

TAKING PARAMEDIC RESEARCH TO THE NEXT LEVEL HONOURS PROGRAM IN PARAMEDICINE

Monash University is at the forefront of professional education for paramedics in Australia offering a comprehensive suite of integrated programs in paramedicine.

The Honours degree in Paramedicine is designed to develop graduates who will contribute to research in the four focus areas: advancing paramedicine practice, enhancing paramedic education, improving paramedic wellbeing, and expanding roles for paramedics in the wider health system.

The course aims to help high-achieving students acquire the knowledge, skills and attitudes to achieve excellence in research scholarship, and is a direct pathway for higher research training including PhD and Research Masters. In addition to working as ambulance paramedics, honours students can contribute to the growing area of out-of-hospital research.

OUTCOMES

Graduates of the Honours program are trained and equipped to:

- Demonstrate personal and professional development through the fostering of appropriate ethical research behaviours and considerations
- Demonstrate advanced communication and presentation skills and develop advanced knowledge and critical appraisal in a chosen field of study
- Demonstrate competence in research methodology, analysis and problem solving centred around an evidence based research project
- Identify, describe, design and evaluate enhancements to community based emergency health practice using the best available evidence and appropriate frameworks
- Review, analyse, consolidate and synthesise a variety of resources in order to respond to out-of-hospital health issues based on science, knowledge and evidence
- Contribute to the literature in a selected area of paramedic research.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Entry into this Honours degree requires the successful completion of the Bachelor of Paramedicine degree with an average of 70% or higher in at least 24 credit points at third year level.

For acceptance into the Honours degree, applications from graduates of paramedic degrees from other universities will need to demonstrate that they have achieved an appropriate academic standard to the above. Minimum entrance requirements for admission to Monash University Australia also apply.
