Currently the President of the Monash Student Association, I’ve spent the last 18 months working tirelessly to enhance the student experience at Monash. As Activities Officer last year, I sought to revamp campus culture and deliver a vibrant campus life, resulting in events such as Wednesday Sessions, HSP Fest and Cultural Food Festivals.

As President this year, I’ve looked to expand the MSA’s work across numerous areas, including:

- Collaborating with the Buildings and Property Division in efforts to increase capacity on the 601 bus and implement more student-friendly opening-hours for study spaces.
- Initiating a review of academic policies, including lobbying for the provision of more high quality practice exams.
- Working alongside the University, Local and Federal Government on plans to review and improve lighting around campus.
- Overseeing the rollout of expanded welfare services, including more free food, an extended Welfare on Wheels program and the establishment of a Mental Health and Resilience Committee.

This progress, and more, has been achieved in just a few months. Now, I need your support in taking these efforts to the highest decision-making body at Monash.

Being a student isn’t easy. From the ever-changing learning environment and increasing cost of living, to the widespread struggle with mental health and more, students have it tough. That’s why you deserve a committed spokesperson - someone who’s spent thousands of hours improving the student experience - to effectively bring the student perspective to the heart of university decision-making.
