A forward-thinking, interdisciplinary course that integrates the knowledge needed to manage projects and programs across multiple sectors.

Learn how to critically analyse complex problems, identify adaptive approaches and use innovative practices to deliver outcomes and manage complex projects. Study alongside innovative professionals from a range of industries – including engineers, lawyers and architects – and build a network of like-minded colleagues.

You’ll work on real-life projects and gain hands-on project leadership experience in a range of areas. The degree is tailored for flexibility, giving you the option to study part time, full time or in block mode. You’ll also be supported with online mentors and you can focus on one discipline or choose from a range of discipline-specific electives covering IT, business, engineering, law and sustainability.

Course structure

The course is structured in three parts, Part A, Foundations for project management studies, Part B, Core master’s studies, and Part C, Advanced practice studies. All students complete Part B. Depending upon prior qualifications, you may receive credit for Part A or Part C or both.

Part A. Foundations studies
- Principles of managing projects
- Managing the project context
- Techniques for managing projects
- Delivering projects

Part B. Core studies
- Organising the project function
- Project as a social system
- Innovation in the project context
- Managing project knowledge

You must complete 24 credit points at either level 4 or 5. Elective units may be chosen from the Faculty of Business and Economics or across the University as long as you have the prerequisite and there are no restrictions on enrolling in the units.

Part C. Advanced studies
One of the following:
- Professional practice and Industry Experience
- Student project
- Management Research Methods and Research report
“I chose the Master of Project Management to further my career and it’s definitely educated me on various industries and how to work collaboratively with people from different professional backgrounds. Being challenged by varied perspectives has helped me grow professionally and has advanced my problem-solving and creative abilities, while also enhancing my communication and leadership skills. What I’ve enjoyed the most is interacting and learning from the guest lecturers, who are all pioneers and thought leaders in their respective fields. Project management skills are essential in today’s competitive and progressive world. When I graduate, I hope to work in HR and change management roles in the business consulting industry.”
