language courses. The School of Education publishes two national journals, the Journal of Teaching Practice and Learning and Literacy. Both are academically refereed journals.

The Faculty of Arts will introduce a new Bachelor of Music degree and a Graduate Diploma of Arts (Music) in 1993. The Bachelor of Music is unique in Australia and is structured to develop a high level of performance ability, style awareness, knowledge of musical craft, and an awareness of music in various social, historical and cultural contexts.

The Gippsland Centre for Koorie Studies was established within the School of Social Sciences. The centre will build upon the strong foundation which has been built for the education of Aborigines by the school in conjunction with Koorie communities in Gippsland.

The School of Visual Arts Patrons Committee was formed in early 1992 to maintain the important role of the Art School in the Gippsland community, to form a School of Visual Arts Alumni of past graduates of this school, and to investigate outside fundraising opportunities.

The David Syme Faculty of Business offered, as usual, annual executive development programs, such as the Program on Logistics Management, in conjunction with the University of Michigan, and the annual Senior Management Executive Development Program offered with the Australian Institute of Management. The faculty has a particular interest in alternative methods of provision and participated in the TV Open Learning Project during 1992 by offering the first-year degree subject 'Marketing'.

In the Gippsland School of Business, there was a further expansion of courses provided to local industries and business enterprises. DEET provided 20 EFTSU for the Associate Diploma of Business (Productivity Management) as part of the jointly funded industry-government education program. A further new industry course opened with BHP for 30 students from the company. This initiative was supported extensively with Victorian Education Foundation funding for the development of appropriate industry-designed subject materials in the field of 'managing diversity and change'. A new course, 'Introduction to business skills', was trialled during the year with three local businesses as part of the new short course program developing within the school.

The faculties of Business and Economics Commerce and Management have been working towards merging to become a single faculty of business and economics, expected mid 1993.

The Faculty of Economics Commerce and Management admitted students to the new Bachelor of Commerce degree for the first time. The popularity of the course reflected the demand in the community for a professional accounting qualification with a commercial orientation. The faculty also continued to take responsibility for the cooperative education venture associated with the Bachelor of Accounting, which attracted exceptional students.

As a result of a substantial review of the MBA program, the need for the course to be able to continue to respond to change has been emphasised.

The faculty's Centre of Policy Studies worked on the building of MONASH, a new general equilibrium model of the Australian economy. The model will emphasise interaction between technical change and the environment. Regional aspects of the model will be used by the Governments of New South Wales and Victoria in an analysis of the effects of changing the formula by which the Commonwealth distributes funds to the States.

The Faculty of Law halted its planned expansion in 1992, particularly in view of the introduction of LLB programs at Deakin and La Trobe universities. The Friends of Monash Law School was formed in 1992 to foster greater involvement in the faculty, provide a means of communication, and raise funds for specific projects.

The first ecumenical chaplain for Monash University College Gippsland was inducted in March. The position has been jointly funded by the Anglican, Roman Catholic and Uniting churches in Gippsland and the chaplain provided invaluable support to students of the college in 1992.

Major promotional activities

Regulation 8(1)(f)
During 1992, Monash University participated in over 250 activities involving secondary schools. These included eight Monash days in major feeder schools and two residential junior universities involving more than 500 Year 11 students.

Academic and administrative staff from all campuses contribute to the work with prospective students in addition to careers counsellors in the Course and Careers Centre at Clayton.

The total number of student admissions in 1992 to courses at Monash from schools in the Monash Schools Link program was over 400. The program is designed to promote access to the university for students from low socioeconomic groups and rural and isolated regions. A major single outcome of the access program was the establishment of a university-wide special admissions scheme for school leavers seeking entry in 1993.

Interaction with the external community brought with it, as always, special events and visits by VIPs. These included visits by Her Excellency the President of Ireland, the Malaysian Minister of Education, the Philippines Minister of Education, the Ambassador of the then Czechoslovak Federal Republic, the High Commissioner for India, and the Thai Ambassador.

In addition, visits to the university were arranged for overseas and local community groups, including the Thai Chamber of Commerce University, the Lingnan School Hong Kong, Wesley College Japanese exchange students, teachers from the Cook Islands, and Williamson Community Leadership Program participants.

In July, six Monash faculties participated in the Great Australian Science Show held at the World Trade Centre. It was expected that more than 30 000 people would visit the Monash stand, which featured interactive engineering experiments, an earthquake simulator, the walk-in womb, and computer-generated photographs. Talks were given by some of Australia's leading scientists, among whom were Monash's Professor Ray Cass discussing volcanoes and Dr Andrew Prentice describing the mysteries of the solar system.

Publicity

Publicity for promotional activities and other functions and activities of the university was generated through 641 advertisements placed in national, metropolitan and local press. Other university publications which promote the university's activities include Courses at Monash (published annually), the university's official publication describing undergraduate courses and distributed widely to secondary school students and enquirers; Montage (published monthly), the university's newspaper, distributed to staff and major target audiences; Business Victoria (published monthly), a review of matters affecting business and industry, distributed to industry leaders; Eureka (published annually), a review of research undertaken; Monash International; the Monash Book; and Schools Update (published quarterly), distributed to secondary students and their advisers. The university also published numerous course and faculty brochures on various aspects of courses and services offered.

In collaboration with graduates of the university, a range of income-generating activities was introduced and promoted to the alumni, including insurance products, financial investment products, the Monash Alumni Wine Society, and opportunities for endowments and bequests.

The Annual Library Appeal was continued and provides a sound base for an extended annual giving program. Average gifts have risen since 1988 from $57.00 to $76.00, with a response rate of 73.3 per cent from renewing donors compared with 59.6 per cent in 1987.

Participants in the alumni 'Keep in Touch' program increased from 2000 in 1991 to almost 5000 by late 1992. Services offered to participants included access to Monash publications, seminars and workshops, theatre, music and exhibitions. Special attention was given to maximising international networking opportunities and encouraging increased interaction between senior graduates, young graduates and undergraduates.

The Vice-Chancellor's Alumni Advisory Board met quarterly and provided a useful forum for the exchange of information and opinion, as well as encouragement to fledgling grass roots groups.

A range of local level promotional activities was organised by Monash University College Gippsland during 1992, the main ones being VTAC 'Change of Preference Week' where course advisers and selection officers were available during the week when VCE students received their examination results. In addition, there was a direct dial extension telephone service linking the campus to Clayton for those students who required information on courses at the other campuses.

Open Day was held on 2 August and academic and general staff were on hand at the Gippsland campus to provide advice to prospective students. Staff also attended Clayton, Caulfield and Frankston campuses to provide advice to prospective distance education students.

A Distance Education Information Program comprising a series of pre-enrolment seminars was held throughout Victoria, South Australia, the Northern Territory, Queensland, New South Wales, Canberra and Tasmania from 31 August to 2 October. Course advisers also provided information and advice on the programs available through the TV Open Learning Project.

The Junior University Program was conducted at Gippsland from 24 to 26 November 1992 with some 75 Year 11 students from Gippsland secondary schools participating in the activities.

In addition, other local activities included visits to the campus from schools for familiarisation and meeting staff, and visits by Gippsland campus staff to other locations such as schools for parent evenings and talks to students. A number of career expos were also attended, and tertiary information sessions conducted.

The overseas promotion of Monash University and the services it provides through the Centre for International Students forms an important part of the university's commitment to provide opportunities for international students to study at undergraduate and postgraduate levels. The 1992 year was a particularly busy and successful year in promoting offshore teaching and the development of international links. A large number of overseas visits took place during the year for promotional activities, through exhibitions, seminars and staff visits, overseas conferences, pre-departure briefings for new students, and the distribution of numerous publications.

Monash continued to enrol the largest number of international students in the country, albeit by a small margin. New enrolments for 1992 remained stable at the undergraduate level and increased by 26 per cent at the postgraduate level. The undergraduate numbers had been expected to plateau after the rapid rise early in the program. The growth in postgraduate commencements was encouraging, but this is also expected to slow in 1993.

Graduation ceremonies were held overseas in Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore. It was the second time that a ceremony had been held in Kuala Lumpur, and 160 Monash students received their degrees at the ceremony. In Singapore and Hong Kong, graduations were held for the first time, and there were 85 students who received their degrees at the ceremony in Singapore and 195 in Hong Kong. Of the Hong Kong graduands, 110 were students who had completed offshore programs in Hong Kong in Nursing and the MBA.

In keeping with policies detailed in last year's annual report, several new collaborative agreements were signed with universities in Asia, Europe and the USA. The Centre for International Students introduced programs designed to attract Australian students to the new opportunities they now have for studying overseas as exchange students.

The centre received a large number of foreign visitors during the year, and often took on a coordination role for visitors to other parts of the university.

Legislation and judicial decisions

Regulation 8(1)(g)
The Monash University (Pharmacy College) Act 1992 came into force on 12 May 1992.

Regulations

Regulation 8(1)(h)

The number of regulations (Statutes) made during the year are too numerous to summarise, however a list of those regulations may be obtained from the office of the University Secretariat.

Persons employed

Regulation 8(1)(i)

A table detailing staff numbers for 1992 is attached as Appendix 1.

During 1992, a new Human Resource Management area was established, headed by a deputy registrar, Human Resource Management. The new area encompasses the Human Resources Services, Industrial Relations and Career Planning and Development branches and the Equal Opportunity office. This step has improved coordination of functions across related areas. All branches were relocated to the Science and Technology Park during the year, while the Equal Opportunity office remained on campus for reasons of accessibility. The structure is subject to further minor change as a result of the administrative review to be completed in March 1993.

Service delivery by the Human Resources Services branch was reviewed and reorganised. Staff now operate in three work groups headed by a personnel officer. Each group is responsible for the provision of an integrated service to designated administrative groups within the university. Each work group covers academic and general staff, providing the opportunity for human resources services personnel to broaden their skill base, while delivering a more efficient and personalised service to heads of administrative units and staff of the university. This reorganisation has been well accepted by staff and heads of administrative units.

In the general staff job evaluation area, staff and their managers began using the Computer Assisted Job Evaluation (CAJE) System on-line in Human Resources Services on a voluntary basis. The CAJE approach has prompted useful discussion and analysis of a range of jobs across the university. CAJE outcomes have generally been well received. Refinement to the system and its various applications will continue during 1993, in preparation to support any large-scale job evaluation or job grading projects necessary as part of Federal Award Restructuring, or in line with changes to the State employment legislation.

The Chair Appointments office handled over 30 appointments during 1992. As well as the appointment of two deputy vice-chancellors, an associate deanship, 22 Chairs and six adjunct professorships were filled. The Chairs included four honorary Chairs, four personal Chairs, five joint appointments, two externally funded Chairs and seven established Chairs.

The deliberative process for academic promotions was enhanced by changes approved by Academic Board and Council for 1992 and by advice to faculties and staff from a senior personnel officer in Human Resources Services, who attended all meetings of faculty and university promotions committees and addressed staff at information sessions on all campuses. Further improvements to the promotions process are planned for 1993, particularly in relation to advice provided to staff, heads of administrative units and referees.

The Career Planning and Development Branch through functional groups delivered staff development and training and student careers advisory services.

Major functions performed by the staff development and training group included development and presentation of staff training programs, operation of a training resources facility, and staff counselling.

Nearly 50 training programs were available to staff, offered by members of Career Planning and Development, academic staff and consultants. These were well attended throughout the year, and two residential programs for middle level administrators and secretaries, conducted with the support of AITEA, attracted 33 and 36 people respectively, around half coming from other institutions. This represented an increase of around 40 per cent on the previous year. An informal working party with the University of Melbourne is developing programs for the benefit of scientific and technical staff.

Use of the training resource facility developed in-house increased by 300 transactions to 1 232. A paper examining cost benefits of the facility has been accepted for issue as part of the AITEA occasional papers series. The paper suggests considerable cost benefits in provision of such a facility and reports highly favourable cost comparisons with traditional forms of training. The average cost per transaction in the major borrowing area, videos, reduced by nearly $12 per transaction compared with the previous year.

Demand for staff counselling also increased during the year. Most of this could be described as either career related or related to issues arising from the workplace. An evaluation of services by university staff rated these in the good to excellent range, with counselling being given the highest rating.

Towards the end of the year, approval was received to change the name of Career Planning and Development to Organisation Development, reflecting the expectation that work on structural and work practice issues will be a priority in 1993.

Equal opportunity

A major function of the Equal Opportunity office is to provide executive and secretarial support to the Equal Opportunity Committee, a standing committee of Council with responsibility for recommending equal opportunity and affirmative action policies and objectives. In 1992, the committee virtually completed the process of changing equal opportunity structures and policies to meet the needs of the enlarged university.

Council adopted the Sex-based Harassment Grievances Procedures recommended by the committee to apply to all campuses. The procedures, which were developed after wide consultation with staff and student associations, reflect the provisions of Federal and State legislation, but are broader in scope.

Progress was made in implementing the strategies in the Monash University Affirmative Action Program – Objectives and Strategies 1991–1992. Major emphasis was placed on encouraging the faculties to undertake their own affirmative action strategies and in providing staff with knowledge of their responsibilities in implementing the university's equal opportunity policy.

The Equal Opportunity office experienced an increased demand by students and staff for confidential advice and for contributions to seminars, courses and conferences inside and outside the university. Consultancy services were provided to AOTC and the University of Melbourne. The Equal Opportunity office published the first edition of its broadsheet newsletter EOquity.

The Disability Liaison office aims to ensure that students and staff with disabilities participate as fully and independently as possible in the academic, administrative, cultural, recreational, research and social activities of the university.

The Child Care Sub-Committee of the Equal Opportunity Committee produced a strategy plan for the further development of child care services on all campuses. The plan was developed in consultation with child care providers attached to Monash and aims in the long term to achieve equivalent access to child care for staff and students on all campuses. The plan was considered by the Central Budgets Committee and provision was made for increased funding for child care in the university's 1992 budget.

The Equal Opportunity Committee also established a sub-committee to review the sexual harassment grievance procedures. Council subsequently approved the Sex-based harassment grievance procedures, which widened the scope of grievances covered and provided for the vice-chancellor to appoint trained advisers on each campus to give confidential assistance to staff and students who believe they have been subjected to sexual harassment, sexist harassment or harassment on the basis of sexual preference. A formal procedure is also included, whereby a complaint may be considered by a panel and disciplinary action recommended if the complaint is substantiated.

The MUCG Equal Opportunity Committee worked closely in conjunction with the university's committees to ensure that policies and procedures were constantly reviewed to keep equivalence of opportunity throughout the whole university.

Achievements for 1992 include providing advice and producing written guidelines for departments working with people with disabilities; implementing a DEET-funded research project into effective teaching of students with learning disabilities in higher education and in conjunction with the Vice-Chancellor's Advisory Committee for People with Disabilities, formulating a strategic plan for achieving the objectives of the Monash University disability support program policy statement.

During 1992, the Disability Liaison office interviewed almost 200 per cent more clients than the year before and, because of a change in the profile of student and staff needs, provided 400 per cent more direct services – including recruiting, training and managing 30 casual staff as note-takers, readers and attendant carers; arranging for the purchase and location of needed adaptive equipment; and evaluating student requirements for alternative arrangements for assessments.

Pecuniary interests

Regulation 8(1)(j)

The Monash University Act 1958 states that any member of the Council or of any committee appointed by the Council shall be disqualified from voting on subject matter in which the member has a direct pecuniary interest.

Overseas visits

Regulation 8(1) k)

Officers of the university, in their respective roles, undertook various overseas trips during the year. Most of these trips were related to the technical or procedural aspects of their employment or terms of appointment. Other trips were undertaken for staff development or promotional purposes as described above.

Occupational health and safety

Regulation 8(1)(l)

The University Council approved two new Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) Policies on Ionising Radiation Safety and on the Protection of Workers from Ultraviolet Radiation in Sunlight.

The Occupational Health and Safety Branch collected data on the types and quantities of chemicals stored in departments at the Clayton, Caulfield and Frankston campuses and the hospitals for the purposes of compliance with the Dangerous Goods (Storage and Handling) Regulations. After consultation with the Occupational Health and Safety Authority, a detailed submission was prepared and submitted to the OHS Authority requesting exemptions to a number of the regulations relating to the storage of chemicals in laboratories.

In line with statutory reporting requirements, 55 accidents were notified to the OHS Authority, and these incidents involving ionising radiation were reported to the Health Department. A total of 166 significant incidents, including 61 incidents resulting in lost-time injuries, were reported.

During 1992, 306 evacuation wardens underwent training and emergency evacuation exercises were conducted for the first time in the five major buildings at the Clayton campus. Emergency procedures notices and floor plans were posted in the majority of Clayton campus buildings. Preparation of the notices and plans was commenced for the Caulfield and Frankston campuses. Commissioning of emergency alert and evacuation systems occurred in the majority of the Science faculty buildings at Clayton. Fire safety was improved at the Caulfield campus by the replacement of unreliable evacuation hardware and at the Frankston campus by the installation of smoke detectors in the student residences.

Two radioactive waste stores on the Clayton campus were upgraded, and plans were developed for a new waste store to be used exclusively for long-term storage.

The refurbishment of laboratories and the upgrading of fume cupboards continued in order to ensure that laboratories comply with current legislative requirements. During 1992, the majority of the work was carried out in the Chemistry department at Clayton, where by far the largest number of fume cupboards are located.

The OHS Branch offered 58 OHS courses, which were attended by 720 staff and students. In addition, the OHS Branch developed and presented a number of special short courses to meet the specific needs of some departments.

Industrial relations

Regulation 8(1)(m)

Both the Human Resources Services Branch and Industrial Relations Branch actively pursued a policy of conciliation with staff and their representatives, with the support of senior management, which resulted in a high level of cooperation and resolution of concerns, during a period of substantial change and integration following the mergers. The Industrial Relations Branch spent a considerable amount of time on negotiations with unions on award restructuring for general staff and continued to monitor implementation issues resulting from the 1991 academic award restructuring decision. Regular meetings with local and State union officials served to address problems at an early stage and minimise industrial disruption across all campuses.

Officers of the Industrial Relations Branch continued to provide advice to managers and staff on terms and conditions of employment, relocation, performance, redundancy and separation issues across the university. Officers also participated in the mediation, conciliation and resolution of internal industrial issues such as changes to working hours, shift arrangements, and the introduction of new classifications.

Memoranda of agreement on terms and conditions of employment were negotiated by the Industrial Relations Branch with unions for academic and general staff transferring to the employment of the university as a result of the merger of the Victorian College of Pharmacy and the university. Existing memoranda of agreement relating to terms and conditions of employment for former Chisholm and Gippsland Institute academic and general staff were also updated.

A series of seminars was provided by the Industrial Relations Branch for supervisors of general staff on performance and disciplinary procedures. Further seminars, including a new supervisors program, are planned for early 1993.

Regular meetings with local and State union officials served to address problems at an early stage and minimise industrial disruption across the university.

Significant progress was made during the year towards common industrial relations policies and procedures throughout the university.

Freedom of information

Regulation 8(1)(n)

In 1992, the university received 34 requests under the Freedom of Information Act, of which 15 related to access to examination results/script books, and as such were routine requests and were handled outside the Act. The remaining requests were distributed between academic, personal and administrative records. Full access was granted to documentation in 10 cases, with partial access granted in nine cases. One request was subject to an internal review and was then considered by the Administrative Appeals Tribunal who upheld the university's decision to deny access. The tribunal also upheld the university's decisions in two further cases carried over from the previous year.

Major committees (external)

Regulation 8(1)(o)

There are no major committees established by Monash but external to the university, which deal with public policy matters.

Prices, rates and levies

Regulation 8(1)(p)&(q)

Overseas students who successfully sought admission into courses were enrolled on a full-fee paying basis. In addition, a number of postgraduate courses were offered on a fee paying basis.

The student amenities fees in 1992 were $176 for full-time and $95 for part-time at Caulfield or Frankston campuses, and $325 for full-time, $204 part-time and $142 minimum part-time at Clayton. The Gippsland student amenities fee was $120 for full-time, $60 for part-time and $60 for distance education.

Auditor-general's report

Audit Scope

The accompanying financial statements of Monash University for the year ended 31 December 1992, comprising balance sheet, revenue and expense statement, consolidated statement of changes in equity, statement of cash flows and notes to the financial statements, have been audited. The financial statements include the consolidated accounts of the economic entity, which consists of Monash University and its controlled entities as disclosed in note 2. The members of the University's Council are responsible for the preparation and presentation of the financial statements and the information they contain. An independent audit of the financial statements has been carried out in order to express an opinion on them as required by the Annual Reporting Act 1983.

The audit has been conducted in accordance with Australian Auditing Standards to provide reasonable assurance as to whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. The audit procedures included an examination, on a test basis, of evidence supporting the amounts and other disclosures in the financial statements, and the evaluation of accounting policies and significant accounting estimates. These procedures have been undertaken to form an opinion as to whether, in all material respects, the financial statements are presented fairly in accordance with Statements of Accounting Concepts and Australian Accounting Standards and comply with the requirements of the Annual Reporting Act 1983, so as to present a view which is consistent with my understanding of the financial position of Monash University and the economic entity and the results of their operations.

The audit opinion expressed on the financial statements has been formed on the above basis.

Audit Opinion

In my opinion, the financial statements present fairly the financial position of Monash University and the economic entity as at 31 December 1992 and the results of their operations for the year ended on that date in accordance with Statements of Accounting Concepts and Australian Accounting Standards and comply with the requirements of the Annual Reporting Act 1983.

1. Statement of accounting policies

The accounts have been prepared using an accrual basis of accounting in accordance with the accounting standards issued by the Australian accounting bodies except where stated otherwise, and with the disclosure requirements of the Annual Reporting Act 1983 and the Annual Reporting (Contributed Income Sector) Regulations 1988 as amended.

(a) Non-current Assets

For the years up to and including 1988 the distinction between capital and recurrent expenditure was not maintained in the Monash University accounting system. The purchases of equipment and the construction of buildings during each accounting period were recorded as recurrent expenditure in that year's accounts.

(i) Depreciation on equipment, buildings and library books has been recorded as an expense item in the Revenue and Expense Statement. Depreciation is computed on the straight-line method over the estimated useful life of the assets.

(ii) Equipment

Purchases of equipment valued at $1,000 or more made during 1989, 1990 and 1991 were recorded in the annual accounts as non-current assets.

Items of equipment valued at $1,000 or more acquired prior to 1989 were recorded at cost in the 1989 accounts under the heading "Non-current Assets". The credit side of the entry was recorded in the Asset Revaluation Reserve. Likewise, the accumulated depreciation on this equipment prior to 1989 was recorded in the 1989 accounts, the debit side of the entry being recorded in the Asset Revaluation Reserve.

In the 1992 accounts, only those items of equipment valued at $5,000 or more have been recognised as Non-Current Assets. The cost of items valued at less than $5,000 purchased in 1992 amounting to $12,720,000 has been recorded in the Revenue and Expense Statement as an item of abnormal expense. The total cost of items of equipment valued at less than $5,000 acquired prior to 1989 has been debited against the Asset Revaluation Reserve and the item "Non-Current Assets, Equipment at cost" has been reduced accordingly. Likewise the depreciation accumulated prior to 1989 on the same items of equipment has been debited in total against the accumulated depreciation on equipment, the credit side of the entry being recorded in the Asset Revaluation Reserve, (net debit against Asset Revaluation Reserve of $1,653,000, refer Consolidated Statement of Changes in Equity). The book value of items of equipment purchased in 1989, 1990 and 1991 and valued at less than $5,000 amounting to $3,444,000 has been recorded in the Revenue and Expense Statement for the year ended 31 December 1992 as an item of abnormal expense. The items "Non-Current Assets, Equipment at cost" and "Accumulated Depreciation" have been reduced accordingly.

The non-current item "Equipment", shown in the Balance Sheet, consists of the following:

Consolidated $000	Monash University $000	Consolidated $000	Monash University $000

(iii) Library Books

In 1991 the University's collection of library books was recorded at Directors' valuation. The valuation basis adopted in the current year is that recommended by the Department of Finance, Victoria i.e. by capitalising and depreciating past and current cost of the collection. The valuation is based on the following:

- (i) Text books having a useful life of 5 years;
- (ii) Reference/Research collection having a useful life of 50 years

Movements in the valuation at 31 December, 1991 amounting to $120,108,000 have been taken direct to the Asset Valuation Reserve (refer Consolidated Statement of Changes in Equity).

The non-current item “Library Books”, shown in the Balance Sheet, consists of the following:

(iv) Land and Buildings

The total value of land and buildings has been established by formal valuation by the Valuer General of Victoria as at 31 December, 1992.

In addition, the Victorian College of Pharmacy which merged with Monash University on 1 July 1992, had a valuation of land and buildings at independent valuation at 31 December 1992, which is included in the 1992 accounts.

During the year Monash University Foundation Trustees entered into a contract for the purchase of land situated at 133–153 Wellington Road Clayton. The deposit was paid in 1992. The balance of approximately $8.1M is expected to be paid early in 1993.

16. Superannuation funds

The University contributes to the following superannuation funds on behalf of employees.

(a) Superannuation Scheme for Australian Universities

This scheme is a defined benefit scheme and the University makes contributions at the rate of 14% of gross salary.

Employees contribute at the rate of 7% of gross salary.

The last actuarial review of the scheme was in December 1991 and indicated the fund was in a strong financial position, ie the scheme has no unfunded liability. Total contributions by the University for the year ended 31 December 1992 were $16,717,006 (1991 $15,780,794).

(b) "M" Superannuation Scheme

This scheme is a defined benefit scheme and the University makes contributions at the rate of 12.6% of gross salary.

Employees contribute at the rate of 6.3% of gross salary.

The last actuarial review of the scheme was in December 1990, and indicated the fund was in a strong financial position, ie the scheme has no unfunded liability. Total contributions by the University for the year ended 31 December 1992 were $100,884 (1991 $98,430).

(c) Superannuation Scheme ("A" Scheme)

This scheme was introduced under Statute 3.6 of the Monash University Act and is an endowment assurance benefit scheme. The University makes contributions at the rate of 10% of gross salary.

Employees contribute at the rate of 5% of gross salary.

Total contributions by the University for the year ended 31 December 1992 were $116,991 (1991 $112,602).

(d) Monash University (Non-Academic)
Superannuation Scheme

This scheme is an endowment assurance benefit scheme and the University makes contributions at the rate of 5% of gross salary.

Employees contribute at the rate of 5% of gross salary.

Total contributions by the University for the year ended 31 December 1992 were $3,565 (1991 $3,335).

(e) Tertiary Education Superannuation
Scheme/Superannuation Guarantee Charge

This scheme is a cash accumulation productivity scheme and the University makes contributions at a rate of 3% to 4% of gross salary. Employees have no requirement to contribute, and the scheme has no unfunded liability.

Total contributions by the University for the year ended 31 December 1992 were $5,254,730 (1991 $4,261,222).

(f) State Superannuation Board of Victoria

Monash University has, in its staffing profile, a number of employees who are members of the State Superannuation Board of Victoria.

As at 30 June 1992 the State Superannuation Board of Victoria was carrying total liabilities for members benefits, in excess of the value of the scheme's assets. Hence, unfunded superannuation liabilities exist which are recognised in the financial statement of the scheme. The notional share of this public sector employee superannuation scheme's unfunded liabilities attributable to Monash University, as assessed by the scheme as at 30 June 1992, amounted to $33,504,000 including Gippsland Campus.

During the 1992 period Monash University's contributions to the scheme totalled $3,007,541. There were no outstanding employer contributions as at 31 December 1992.

The policy adopted for calculating employer contributions is based on the advice of the scheme's trustees, but generally the contribution rate represents 79.2% of pensions payable.

In making the above disclosure by way of note only, the fact is recognised that the unfunded superannuation liabilities rest ultimately with the Crown, rather than with Monash University.

(g) Pharmaceutical Organizations (1975)
Superannuation Fund

Contributions are made by the Victorian College of Pharmacy to the "Pharmaceutical Organizations (1975) Superannuation Fund" which is an employee contributory scheme. During the period 1 July 1992 to 31 December 1992 the contributions by the College to the scheme totalled $10,296.

1. Statutory Reporting Requirements

Montech Pty. Ltd. is a company incorporated on 1 December, 1986 established by Monash University under the authority of section 35B of the Monash University Act 1958. The principal objects of the company are to undertake research, development, consultancy and other services for commercial organisations, public bodies or individuals and also to promote the use of the results of University research.

The 1992 financial statements of Montech Pty. Ltd. and of the group have been prepared pursuant to section 35B of the Monash University Act, as well as the Corporations Law.

2. Statement of Accounting Policies

The financial statements have been drawn up in accordance with the Corporations Law (including the requirements of Schedule 5), Statements of Accounting Concepts and applicable accounting standards. They are compiled on a going concern basis adopting the principles of historical cost accounting and do not reflect current valuations of non-current assets except where stated. A letter of comfort has been received by the directors from Monash University which owns all the share capital of the company, stating that the University will support the company financially to ensure that the company can pay its debts as and when they fall due. Unless noted, the accounting policies adopted are consistent with those of the previous year.

(a) Principles of Consolidation

The economic entity financial statements incorporate the assets and liabilities of all controlled entities of Montech Pty Ltd as at 31 December 1992 and the results of all controlled entities for the year then ended. The effects of all transactions between entities incorporated in the economic entity financial statements are eliminated in full.

(b) Revenue Recognition

Revenue is generally recognized when project funds are received and to a minor extent when accounts are rendered. The unexpended portion of project funds, after recognising company fees as income, is shown as a current liability and disclosed in the profit and loss account as a provision for project expenses.

(c) Capitalisation of Assets

All assets purchased from general company funds are capitalised and depreciated over the useful lives of the assets.

Project assets purchased during the year from project revenue are capitalised in the books of Montech Pty. Ltd. where it has been identified that the company retains ownership of the assets.

A transfer is made from retained losses to contributed capital for project revenue expended on fixed assets so that retained losses reflect the true accumulated operating result.

Assets which are transferred to Monash University are treated as a reduction of the contributed capital account. These assets were purchased for projects, however are no longer required by those projects.

(d) Income Tax

The company is exempt from income tax pursuant to section 23(e) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936, as amended.

1. Statement of Accounting Policies

The directors consider that the company is not a reporting entity as it is unlikely that users exist who are unable to command the preparation and presentation of financial reports tailored to satisfy their information needs.

Accordingly, the financial statements are special purpose financial reports prepared for distribution to members in accordance with the company's Articles of Association. They are compiled on a going concern basis adopting the principles of historical cost accounting and do not reflect current valuations of non-current assets except where stated.

The accounts are prepared in accordance with the Corporations Law (including the requirements of Schedule 5), Statements of Accounting Concepts and applicable Accounting Standards, with the exception of the following, where, in the opinion of the directors, compliance was not required in order for the accounts to present a true and fair view:

AASB1017 – Related Party Disclosures

Unless noted, the accounting policies adopted are consistent with those of the previous year.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Plant and equipment (except where leased) are stated at cost less accumulated depreciation.

The carrying amounts of plant and equipment are reviewed annually by directors to ensure that they do not exceed their recoverable amounts. Recoverable amounts are assessed as the net amounts expected to be recovered through the cash inflows and outflows arising from an asset's continued use and subsequent disposal. The expected net cash flows have not been discounted to present values in determining recoverable amounts.

Depreciation

Depreciation is based on the straight-line method of calculation.

It is provided on all fixed assets so as to write off the cost of the assets over their estimated economic lives.

Leases and Instalment Transactions

Leases are treated in the financial statements as either finance leases or operating leases.

For finance leases, the capital components of the asset and corresponding liability are capitalised as substantially all the risks and benefits incidental to ownership of the leased property are passed to the lessee. The fixed assets are amortised so as to write off the capitalised value of the assets over their estimated economic lives. Amortisation is based on the straight-line method of calculation. Interest is written off as an expense as it is applied under the contract. Operating leases in which the risks and benefits of ownership remain with the lessor are included as an expense in the financial statements to the extent of payments made during the year.

Inventories

Inventories are valued at the lower of cost and net realisable value.

Employee Benefits

Charges have been made in the financial statements for benefits accruing to employees in relation to annual leave. Long service leave is accrued in respect of all employees after five years service at the levels prescribed by the relevant awards.

The accruals are allocated into current and non-current portions – the current portion including all annual leave and long service leave in respect of employees with a present entitlement.

Income Tax

No income tax expense is charged and no tax is payable by the company as the Australian Taxation Office has granted the company an exemption from tax.

16. Superannuation Benefits

The directors, having regard to the number of persons and the nature of the particulars, consider that the provision of full details of each payment made by way of superannuation and retiring gratuities would be unreasonable.

17. Superannuation Commitments

Employees are entitled to benefits on retirement, disability or death. The superannuation plan provides benefits based on contributions for each employee. The company contributes to the plan at a rate of 5% of the employee's gross salary.

Actuarial assessments of the plans have been undertaken. Based on these assessments, the directors are of the view that the assets of the fund are sufficient to satisfy all the benefits that would be vested under the plan in the event of termination of the plan and voluntary or compulsory termination of employment of each employee.

Summary of significant accounting policies

The accounts have been prepared in accordance with Statements of Accounting Concepts, applicable Accounting Standards, the applicable disclosure requirements of the Corporations Regulations, and Section 35B of the Monash University Act.

The accounts are prepared in accordance with the historical cost convention. The accounting policies adopted are consistent with those of the previous year.

Depreciation of Fixed Assets

Property, plant and equipment are included at cost or independent or directors' valuation. All assets, excluding freehold land and buildings, are depreciated over their estimated useful lives commencing from the time the assets are held ready for use.

Income Tax

Tax effect accounting procedures are followed whereby the income tax expense in the profit and loss account is matched with the accounting profit (after allowing for permanent differences). Income tax on net cumulative timing differences is set aside to the deferred income tax and future tax benefit accounts at current rates.

The company, in normal course of events, will not have any income tax liability as it is its usual practice to set aside an amount of donation to Monash University at each year end to equate any taxable income which may arise. This amount is paid subsequent to year end.

Personnel Costs

All personnel of the Monash-ANZ Centre are on the payroll of Monash University. They are paid direct by the University, which then invoices the company for amounts paid. These payments are reflected as Personnel Costs in the company's accounts.

Intangible Assets

Where significant expenditure can be identified as contributing to expected future revenue, it is carried forward and amortised on a basis related to expected future revenues.

Leases

Leases of fixed assets, where substantially all the risks and benefits incidental to the ownership of the asset are transferred to the company, are classified as finance leases. Finance leases are capitalised recording an asset and a liability equal to the present value of the minimum lease payments, including any guaranteed residual value. Leased assets are amortised over their estimated useful lives. Lease payments are allocated between the reduction of the lease liability and the lease interest expense for the period. Lease payments under operating leases are charged as expenses in the periods in which they are incurred.

Industry and Geographical Segments

The company's activities are those of an international briefing centre in Australia.

Controlling entity

The controlling entity of the company is Monash University which holds all of the issued shares in the company.

Related party transactions

(a) Regular funding is allocated by Monash University to the company from sponsorship/donation funds received by the University on the company's behalf from ANZ Banking Group Ltd and the Helen M. Schutt Charitable Trust.

(b) The company pays Monash University "personnel costs" amounting to salaries and on-costs paid at commercial rates by the University to University employees performing duties for the company.

(c) The company receives fees on commercial terms for consultancy services provided to the University.

Going concern

Notwithstanding the deficiency of net assets in the company, the accounts have been prepared on a going concern basis adopting the principles of historical cost accounting. This basis has been applied as the directors have received a guarantee of continuing financial support for the company from Monash University in the form of regular funding, and it is the directors' belief that such financial support will continue to be made available.

1. Statement of accounting policies

The financial statements, being a special purpose financial report, have been prepared solely for distribution to the members for the purpose of fulfilling the requirements of the Corporations Law.

The financial statements have been prepared in accordance with the accrual basis of accounting as defined in AASB 1001, the applicable disclosure requirements of Schedule 5 to the Corporations Regulations and applicable Accounting Standards, except for:

- (i) AASB 1005 "Financial Reporting by Segments"
- (ii) AASB 1017 "Related Party Disclosures"
- (iii) AASB 1020 "Accounting for Income Tax (Tax Effect Accounting)".

The company has applied Accounting Standard AASB 1025 "Application of the Reporting Entity Concept and other Amendments". Since the directors consider the company is not a reporting entity as defined in AASB 1025, the company is not required to comply with other Accounting Standards. In addition, Statements of Accounting Concepts have not been complied with as they do not apply to the company.

The above Accounting Standards have not been complied with since the directors consider the cost of compliance outweighs the benefits to members of the resulting information and that non-compliance with those Standards does not affect the truth and fairness of the financial statements.

The financial statements have been prepared on the basis of historical costs and do not take into account changing money values or, except where stated, current valuations of non-current assets. The carrying amounts of all non-current assets are reviewed at least annually to determine whether they are in excess of their recoverable amount. If the carrying amount exceeds the recoverable amount, the asset is written down to the lower value. In determining the recoverable amounts of non-current assets, the relevant net cash flows have not been discounted to their present values, as permitted by AASB 1010.

The accounting policies have been consistently applied, unless otherwise stated.

The following is a summary of the significant accounting policies adopted by the company in the preparation of the financial statements.

(a) Principal Activities

The company operates as a property management and investment company.

(b) Income Tax

The company adopts the liability method of tax-effect accounting whereby the income tax expense shown in the profit and loss account is based on the operating profit before income tax adjusted for any permanent differences.

Timing differences which arise due to the different accounting periods in which items of revenue and expense are included in the determination of operating profit before income tax and taxable income, are brought to account as either provision for deferred income tax or an asset described as future income tax benefit at the rate of income tax applicable to the period in which the benefit will be received or the liability will become payable.

(c) Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment are brought to account at cost or at director's valuation less, where applicable, any accumulated depreciation or amortisation. The carrying amount of property, plant and equipment is reviewed annually by directors to ensure it is not in excess of the recoverable amount from those assets.

The depreciable amount of all fixed assets including buildings and capitalised leased assets, but excluding freehold land, are depreciated over their useful lives commencing from the time the asset is held ready for use. Leasehold improvements are amortised over the shorter of either the unexpired period of the lease or the estimated useful lives of the improvements.

(d) Leases

Leases of fixed assets, where substantially all the risks and benefits incidental to the ownership of the asset, but not legal ownership, are transferred to the company, are classified as finance leases. Finance leases are capitalised recording an asset and a liability equal to the present value of the minimum lease payments, including any guaranteed residual value. Leased assets are amortised over their estimated useful lives. Lease payments are allocated between the reduction of the lease liability and the lease interest expense for the period. Lease payments under operating leases are charged as expenses in the periods in which they are incurred.

(e) Prepayment

As a hedge against a rise in interest rates, the company entered into agreements with its principal banker to limit its exposure to interest rate variations.

For that purpose an interest rate cap covering a period of five years was entered into with effect from 23 May 1992.

An interest rate swap arrangement with a currency of one year was entered into on 25 May 1992.

The interest rate cap costs are being amortised over the term of the agreement, and the premium costs associated with the interest rate swap are being expensed as incurred.

(f) Going Concern

Notwithstanding the deficiency of net assets in the company, the accounts have been prepared on a going concern basis adopting the principles of historic cost accounting. This basis has been applied as the directors have received a guarantee of continuing financial support for the company from Monash University in the form of regular funding, and it is the directors' belief that such financial support will continue to be made available.
