

CREATE A FUTURE OF LIFE-CHANGING OPPORTUNITIES

You can empower future generations – see how.

A GIFT IN YOUR WILL CAN CHANGE IT. FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS.

Your time at the Victorian College of Pharmacy was filled with learning, connections and life experiences that helped shape who you are today.

Thank you for making a difference and embracing the world of pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences. For the work you have done, your contribution to the industry, and continuing your support for the future of our Faculty.

We celebrate just a few of the journeys that started in the Faculty of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences that help make our community so special. We are thankful for all the support and commitment to the future and acknowledge the incredible impact these supporters will make for future generations.

John and Lyn Coppock A gift for future generations

After graduating from the Victorian College of Pharmacy in 1954, John Coppock built a long and successful career and business, both in his own pharmacy and on numerous boards, including a position on the Faculty Foundation Board at Monash.

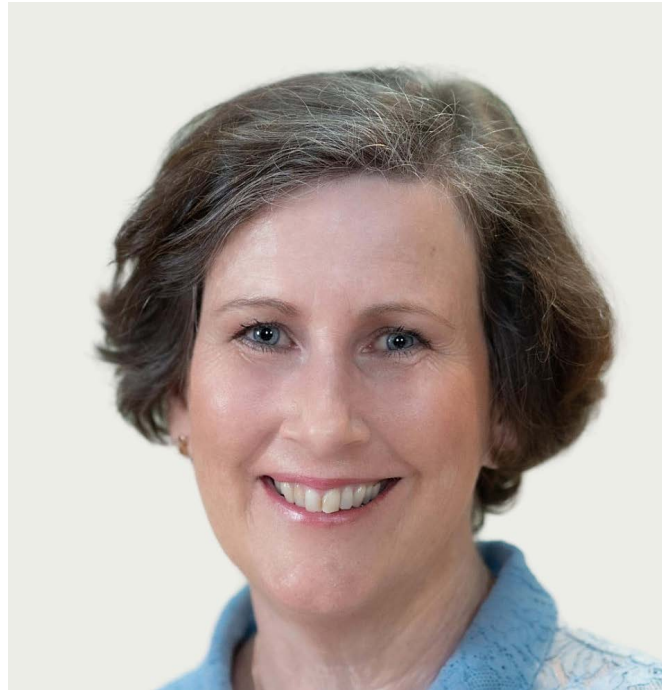

When considering their Will, John and his wife Lyn reflected not only on the transformational role that pharmacy has played in their lives, but how the Faculty itself has transformed: “The Faculty of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences at Monash has become an international star in its own right, world-renowned and is emphasising all the things that pharmacy does best.”

John and Lyn saw the direct impact that quality education can have on global health, observing that having more well-trained pharmacy professionals enhances the wellbeing of the whole population.

Their generous gift in Will to the Faculty of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences will play a pivotal role in the education of future generations, with John observing: “When I look at those students, I feel like I’m looking at the future.”

“It is my hope that in another 50 years the study of pharmacy will have evolved even further into something we can’t even imagine today.”

Susan Yule

A gift that opens global opportunities

When she enrolled, Susan Yule had no idea where her pharmacy degree would take her. Today, she reflects on a career which has spanned the US, the UK and Europe. Her work has been incredibly varied, meaningful and impactful.

For Susan, pharmacy is entwined with her own family history. When her father went to the Victorian College of Pharmacy, pharmacists achieved a trade certificate and then worked in pharmacies and hospitals. Today, current PhD students like Susan’s niece are developing work which is vastly different. She marvels at how dramatically the field has evolved over the years, and is awed by the potential of the future:

When considering her gift, Susan realised that there is something more she can do once she retires. Her gift can continue her positive impact on the future of pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences.

Dr Graeme Robson

A life-changing gift to honour a life lived well

Stan Robson, Graeme's father, graduated from the Victorian College of Pharmacy in 1931, embarking on his 60 year career of kindness and dedication to his profession and his customers.

To honour his legacy, Stan's son Dr Graeme Robson made a generous bequest to the Monash Faculty of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences "to acknowledge the generous and thoughtful support given to me by my father in encouraging my career and fostering those values of fairness, loyalty, personal responsibility and integrity that he regarded as so important to living."

With this gift in Will, the Faculty has been able to establish a scholarship so that talented students like Kelly Chen choose Monash as the place they can turn their passion for pharmacy into reality.

"I decided to choose Monash University as [Pharmacy] is ranked second in the world. I believe that studying at this university will provide me with invaluable opportunities."

Kelly is now on her way to complete her Masters, and can't wait to make her own impact. "I am extremely grateful for Dr Graeme Robson's generosity. This scholarship has relieved financial stress and allowed me to focus better on my academic studies."
