

2023 Australia-China Science and Innovation Forum: Bridging Industry and Academia in the Life Sciences

Date: Sunday 25th June – Tuesday 27th June

Venue: Monash Suzhou, China and online

Invitation to Sponsor

The 2023 Australia – China Science and Innovation Forum will spotlight leading-edge Australian and Chinese biomedical research collaborations and commercialisation. With a focus that is the business of regenerative medicine this exceptional meeting to be held at Monash University's Suzhou campus and will also have provision for attendance online.

The forum's program will identify and significantly promote connections and enhance collaborations and personnel exchange between the Australian and Chinese research and industry communities, focusing on the business aspects of regenerative medicine therapy development and commercialisation.

Key themes and benefits

The forum provides a unique platform for Australian and Chinese life science researchers from industry and academia to showcase and commercialise cutting-edge biomedical discoveries in treating infections, cancer, neurological disorders, cardiovascular and metabolic diseases and regenerative medicine.

Session Topics (*subject to change) will focus on Intellectual Property issues and determining commercial viability, investor management and supply chain considerations (Day 1 – Monday 26th June) and immuno-oncology, gene therapy, and tissue engineering (Day 2 – Tuesday 27th June).

The forum will also provide opportunities to network and foster commercial collaboration.

Target Audience

2023 Australia – China Science and Innovation Forum invites participants from academia, industry including small and large biotechnology companies and pharmaceuticals, bio entrepreneurs and investors, and service providers to engage with leading-edge researchers from Australia and China to advance the translation and commercialisation of tomorrow's therapies.

Marketing and promotion

Marketing and promotion for the 2023 Australia – China Science and Innovation Forum will be through appropriate forms of digital marketing, including email, e-brochures and social media. A targeted communications and promotion strategy will be developed, leveraging the communications channels available through other CCRM Hubs and existing contacts and partners.
