The Handbook

The handbook will provide you with your degree structure and the course requirements you have to meet to complete your degree.

It is important that you refer to the year in which you began your course:
http://www.monash.edu/pubs/handbooks/

The Bachelor of Laws and Bachelor of Engineering (Honours) section of the handbook includes:

• Course structure and unit requirements
• Learning Outcomes
• Alternative exits
• Progression to further studies.
The Bachelor of Laws is divided into four parts or areas of knowledge, which are completed simultaneously over the duration of your degree.

Let’s Enrol!
Get Started

• In order to accept your offer and enrol you need to follow the steps in Get Started to create a computer account, register your details and then complete your online enrolment.

• Domestic students, you will need to create or retrieve your Unique Student Identifier (USI)

• All students must enrol for a full year but don’t worry you can amend your enrolment at a later stage.
Enrolling into your subjects

Almost all amendments to your enrolment can be done via WES. Once you have registered your details you will be able to add and remove subjects.

If you’re unable to enrol yourself please submit an Enrolment Amendment Form.

Tip! Your enrolment will only have been changed if you receive a transaction number that starts with the letter U. If you do not receive this, your enrolment has not been changed.
Allocate+ is the system you will use to choose the particular stream of a class that you would like to attend. You need to do this each semester.

You can find out the available streams using the Monash Class Timetable.

Once you are enrolled you will be able to log into Allocate+ and pick your preferences for your classes. Step by step instructions can be found here.

Tip! Have a look at the Allocate+ Dates so that you don’t miss out on your preferences.
What if I have credit or am applying for credit?

- It is important that you enrol in a standard enrolment in order to secure your place in your degree.
- Your enrolment can be amended after your credit application has been processed.
- You can apply for credit online for completed university level subjects.
- You can use the online search engine to search for previous credit decisions to give you an idea of what you may be granted.

Tip! If you are granted credit for Law units and are unsure of how to amend your enrolment you can request course advice online.
