PhD Scholarship Opportunity

- School of Public Health and Preventive Medicine
- $33,106 tax-free stipend per annum (indexed)
- Funded by an Australian Research Council Grant
- Supportive, equitable working environment
- Principal Supervisor: Professor Alex Collie

Receive high quality research training while working on a 4 year program of research that aims to:

- determine the impacts of policy and policy change on work, health and quality of life,
- understand the experiences and impacts of Centrelink processes, and
- characterise the movement of people between workers' compensation and Centrelink systems.

The PhD candidate will work on one aspect of the research program, as a member of a broader research team.

The opportunity is suitable for people with either quantitative or qualitative skills, H2A honours or postgraduate qualifications, and interests in work, health and disability.
