

RESIDENTIAL AGED CARE RESEARCH NETWORK

A National Centre for Healthy Ageing Initiative

The Residential Aged Care Research Network (RACReN) brings together aged care providers, workers, consumers and expert researchers seeking to improve health outcomes through innovation and collaboration.

A MULTIDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH NETWORK

Developed with aged care partners and stakeholders, we aim to maximise partnerships to foster innovative research collaboration and help build a more sustainable aged care sector.

We connect researchers and people who know about the residential aged care sector, looking to the sector for input into quality improvement gaps and research priorities.

Our network looks to inform the next generation of aged care research, co-designed with industry to deliver effective solutions to address some of the greatest challenges facing our ageing communities.

MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

As a member you can:

- Access expert advice on how to engage with universities and researchers
- Stay informed of practice-ready research innovations and workforce training opportunities through quarterly newsletters
- Help shape the National Centre for Healthy Ageing's research agenda
- Receive targeted invitations to work with researchers to solve problems important to you.

SCAN THE
QR CODE
TO JOIN!

National Centre
for Healthy Ageing

FOR MORE INFORMATION

P: 03 9904 4822

E: ncha.racren@monash.edu

W: ncha.org.au

A partnership between

