Monash University was established in Melbourne, Australia in 1958. In a little more than 50 years the University has earned an international reputation for research and teaching excellence.

As the largest Australian university, we have an international network of more than 300,000 alumni, five Australian campuses as well as a campus in Malaysia, a Joint Graduate School in China, a learning centre in Italy and a research centre in India. We also have a network of university partners across the globe, including a strategic alliance with the University of Warwick in the United Kingdom.

Monash University is the youngest member of Australia’s prestigious Group of Eight. The Group of Eight is an alliance of elite Australian universities recognised for their excellence in teaching and research. The universities in this alliance produce more than 70 per cent of all basic research conducted at Australia’s 39 public universities.

Monash University is ranked amongst the world’s most prestigious universities. We measure ourselves against international standards. We are:
- ranked in the top 100 of world universities (Times Higher Education World University Rankings, 2012 – 2015)
