"Why students need to consider Global Studies in these times of Crises"

Dr Gabriel Garcia Ochoa, Director, Bachelor of Global Studies

With many world crises looming, this session will give you insights into why we need more students taking the Bachelor of Global Studies. At its core, this degree questions what it means to be global, and prompts students to reflect on their rights and responsibilities as global citizens. Designed for high achieving, socially conscious students, this course teaches our students how to lead positive social change and excel in the workplace. Come along and hear how students will learn the necessary tools to understand, adapt, and address present and future crises and challenges, finding innovative solutions for them.

The Bachelor of Global Studies has its own Advisory Board, providing direct links into business, government and the non-profit sector.

“As the head of a global non-profit organisation, I work with people in multiple countries every day. I rely on a team that is skilled and adept at communicating across cultures and operating in a dynamic work environment… I’m very excited to contribute my practical experience from working in Afghanistan, Cambodia, South Africa and Germany to the program. I’m honoured to be able to assist in ensuring that students come out of the program with the knowledge and cross-cultural understanding that is required for working in a global context”.
