Academic year begins at Teachers' College

As Franklin Teachers' College on Tuesday last week, 280 students started courses of training — 169 of those having been successful applicants for primary studentships, starting the two-year course for the Trained Primary Teacher's Certificate, and 119 being selected to start the new three-year course of training for the Diploma of Teaching (Primary).

Students are not registered as students, but are registered at the college in 1960 is expected to be about 400.

In welcoming the new students, the principal, Mr. C. A. Jenkins, explained that the college was entering a period of new and exciting development. The introduction of the new qualification, Diploma of Teaching (Primary), was a major step in teacher training in New South Wales.

Mr. Jenkins also pointed out that an extensive building program was necessary to cater for increasing numbers of students and that considerable work was still to be done. He said he was pleased to see the new building, the new library and a cafeteria.

At Frankston Teachers' College on Tuesday last week, 280 students started courses of training — 169 of these having been successful applicants for primary studentships, starting the two-year course for the Trained Primary Teacher's Certificate, and 119 being selected to start the new three-year course of training for the Diploma of Teaching (Primary).

Enrolments are not complete at present, but total attendance at the college in 1968 is expected to be about 640.

In welcoming the new students, the principal, Mr. G. A. Jenkins, explained that the college was entering a period of new and exciting development. The introduction of the new qualification, Diploma of Teaching (Primary), constituted a historic step in teacher training in Victoria.

Mr. Jenkins also pointed out that an extensive building program was necessary to cater for increasing numbers of students and that construction would soon start on a large, new building to incorporate administrative offices, lecture rooms, a new library and a cafeteria.

The principal congratulated the students on being successful applicants and wished them success and happiness during their stay at the college.

New members of staff are: Mrs. J. Hamilton (Infant Education), from Frankston Forest Primary; Mrs. M. Tart (Library), from Rosebud High; Miss S. Waring (Phys. Ed.), from Bendigo Teachers' College; Mr. R. Anderson (Education), from Cheltenham Primary; Mr. P. Clerici (Social Studies), from Cheltenham North Primary; Mr. B. Edmondson (Science), from Dallas North Primary; Mr. R. Greaves (Art/Craft), from Melbourne Teachers' College; Mr. D. L. Hunt (Education), from Toorak Teachers' College; Mr. G. Jones (Music), from the Music/Speech Staff; Mr. G. Pappas (English), from Valkstone Primary; Mr. K. Reed (Mathematics), from Glen Waverley Primary; Mr. T. Seedsman (Phys. Ed.), from the Phys. Ed. Staff.

The image displays two long, narrow strips of aged, yellowed paper, possibly a manuscript or a list of names, set against a dark background. The paper has a textured, slightly mottled appearance with some darker spots and a warm, yellowish-brown hue. The text is written in a dense, cursive script, filling the length of the strips. The strips are oriented diagonally, with the top right corner of the upper strip pointing towards the top right of the frame. The lower strip is partially visible on the right side of the image. The overall composition is simple, focusing on the texture and content of the aged paper.

New three-year course for primary teachers

As the start of this year, Frederick Teachers' College, along with the other primary teachers' colleges, introduced a new three-year course for the general preparation of primary teachers.

It is expected that within two or three years this will be the course taken by all students who offered the college Upon completing the course, students will receive the diploma of teaching (primary).

at all points and to supervise pupils, not only in their own schools but in their various subject sections. The new course will provide a general education of arts, social and the sciences, and a more advanced education in education.

New three-year course

The course of education at the college will be the same as that of the other colleges with a few modifications. It will be a three-year course of study leading to a diploma of teaching (primary).

The first year of the course will be devoted to the study of the sciences, social studies, and the arts. The second year will be devoted to the study of the sciences, social studies, and the arts. The third year will be devoted to the study of the sciences, social studies, and the arts.

Concern for students

The second year will be devoted to the study of the sciences, social studies, and the arts. The third year will be devoted to the study of the sciences, social studies, and the arts.

New three-year course for primary teachers

At the start of this year, Frankston Teachers' College, along with the other primary teachers' colleges, introduced a new three-year course for the general preparation of primary teachers.

It is expected that within two or three years this will be the course taken by all students who attend the college. Upon completing the course, students will receive the Diploma of Teaching (Primary).

For the time being, some two-year student-ships for the Trained Primary Teacher's Certificate will continue to be awarded, but there will be no more student-ships in the three-year course for the Trained Infant Teacher's Certificate, which will lapse when the present students complete it next year.

Seven hundred and seventy-six diploma student-ships were awarded by the Education Department in 1968, and Frankston's share of these was 127. In addition, the college admitted 168 students to the two-year course. The proportion of diploma students will increase year by year until all students are taking the diploma course.

All students in the new three-year diploma course have their Matriculation certificates or equivalent, and so have many in the two-year course. They are nominally entitled to admission to a university, and many would have been accepted in university quotas, strict though they are, had they wished to attend one.

Graduates from the two-year course who have gone to the U.S.A. or Canada have found that universities over there will give them some credits towards a degree. The three-year diploma course will earn even greater credits.

If they were training in England, many of these students would be allowed to proceed to a fourth year for a degree.

Some such arrangements will have to be introduced in Victoria, otherwise our primary teachers with Matriculation will have to face at least six years of full-time study to gain a degree.

Concern for individual

The diploma course at Frankston Teachers' College has been planned with due regard to the fact that children need to be loved and respected as persons and to experience warmth, security, encouragement, and a sense of achievement in their various school activities. The emphasis is upon the personal development of each child and the school's concern for each individual.

New three-year course

The needs of children can best be met by teachers with a good background of scholarship and culture, who will communicate worthy values to the children, and who are able to make an intelligent appraisal of trends and changes in the curriculum.

To get full value from this training for teachers, the community must ensure that buildings, equipment, libraries and the like are forthcoming, and that classes are reduced to a size where the individual can, in fact, be reached. Our young teachers will have the "know-how", but this will not be enough.

Teachers' college principals' talks at Frankston

The annual conference of the Australian Association of Principals of Teachers' Colleges will be held at Frankston Teachers' College from January 19 to 22.

It is expected that more than 30 principals will attend, representing a number of Australian States, New Guinea and New Zealand. At least five colleges from outside the State system will be represented.

The conference will be opened at 10 a.m. on Friday, January 19, by the Victorian Director-General of Education, Mr. F. H. Brooks.

After the initial tabling of a number of reports, the greater part of the program will be devoted to the presentation of various papers followed by group discussion. These papers will relate to such topics as the structure of three year courses in the training of teachers, the place of human relations training in the preparation of teachers, and the government of teachers' colleges.

Several social functions have been planned, including a mayoral reception at the Frankston Civic Centre, and a conference dinner at Monash University.

TEACHER COLLEGE PRINCIPALS WANT AUTONOMY

Divorcement by teachers' training colleges from State Education Departments was advocated by principals at the fourth annual conference of the Australian Association of Principals of Teachers' Colleges at Frankston last Friday, Saturday and Monday.

The principals hope for at least some measure of autonomy.

Highlight of the discussion was a five-point plan for reorganisation of teacher training.

There were 30 delegates at the conference. New Guinea, New Zealand and Western Australia were not represented but their principals are linked up with the Association.

CATHOLICS PRESENT

For the first time, Catholics representing independent teacher training colleges took part in the discussion.

Welcoming the visitors, the acting president of the association, Mr. W. Eunson, said the autonomy of teachers' colleges was inevitable. The entry of the Commonwealth Government into the field of education made this so.

Under increasing competitive conditions, some measure of autonomy as in other tertiary institutions was needed if teachers' colleges were not to become fourth-rate.

Training of teachers could lead into side channels without purpose. Autonomy for teachers' colleges could become a major political enterprise.

When the world Government was used, control of principals' policies was implied.

"We are, in effect, contemplating some form of organised society," added Mr. Eunson. "The problem we face leaves no areas of compromise."

The Director-General of Education for Victoria (Mr. F. H. Brooks), arrived late because of the strike of mail carriers. He had to make special arrangements for the payment of teachers' salaries.

Mr. Brooks told principals he would not dare to tell them how they should perform their jobs.

The association was pushing forward its frontiers with new methods. One of the problems with teacher training related to tertiary courses outside universities. He believed in a measure of autonomy for teachers' colleges which should be independent, but how available funds should be distributed was another question.

TEACHERS COLLEGES IN "VACUUM"

In disclosing his five-point plan for reorganisation of teacher training, Dr. Shears said colleges should be able to offer degrees.

Universities received finance through Australian University Commission recommendations and the advanced technical colleges had a Commonwealth Advisory Committee to recommend grants.

But teachers' colleges were in a Federal Government "vacuum". Although they had unmatched Federal grants, there was no formal machinery to ensure continuity of Federal support.

The five points were:

- Establishment of a Commonwealth Advisory Committee on Teacher Education to channel Commonwealth finance.

- A board of teacher education for each State.

- New procedures for determining staff salaries of appointments and conditions to allow high salaries and the possibility of attracting and keeping better staff from Australia and overseas.

- A new course structure ... three years for a diploma and four and five years for a pass and honor degree.

- Taking students from all sources and age groups, including married people, and withdrawing the requirement that students must be bonded to the Education Department.

Catholic principal ever to address the conference he got a tumultuous reception from all delegates.

He said there were three Catholic teachers' colleges in Victoria for first, second and third year students.

He represented the college at Box Hill for advanced students.

"Our difficulties are quite different from yours," said Father Murphy, with a grin and a twinkle in his eye.

"We have no salaries to consider and no problems about promotions or demotions."

Emphasis in Catholic teachers' colleges was on religion. Social activity was based on idealism and community service.

Students helped old-age pensioners and underprivileged people with their problems and where needed their chores.

Courses for its future teachers in Australia had been conducted by the Christian Brothers almost from their first day of arrival in Melbourne in 1868.

Minimum age for admission of students was 19. There were character, suitability and medical tests. The standard was matriculation but consideration was given to those with leaving certificates.

AUTONOMY FOR TEACHERS' COLLEGES URGED

Teachers' colleges should be independent, but how available finance should be distributed was another question.

Principals advocated a breakaway from State

Education Departments and the setting up of a financial structure in line with universities and colleges of advanced education.

Dr. L. W. Shears, principal of Burwood Teachers' College, propounded a five-point plan for re-organisation of teacher training. In his opinion, teachers' colleges should be able to offer students degrees. His emphasis was on prestige for teachers' colleges.

Universities, he said, received finance through Australian University Commission recommendations and the advanced technical colleges had a Commonwealth Advisory Committee to recommend grants.

But teachers' colleges were in a Federal Government "vacuum". Although they had received unmatched Federal grants, there was no formal machinery to ensure continuity of Federal support. They were largely dependent on State funds.

The plan pronounced by Dr. Shears was:

● Establishment of a Commonwealth Advisory Committee on Teacher Education to channel Commonwealth finance.

● A board of teacher education in each State.

● New procedures for determining staff salaries, appointments and conditions to allow higher salaries and the possibility of attracting and keeping better staff from Australia and overseas.

● A new course structure . . . three years for a diploma and four and five years for a pass and honours degree.

● Taking students from all sources and age groups, including married people, and withdrawing the requirement that students must be bonded to the Education Department.

FATHER MURPHY'S TALK

First Catholic principal to address the conference was the Rev. Father P. B. Murphy (Christian Brothers, Victoria).

Father Murphy said there were three Catholic teachers' training colleges in Victoria for first, second and third-year students. He represented the college in Canterbury Rd., Box Hill, for advanced students.

"Our difficulties are quite different from yours," said Father Murphy. "We have no salaries to consider and no problems about promotions or demotions."

Emphasis in Catholic teachers' colleges was on religion, Father Murphy said. Social activity was based on idealism and community service. Student teachers helped old-age pensioners and other under-privileged people with their chores and problems.

The congregation of the Christian Brothers started in Waterford, Ireland, in 1802. Today, five continents had educational institutions conducted by Christian Brothers.

AUTONOMY FOR TEACHERS' COLLEGES URGED — Conference

Severance from State Education Departments for teachers' colleges was by far the most important subject discussed at the fourth annual conference of the Australian Association of Principals of Teachers' Colleges, at Frankston, last Friday, Saturday and Monday week.

A five-point plan for reorganisation of teacher training by Dr. L. W. Shears, principal of Burwood Teachers' College, was the highlight of this discussion.

A multitude of questions, some academic and technical, affecting the training of teacher-students in Australia, New Guinea and New Zealand were discussed.

Although principals in West Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea are wedded to the association, they were not represented at the conference.

Because he had to organise the payment of salaries to teachers, the Director-General of Education for Victoria, Mr. F. H. Brooks, arrived late.

For the first time, Roman Catholic independent kindergarten, primary and secondary training teachers were represented among the 30 delegates.

VISITORS WELCOMED

Mr. W. Eunson, acting president of the association, who welcomed the visitors, said the autonomy of teachers' colleges was inevitable. The entry of the Commonwealth Government into the field of State education made this so.

Under increasing competitive conditions, some measure of autonomy as in other tertiary institutions was needed if teachers' colleges were not to become fourth-rate.

An eloquent advocate with a flair for giving a strong point impact, Mr. Eunson warned that the training of teachers could lead into side channels without purpose. Autonomy for teachers' colleges could become a major political enterprise.

When the word Government was used, control of principals' policies was implied.

"We are, in effect, contemplating some form of organised society," said Mr. Eunson. "The problem leaves no areas of compromise."

DIRECTOR-GENERAL'S ADDRESS

Apologising for his late arrival, the Director-General of Education for Victoria, Mr. Brooks, said he would not dare tell delegates how they should do their jobs. The association was pushing forward its frontiers with new methods. One of the problems with teachers' training related to tertiary courses outside universities. He believed in a measure of autonomy for teachers' colleges.

HUMAN RELATIONS

A fascinating talk was given by Mr. A. R. Greig, senior lecturer in psychology, Melbourne University, on "The Place of Human Relations Training in the Preparation of Teachers."

Despite fantastic scientific and technological advances in recent decades, the understanding and improvement of interpersonal relationships at all levels—in the home, the school and the work-place; in social, political and religious groups; and between States and nations—remained a major psycho-sociological problem, Mr. Greig said.

He went on: "We all attempt to behave in accordance with the self concept that we have come to believe is most likely to ensure for us the acceptance, love, respect and self-respect, the status, success and security that we, as individuals, need, and we tend to distort or exclude from awareness behavior that violates this self-respect."

The present courses in educational psychology in teacher training programs made little or no contribution to this problem, Mr. Greig contended.

He outlined group methods of human relations training in the U.S.A., England and Europe. A group, he said, was a collection of individuals who gathered for the purpose of examining the inter-personal relations and group interactions that they themselves generated. It started as a relatively uninstructed group in which individuals participated as learners.

A group provided an opportunity for each individual member to experience himself and to judge himself more fully in his relations with others.

In Australia, he was aware of only two applications by such groups to teacher training—one in Victoria, the other in Adelaide.

Mr. H. R. McWilliam, of Mercer House, Melbourne, gave a talk on "An Independent Teachers' College in Action."

He said there were nearly 70 non-Catholic independent schools in Victoria. The heads of them had banded together as an incorporate society known as Incorporated Association of Registered Teachers in Victoria.

TEACHERS TO CONFER

The annual conference of the Australian Association of Principals of Teachers' Colleges will be held at Frankston Teachers' College this weekend.

The conference will be opened on Friday morning by the Victorian Director - General of Education, Mr. F. W. Brooks, and will finish next Tuesday.

A Mayoral reception to the expected 30 delegates from Australia, New Guinea and New Zealand will be given at Frankston Civic Centre.

Degree status for teacher colleges urged

Principals of Australian teachers' colleges yesterday urged a break from the State Education Departments and advocated a financial structure similar to that of universities and colleges of advanced education.

A five-point plan for the reorganisation of teacher training was put by the principal of Burwood Teachers' College (Dr. L. W. Shears).

One of his suggestions was that the colleges be able to offer degrees.

Dr. Shears said teachers' colleges were in a Federal Government "vacuum."

Universities received finance through Australian Universities Commission recommendations, and the advanced technical colleges had a Commonwealth Advisory Committee to recommend grants.

But although the teachers' colleges had received unmatched Federal grants, there was no formal machinery to ensure continuing Federal support. They were largely dependent on State funds.

Dr. Shears is one of 28 delegates at the annual conference of the Australian Association of Teachers' College Principals at Frankston Teachers' College.

He warned that the colleges of advanced education, which were receiving finance through the Victoria Institute of Colleges, could usurp some of the functions of teachers' colleges.

"If we are not careful we will find that they have invaded teacher education," he said.

Dr. Shears said teachers' colleges could, if expanded to become degree-granting bodies, offer courses suitable for social workers, probation officers and youth leaders.

"Teachers' colleges have a great amount of know-how in human and social understanding. This has been our field for the past 100 years," he said.

Federal plan

The points of Dr. Shear's plan are: —

Establishment of a Commonwealth advisory committee on teacher education to channel Commonwealth finance.

A board of teacher education in each State. This was the only major recommendation of the Martin committee to be rejected by the Federal Government. The boards would be responsible for all colleges and act as an intermediary between the Commonwealth body.

New procedures for determining staff salaries, appointments and conditions to allow higher salaries and the possibility of attracting and keeping better staff from Australia and overseas.

A new course structure — three years for a diploma and four and five years for pass and honors degrees.

Taking students from all sources and age groups, including married people, and withdrawal of the requirement that students must be bonded to the Education Department.

Dr. Shears put his plan as a resolution to be voted on later at the conference.

ACTIVE CONCERN WITH SOCIAL ISSUES

The Current Affairs Club at Frankston Teachers' College was formed during the first term this year by a group of students who expressed a desire to concern themselves actively with social and political issues of society.

The general aim of the club is to encourage all students to take an active interest in the problems of society. A variety of activities is undertaken to achieve this aim. Meetings are held, papers of opinion, debate and presented, speakers invited to address student assemblies.

The club feels that there is no better way of getting active than, first, particularly for teachers of the future. The club endeavours to present all possible sides to any problem, together with the facts and background to it.

The students have held a series of meetings to discuss whether or not abortion is a social problem. It was decided to be held. The president of the Abortion Law Reform Society and a prominent young woman presented views for and against abortion law reform, respectively. To put these views in better perspective, the medical and legal aspects of the question were given by the college's medical officer and a legal solicitor, respectively.

The club also aims to have the topics which are discussed to be those of some relevance to the contemporary situation. In this presidential election year, the club was fortunate to have the American Consul to give a view of the role of the consul in American democracy. A film shown has helped students to understand the position of the consul in the American political scene.

Of the topics presented in contemporary Australian politics, economics, social issues, student representation, education and the law in Victoria have been discussed at student meetings. Among those who have come to the college and expressed their position on an issue of each meeting are Mr. Claude Haddock, M.L.A. of the Lib., Bruce Richmond, M.L.A. of the Labor, Mr. John Dutton, M.L.C., and Mr. Philip Lynch, M.L.B.

None of the topics to be discussed in the future are unimportant, and education, in relation, especially, the importance of society and the individual's role in it. These topics, although chosen, are all very real problems to the community.

The club considers that all citizens, teachers especially, because of their position, should be aware of the problems and ideas facing society so as to be able to play a more positive role as citizens in the community.

ACTIVE CONCERN WITH SOCIAL ISSUES

The Current Affairs Club at Frankston Teachers' College was formed during the first term this year by a group of students who expressed a desire to concern themselves actively with social and political issues of society.

The general aim of the club is to encourage all students to take an active interest in the problems of society. A variety of activities is undertaken to achieve this aim; meetings are held, surveys of opinion taken and prominent speakers invited to address student lunch-time meetings.

The club feels that there is no issue unworthy of serious discussion, particularly for teachers of the future. The club endeavors to present all possible sides to any problem, together with the facts and background to it.

The students have held a series of meetings to discuss whether or not abortion laws should be reformed. The president of the Abortion Law Reform Society and a prominent gynaecologist presented views for and against abortion law reform, respectively. To put these views in better perspective, the medical and legal aspects of the question were given by the college's medical officer and a local solicitor, respectively.

The club also aims to have the topics which are discussed to be those of some relevance to the contemporary situation. In this presidential election year, the club was fortunate to have the American Consul to give a view of the role of the intellectual in American democracy. His address has helped students to understand the peculiar forces that make up the American political scene.

Of the issues prominent in contemporary Australian politics, conscription, civil liberties, student responsibilities, education and the war in Vietnam have been discussed at student meetings. Among those who have come to the college and expressed their position on an issue at such meetings are Mr. Clyde Holding, MLA, the Rev. Bruce Silverwood, Mr. Ian Cathie, MLC, and Mr. Phillip Lynch, MHR.

Some of the topics to be discussed in the future are censorship, sex education in schools, apartheid, the homosexual in society and the Rhodesian situation. Some issues, although obscure, are still very real problems in the community.

The club considers that all citizens, teachers especially, because of their position, should be aware of the problems and issues facing society so as to be able to play a more positive role as citizens in the community.

MIR. HOLDING AT FRANKSTON . . .

Students "alienated" in value beliefs

It was a mistake to describe current student unrest as simply an expansion of stronger juvenile delinquent, the State Opposition leader, Mr. C. H. Holding, said at Frankston Teachers' College on Tuesday afternoon last week.

Addressing an audience of about 150 college students on "Civil Liberties and Conscience", Mr. Holding said that he believed today's student unrest was fundamentally different from that of the past, when it had usually been localized. Today's youth throughout the world was aware of a basic alienation from the values underlying advanced capitalist and Communist bureaucracies.

Students agreed to Mr. Holding's analysis of the situation, and they were unanimous in the Teachers' College assembly of about 100 people.

Mr. Holding said he had been told by a young professor, from Australia, that the student movement was not part of the system, but was a reaction to the system. He said that the student movement was not a reaction to the system, but was a reaction to the system.

MR. HOLDING AT FRANKSTON . . .

Students "alienated" in value beliefs

It was a mistake to dismiss current student unrest as simply an expression of overgrown juvenile delinquency, the State Opposition leader, Mr. Clyde Holding, said at Frankston Teachers' College on Tuesday afternoon last week.

Addressing an audience of about 150 college students on "Civil Liberties and Conscription", Mr. Holding said that he believed today's student unrest was fundamentally different from that of the past, when it had usually been localised. Today's youth throughout the world was aware of a basic alienation from the values underlying advanced capitalist and Communist beauracracies.

Student unrest in Victoria seemed to be closely related to Australia's involvement in the Vietnam war and part of the worldwide protest of student bodies generally.

Mr. Holding said he had been told by a visiting professor from Berkeley University, California, that the attitudes, terminology and even the action, on the campus at Monash University was inseparable from what was happening at Berkeley campus through Americans for Democratic Action.

Acts being committed in Vietnam as part of the Australian Government's responsibility were acts in which all had an individual moral responsibility, said Mr. Holding. There was no way in which we could escape the moral consequences of acts carried out in our name.

Positive act

This produced a proper attitude in students who said they wished to take some positive act to disassociate from this policy.

Mr. Holding said the Nuremberg Trials established the principle that torture, acts of rapine and liquidation of a whole people could never be justified under the defence of superior orders.

Political means of protest to the Vietnam war appeared to many to be inadequate. "Within the Australian political system, it was not always possible for the majority to effect changes by the democratic process. When there was an electoral gerrymander, it was neither illogical nor unjust to choose other ways of voicing protest to aspects of Government policy.

Mr. Holding said he believed there had been violence at demonstrations for two reasons. One was that a minority extremist group operating in the student body had decided that violence was now an appropriate form of protest, and the other was that many felt the normal method of protest was inadequate to convey the strength of their feelings; that it just produced increasing frustration.

Neither he nor the Australian Labor Party condoned political violence, "but we can understand it among young people in relation to Vietnam and conscription."

Because they were born on a particular day chosen by ballot, the Government said to young men that they were going to perpetrate violence and be involved in the process of taking lives while risking their own. At the same time, the Government was prepared to justify the treatment meted out to conscientious objectors at Holsworthy, so it was not surprising that young people who came into this class said that if this was the way the Government was prepared to handle young men, it could not expect young men, given a particular situation, not to throw stones at the U.S. Embassy.

However, the anti-war movement had always said it was based on reason and advocated co-operation and negotiation, so it must be prepared to implement this in its own activities.

Student unrest was just beginning to affect the community as a whole, and Monash University was looked on as a source of social danger.

Abandoning principles

Mr. Holding said the "political reactionaries" of the Democratic Labor Party and the conservatives of the Returned Services League had suggested students convicted of offences at demonstrations should be deprived of deal with such students, who had no more rights than the average citizen but should have no less. The action suggested by the DLP and RSL people was out of step with the basic principles of a democratic community and could be seen as an attempt to produce political conformism.

Mr. Holding then turned to the likely effect of the present sort of student protests on existing political institutions. He said it was worrying that some students not only rejected many of the norms of contemporary society—this was fair enough—but that while doing this, there was also endemically a total rejection of the democratic processes by which our present society could be changed.

The minute this was done, then the only way in which changes could be brought about was through the barrel of a gun, "and we reject this method." Mr. Holding said he had never met a student revolutionary leader who could shoot straight.

The A.L.P. had a special role to provide meaningful political challenge for present forms of student expression. He believed it was broad enough to embrace many of the aspects of current student protest.

ARMY MINISTER SEES TEACHERS' GROUP AT WORK

Mr Philip Lynch, Minister for the Army and Federal Member for Hinders, saw Frankston Teachers' College current affairs and political discussion group at action, last week, and was most impressed with the interest taken by members in community affairs.

The session was attended by teachers and staff and many of whom find themselves at the centre of the local action in their own and through war and the current action from it.

Mr Lynch was welcomed by Mr. William, who said the group's aim was to broaden its views by discussing community action and current issues and learning leading people speak at times.

Members wanted to be effective and not destructive in their outlook on social matters, and to achieve this required their best and to find all else to be an argument.

An experienced teacher, Mr. Lynch stated that he had been involved with an community action and the recent group from the community to an such extent.

Mr. Lynch recommended the group as the only one it was possible, he said, to see the group involved in trying to achieve something which would have a big influence on the children they would be teaching.

The group, at which Mrs. M. Channon is present and Mrs. B. Channon, secretary, and Mrs. B. Brown, treasurer, discussed the role of the National Organisation of Christian Communities, addressing issues of community and Christianity.

It was also noted that the group had been the subject of a recent article, grammatical.

ARMY MINISTER SEES TEACHERS' GROUP AT WORK

Mr Phillip Lynch, Minister for the Army and Federal Member for Flinders, saw Frankston Teachers' College current affairs and political discussion group in action, last week, and was most impressed with the interest taken by members in community affairs.

The session was attended by between 200 and 250 students, many of whom fired questions at Mr Lynch, after he had spoken to them on the Vietnam war and the issues arising from it.

Mr Lynch was welcomed by the chairman, Mr Daryl Burge-Lopez, who said the group's aim was to broaden its views by discussing controversial topics and current issues and hearing leading people speak on them.

Members wanted to be objective and not destructive in their outlook on vital matters and to achieve this, realised they had to hear all sides to an argument.

As prospective teachers, they felt they should be deeply concerned with all community affairs and the forum gave them the opportunity to air their views openly.

Mr Lynch congratulated the group on its aims and it was pleasing, he said, to see so many interested in trying to achieve something which must have a big influence on the children they would be teaching.

The group, of which Miss M. Channon is patron and Miss B. Champion, secretary, has had Rev. Bruce Silverwood, associate director of the Methodist Department of Christian Citizenship, addressing them on Conscience and Conscriptio.

It has also heard views on abortion from Dr Matthew O'Neill, gynaecologist,

Mr William Dye, chairman of the Abortion Law Reform Group, Dr A. Clements, of Frankston Teachers' College, and Mr Colin Taylor, solicitor, of Frankston.

College second at swim carnival

In one of the best team efforts for years, Frankston Teachers' College swimming team gained second place in "A" division of the Annual Combined Teachers' College Swimming Carnival for 1968.

While there were some excellent individual performances, it was the effort of every member that enabled the team to finish as well as it did.

Miss V. Wallace and Mr. W. Dolphin, who coached the team, expressed their appreciation of the effort which students put into their swimming in order to produce this fine result.

PLAY AT COLLEGE

Students of Frodoon Teachers' College, directed by Mrs. Margaret Brown, presented Nikolai Gogol's play, "The Government Inspector" in the college hall earlier this month.

Each night an appreciative audience enjoyed the performance of the flexible, personable students who were mistaken by the mayor and his subordinates for the Government Inspector.

The cast of 25 was composed entirely of students who found the experience of playing in formal and perfect work stimulating and worthwhile.

Students also attended to the many technical requirements backstage and to the play's production.

"The Government Inspector" was an excellent experience for all concerned.

PLAY AT COLLEGE

Students of Frankston Teachers' College, directed by Mrs. Margaret Brown, presented Nikolai Gogol's play, "The Government Inspector," in the college hall earlier this month.

Each night an appreciative audience enjoyed the adventures of the plausible, penniless scoundrel who was mistaken by the mayor and his administration for the Government inspector.

The cast of 23 was composed entirely of students, who found the experience of playing to friends and parents both stimulating and worthwhile.

Students also attended to the many technical requirements backstage and to the play's promotion.

"The Government Inspector" was an enjoyable experience for all concerned.

Who'll walk to Mordialloc?

As an important part of the Frankston effort for the Freedom from Hunger Campaign this year, Frankston Teachers' College students are organizing a "Hunger Walk".

Two hundred students have already indicated their support for this venture. It is hoped to recruit workers from all sections of the community to make this a rival of the other works created in Melbourne over recent months.

Who'll walk to Mordialloc?

As an important part of the Frankston effort for the Freedom From Hunger Campaign this year, Frankston Teachers' College students are organising a "Hunger Walk".

Two hundred students have already indicated their support for this venture. It is hoped to recruit walkers from all sections of the community to make this a rival of the other walks organised in Melbourne over recent months.

The proposed route is from Frankston to Mordialloc along Nepean Hwy., a distance of about 10 miles.

The time is Sunday, July 21, leaving Frankston from 1.30 in the afternoon.

There will be check points at about one-mile intervals, and refreshment stops on the way. Walkers may drop out at any point they wish.

Walkers are invited from sporting and service clubs, charitable organisations, churches and youth groups, to show their concern for the problem of world hunger in this way, and also to raise money to help meet this problem by obtaining sponsors.

Thousands of sponsors are needed. Any citizen or firm, who may not be able to take part in the walk, may sponsor one or several of the walkers, by agreeing to pay 5c. or more for every mile walked by their representative.

Walkers will be encouraged to obtain as many sponsors as possible by the offer of a valuable prize for the individual with the greatest number of sponsors. Other prizes may also be offered, including one for the walker to complete the course in the shortest time.

Public meeting to explain details

Further details may be obtained from the social secretary at the teachers' college, Miss Kit Schultz, or any of her committee, or by attending an open meeting tonight (Wednesday) in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church lounge, High St., Frankston, at 8 o'clock. Representatives of all organisations in Frankston are invited.

At this meeting, details will be outlined.

detail, and entry forms and sponsor forms will be available. Representatives will be asked to take this information back to their organisations.

Those who would like to receive an entry form by post, should ring the teachers' college SEC number, (783-4555), or ring 783-7602 and leave the name and address.

WALKING IN THE RAIN FOR $3000

It was not a nice Sunday afternoon for a 10-mile stroll — but 403 people set out from Frankston to do just that last Sunday.

There were only 10 "drop-outs" in a "Hunger Walk" to Meridellac along the Nepean Hwy. footpath, and the effort raised about $3000 towards Frankston's part in this month's Freedom From Hunger Campaign.

Rain poured down for most of the way, but the walkers plodded doggedly on to make an impressive, if somewhat bizarre sight, for passing motorists. At one stage the scattered line stretched from Cornum to Meridellac.

Mayor Dr. Tim McCulloch led the walkers on the way when he did a lap of Central Park at 1.30 p.m. Others left at varying intervals and the last walker arrived in the finishing point (Meridellac Presbyterian Church hall) at 3.15 p.m.

Constant underwear and shoe trials, advertising slogans worn by the walkers accompanied with the tank weather as they made their way up White St, and on to the Nepean Hwy. stopped.

Officials kept check from dawn using the above route and the mayor and officers handed out fruit. Dr. John Ambrose-Bridges was in duty.

Plans to cover the 10 miles were Frankston Teachers' College students John Macmillan and Ann Sheehyworth. They finished at 3.15, having rained all the way.

There was Minnie, the newly-arrived German flower, who came in at 3.45.

Straggled in late part were Rita Martin and Edna Mack, both 71 years old. Mack completed the 10 miles, Edna, who had 11 spasms, stopped much of the way.

The walker with the most spasms (said she was a victim of a shoulder injury) gravel was Penelope School student Robert Gray, 16, had 115 spasms who had produced a total payout of $200 for him to cover the 10 miles.

At the Meridellac church hall, tea, soft drink, sandwiches — and towels — were provided for the bedraggled participants. And then it was all down to a hot bath and dinner!

• More news of the Freedom From Hunger Campaign, and information to volunteers on what to do with their spasmic stomachs, is published on page 5 of this issue. Cartoon and Film Column report, page 2.

$3000 charity walk

In spite of the driving rain and low temperatures 403 walkers took part in the 10-mile "Hunger Walk" from Frankston to Meridellac in aid of the Freedom From Hunger Campaign.

The total amount promised by sponsors exceeds $3000 and has given a great start to Frankston's target for this time to raise $10,000.

At 1.30 p.m. the Mayor of Frankston, Dr. Tim McCulloch, led a group of walkers and the crowd moved forward and while down and down towards Meridellac.

By 3.15 two young men from Frankston Teachers' College School had completed the course. They were John Macmillan and Ann Sheehyworth, who ran at the way.

Over 100 people in complete the distance, in spite of heavy rain and darkness and over the entire distance. Those who finished included two 71-year-olds and several 10-year-olds, who found it easier than some of their seniors.

Robert Gray of Penelope School had the longest journey of anyone, with 115, and will raise $200.

Mayor Cr. Vic. McComb set the walkers on the way when he cut a tape at Central Park at 1.30 p.m. Others left at varying intervals and the last walker arrived at the finishing point (Mordialloc Presbyterian Church hall) at 5.15 p.m.

Colored umbrellas and many bright advertising slogans worn by the walkers contrasted with the bleak weather as they made their way up Wells St. and on to the Nepean Hwy. footpath.

Officials kept check from cars along the entire route and the mayor and others handed out fruit. St. John Ambulance Brigade was on duty.

First to cover the 10 miles were Frankston Teachers' College students John Hassett and Joe Hawkesworth. They finished at 3.15, having run all the way.

Third was Monash University student Graeme Bentley, who came in at 3.40.

Youngest to take part were Alan Morris and Erica Stryk, both 11 years old. Each completed the 10 miles. Erica, who had 22 sponsors, skipped much of the way!

The walker with the most sponsors (and therefore winner of a transistor radio prize) was Peninsula School student Robert Gray. He had 173 sponsors who had promised a total payout of $139 for him to cover the 10 miles.

At the Mordialloc church hall, tea, soft drink, sandwiches — and towels — were provided for the bedraggled participants. And then it was off home to a hot bath or shower!

HOLIDAY STORY-TIME

Two youngsters from the Pines Estate, Frankston, Fiona Hamilton, 7, of Alleppo Crescent, and Gregory Clark, 5, of Plantation Ave, were an interested audience for voluntary helper, Margaret Gray, of Fleetwood Crescent, Frankston, as she read them stories at the National Fitness Council play centre at Doveton last Thursday week.

His (play centre) wish for Frankston

A Frankston man who has been travelling to Doveton each week-day to supervise a child, doesn't holiday play centre wishes he could be doing it here.

He is Mr. John Clark, area supervisor for the National Fitness Council for the Doveton Play Centre, which is being run at the Doveton North State School.

He wants the Frankston City Council to do what is being done by Berwick Shire—providing the salaries of the group leaders and the supervisor and paying the cost of equipment.

Berwick's expenditure on the scheme is $1000 but the salaries of the play centre are not included, so children living in Berwick Shire at least, Doveton is a perk.

Last year, the Doveton centre had a total enrolment of 120, and average daily attendance was 50, most of 50.

As well as trained staff, the children have enjoyed an outing to Lullaburra and swimming at Doveton, as well as law class arranged by the centre and have been given out by the council.

Other advantages claimed for the children include a trip to Sandhurst Museum, visits from and to kindergarten, and library visits to the Doveton branch of the Doveton Public Library.

Children come from Lyndale, a welfare centre of the City of Boroondara, and from the Pines Estate, Frankston.

There are 10 Frankston children in the centre, as well as two group leaders from Frankston and Mr. Clark.

He has already got the members of a play centre in Frankston, he said. The plan.

He would get Frankston Council behind the plan, he said, to be sure that it was not a mistake.

Frankston City Clerk, Mr. G. D. Pridmore, said that he was not sure that it was not a mistake.

HOLIDAY STORY-TIME

• Two youngsters from the Pines Estate, Frankston, Fiona Hamilton, 7, of Alleppo Crescent, and Gregory Clark, 5, of Plantation Av., were an interested audience for voluntary helper, Margaret Gray, of Fleetwood Crescent, Frankston, as she read them stories at the National Fitness Council play centre at Doveton last Thursday week.

His (play centre) wish for Frankston

A Frankston man who has been travelling to Doveton each weekday to supervise a children's holiday play centre wishes he could be doing it here.

He is Mr. John Clark, area supervisor for the National Fitness Council for the Doveton Play Centre, which is being run at the Doveton North State School.

He wants the Frankston City Council to do what is being done by Berwick Shire—paying the salaries of the group leaders and the supervisor and paying the cost of equipment.

Berwick's expenditure on the scheme is $1200, but the facilities of the play centre are not restricted to children living in Berwick Shire, of which Doveton is a part.

Last year, the Doveton centre had a total enrolment of 720, and average daily attendance was in excess of 350.

As well as organised sport, the children have enjoyed ice skating at Moorabbin and swimming at Dandenong at special low rates arranged by the centre and have been given free bus transport.

Other excursions planned for the children include a trip to Healesville Sanctuary, theatre trips and a pantomime visit.

Inter-centre matches at Moorabbin and Boronia and combined centres sports at Royal Park, will again be a feature of this year's program.

Children come from Lyndale, a northern section of the City of Dandenong, and from the Pines Estate, Frankston.

There are 22 Frankston children in the scheme, as well as four group leaders from Frankston and Mr. Clark.

"We have already got the nucleus of a play centre for Frankston," he told The News.

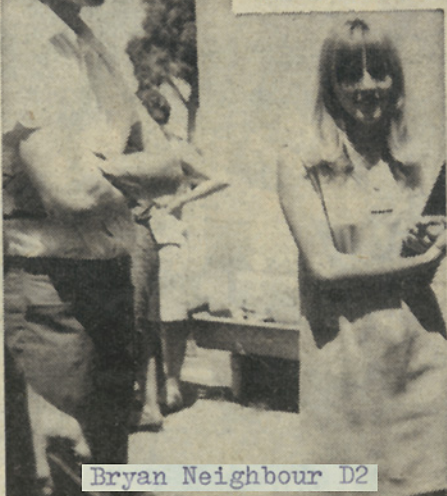

"If we could get Frankston Council behind us the way Berwick is we would have no problems," he said.

Frankston Town Clerk, Mr. G. C. Pentland, said council had investigated a play centre at Bentleigh, but felt it could not find adequate facilities.

Told of Doveton's use of Education Department property, he said: "This throws a new light on the matter. It could be well worth having a look into."

With Mr. Clark's enthusiasm, council interest, and perhaps Education Department co-operation, Frankston may have a play centre next year.

The other prefers reading and writing scripts. She plays the classical guitar.

But Shirley Millward, 19, and Arija Tale, 18, have found they have an added thing in common besides living in the suburb of North Springvale . . .

Their love for folk music.

Shirley and Arija met two years ago, when they were "forced to sing together" at their school concert.

ON TV

They decided to continue the partnership and have since sung — willingly — at coffee lounges, youth clubs, and at concerts for the "Freedom from Hunger" campaign.

Early this month they appeared on Kevin Dennis's "New Faces." They won the heat and both are eagerly awaiting the finals.

"Shirley and Arija" are also booked for two appearances on "IMT."

However, at this stage, folk-singing for the two is only an avenue for entertaining people, not a means of living.

Arija is doing a Science Degree at Monash University and hopes to major in chemistry.

Shirley wants to be a teacher and is in her last year at Frankston Teachers' College.

"We sing because we like singing. We sing folk because it has expression and meaning. You have to listen carefully to appreciate it" said Shirley.

You certainly have to listen intently to some of their old folk songs. Translating Latvian verse is not easy.

The two also write songs. These include everything from ballads to protests.

Arija, who was born in Latvia, said: "We like most folk singers, especially Buffy St. Marie and Simon and Garfunkel."

The most unusual thing about the duo is that together they have a vocal range from low to soprano.

This allows them to cover a wide variety of songs.

Both are not concerned with success or fame. They sing only for the pleasure — for them and for anybody who listens.

"We haven't been jeered off yet, so we shall continue," Shirley said.

"And if it becomes a profitable pastime, all the better," she added. —

Of the 29 American Field Service Scholarships awarded this year in Victoria, six came to southern suburbs including one to Mentone, three to Brighton, one to Highett and one to Sandringham.

LIVE IN AMERICA

All six were thrilled at the prospect of studying for 12 months in the United States but two with a special reason to be delighted were Susan Sims, of Royal Av., Sandringham and Lois Taylor, of 25 George St., Highett.

Susan and Lois both attended Highett High School and for several years have been very special friends.

However, now that they have reached the States they'll have to be content with letters or phone calls to each other for the next 12 months as they are too far apart for weekend visits.

Susan, who was head prefect at Highett High last year, matriculated and went on to Toorak Teachers' College. She was granted 12 months leave of absence by the Education Department to enable her to accept the scholarship.

In America she will live with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nyquist at Acton, near Boston, Massachusetts.

Lois, who was a keen member of Highett Youth Club for several years, also matriculated at Highett High last year but she continued her studies at Frankston Teachers' College.

Her hosts in America will be Mr. and Mrs. H. Jespersen, of Pekin, Illinois.

Award of the scholarship to Brian Bourne, of 5 Rivoli St., Mentone, took him all the way to Sugarland, 20 miles from Houston, Texas, where he is staying with Mr. and Mrs. J. Claude Wallace.

Brian, who will attend the John Foster Dulles High School, was educated at Beaumaris High. He was in his matriculation year and hopes to matriculate at Beaumaris High when he returns.

The Brighton winners were Marcia Edwards, of Hampton St., Peter McEwan, of New St., and Elizabeth Tainish, of Lindsay St.

● Lois Taylor, left, and Susan Sims check the distance between their American "homes" on a large scale map of the United States.

As the local students were on their way to the States, another Highett girl, Linda White of Marshall Ave., was preparing to return to Australia.

Now 18, Linda won her scholarship from Highett High and attended school in Iowa.

She loved her year at West Bramhill High, finding, as other Australian students had done, the absence of exam tension allowed more emphasis on extra-curricular activities, and training for good all-round citizenship.

She has returned with warm memories of the friendship of American people, new-found skill in playing a musical instrument (the cymbals in the school band), and the echo of applause in her ears for the lead part she played in the student production of "Oklahoma".

Now, Linda hopes to go on to the University for social studies. She feels her year abroad has equipped her well for whatever career she chooses.

PRIMARY EXTENSION MAN MAY ATTEND NEW ENGLAND UNIVERSITY

A Breach in the Quota Barrier

The Minister of Education, Mr. Thompson, has told the Union that a Frankston primary extension student, unable to gain admission to a Victorian university this year, may attend an interstate university next year, if necessary.

The student completed his T.E.C. at Frankston Teachers' College last year.

He was recommended for an extension course, but was rejected by Victorian universities, under the quota.

However he successfully applied for a place at the University of New England, Armidale, New South Wales, but inquiries by the Principal of Frankston Teachers' College, Mr. G. Jenkins, revealed that the Department would not allow him to undertake his university course outside Victoria.

The Union intervened urgently on his behalf late in February, and the Minister agreed to initiate inquiries.

It was unable to resolve the situation in time to allow the student to take up the place offered him at Armidale this year, but a letter from the Minister has now made it clear that he will be allowed to go there next year, if he is still unable to gain admission to a Victorian university. —

JIM GRAYLING . . . "I like to play sailors once a week."

THE CALL OF THE SEA

FROM Monday to Friday Jim Grayling is a student teacher . . .

But after school is finished on Friday, he puts away his chalk and dusters.

His sombre suit is put away, and on goes naval rig. His pen changes into a sword hanging by his side.

Teacher Jim Grayling becomes Petty Officer Instructor James Grayling.

Jim is a voluntary instructor with the Australian Sea Cadet Corps — an organisation for boys who are interested in the Navy and in learning something about the sea.

"It's something like the Boy Scouts," said Jim, "except the fact that it's background is the sea."

Jim joined the Sea Cadets when he was about 15. "I joined because a lot of my friends joined, and they talked me into it."

"We learned things about seamanship, sailing, had a few trips on ships like HMAS Sydney, and each year we used to go away during the Christmas holidays — that part was usually a camp of some sort," he said.

Confirmed appointment

He was a member of the corps until he was 19, the age most boys outgrow the group, and he then applied to join up again, this time as a petty officer instructor — teaching the boys the things he had learned as a member.

"It took about 17 months before it came through," he said.

"My appointment had to be confirmed and passed in Canberra, and before this happened I had to go through a number of interviews and medicals to check I was the right sort of person."

Now aged 21 Jim's not sure of his future in the Sea Cadets. "It really depends on the Education Department, and where they send me," he said.

His job as instructor is concerned mainly with drilling the boys—teaching them how to march, with the T.S. (Training Ship) Melbourne.

"I'm also a regulating petty officer, which means I'm in charge of discipline within the unit," he added.

"And it's amazing what these kids will take. I treat them as though they're in the Navy, and if they need bawling out, I bawl them out. I'm sure they wouldn't take it at home, or anywhere else for that matter, but here with the Sea Cadets they seem to expect it."

In all there are 36 units of Sea Cadets in Australia, about seven of these in Victoria. Each year the Deputy Naval Officer in Charge, at present Commander Harle, makes an inspection of the units in Victoria, and recommends which he believes to be the most efficient.

This year the unit picked was T.S. Melbourne, the first year they have been successful. On Saturday there will be a transfer of the colors at HMAS Lonsdale, presented by Commodore Dowson.

And the unit's also in the running for the Commonwealth Trophy — awarded to the most efficient unit in Australia. And Jim's got his fingers crossed.

"New South Wales won it last year, so we're hoping we can take it off this year. And it would be a record if a unit winning in their State for the first time, also took off the Commonwealth Trophy."

The corps takes up most of Jim's spare time. There's a meeting every Friday night, and Saturday is usually spent in practical training for the 50 boys who are members of his unit. "I spend Sunday recovering," he said.

"It's a marvellous organisation—it develops self-reliance and independence in the boys, and is especially good for those boys thinking of going into the Navy. Of course it's good for anyone, but usually it's more attractive to those who are thinking of making the sea their life."

"As for me, I've always been interested in the Navy — I suppose I just like to play sailors once a week."

MORE REPRESENTATION SOUGHT BY TRAINEES

FRANKSTON MOVE

Trainees want a bigger say in running the Victorian Teachers' Union.

The move was made by the Frankston Teachers' College Frances Branch.

The branch put two resolutions before the V.T.U. Council.

The first—which sought greater student representation on Council—was referred back to the college branch with the suggestion that it be raised at the 1969 V.T.U. Conference in January.

Frankston's resolution read:—

"In view of the fact that student numbers number four thousand and comprise 18% of the total membership of the Union, this branch is of the opinion that student voting representation on Council should be increased"

Rev. Grayling, Frankston's student observer at Council, said that his branch intended to do that.

The second Frankston resolution sought student participation on V.T.U. Council committees.

Council decided to examine this idea in February 1969.

It pointed out that these committees were formed in February each year—before colleges had selected student Councilors.

Consequently no action could be taken until next year.

There are major difficulties. One is that these committees mostly operate at Whitshall from 4.30 p.m. to 7 p.m. or later, so student participation could present problems.

On the other hand the V.T.U. is keen to involve students in these major professional policy-formulating groups, and will make a point of seeing what can be done to overcome such problems.

MORE REPRESENTATION SOUGHT BY TRAINEES

FRANKSTON MOVE

Trainees want a bigger say in running the Victorian Teachers' Union.

The move was made by the Frankston Teachers' College Trainees Branch.

The branch put two resolutions before the V.T.U. Council.

The first—which sought greater student representation on Council—was referred back to the college branch with the suggestion that it be raised at the 1969 V.T.U. Conference in January.

Frankston's resolution read:—

"In view of the fact that student members number four thousand and comprise 18% of the total membership of the Union, this branch is of the opinion that student voting representation on Council should be increased".

Jim Grayling, Frankston's student observer at Council, said that his branch intended to do that.

Adventure gives them character

Girls advanced in book-keeping, typing, shorthand, and business English, and a kind of expert last week joined by the American Street Band.

Physical activity, dancing, and the study of the human body, are also included in the curriculum. The girls are also studying the history of the United States, and the principles of government.

The girls spent last week in the city of New York, and were very much interested in the sights and sounds of the great metropolis. They were also very much interested in the people of the city, and in the life of the city.

The girls were very much interested in the life of the city, and in the life of the city.

MRS T. G. WELLS, a physical education teacher, spoke about Outward Bound for girls at the 74th annual meeting of the Victorian Children's Aid Society, held at Swinburne House, Black Rock, yesterday.

The retiring president, Mrs Norman Richards, welcomed about 50 members and guests to the meeting.

Adventure gives them character

Girls interested in bush-walking, rock climbing, sailing, kayaking, cycling, swimming and archery will find a friend at courses held twice yearly by the Australian Outward Bound School for Girls.

Physical activity, however, is not the only feature of these courses. Drama, debates, musical appreciation, posture development and community service tasks are also on the curriculum, in keeping with the school's motto of "character development through adventure."

"The girls, aged between 16 and 24, try to understand themselves more, through a series of challenging activities, and also learn to work together in a group," said Mrs. Thomas Wells, of Cranbourne South, who is an instructor with the school.

"Because the girls must learn to live closely with each other over a period of 23 days, demands are made on social adjustment.

"And the creative activities—art, music and movement, floral art — and lectures on first aid, map reading, bush walking and so on, are mentally demanding.

"It's a question of the survival of the fittest. If the girls don't absorb their lectures they can't cope with the physical part of the course."

The school is conducted in September and during Christmas holidays in New South Wales—at Fisherman's Point on the Hawkesbury River, and Castlereagh on the Nepean River, on the edge of the Blue Mountains.

Mrs. Wells, herself a past pupil of the school, said she had known of only one in three or four hundred girls who had been incapable of facing up to the physical challenges.

"A lot of them look forward to the challenge, on the other hand a lot are quite scared. I know I was terrified when I was first faced with rock climbing. But you learn to do it.

"This is where we feel the character development comes in."

A feature of the school was participation in expeditions, Mrs. Wells said. At first these were easy — two or three days over easy country.

During the second expedition girls learnt to find their own route in the bush, and practised skills such as rock-climbing and canoeing.

On the third expedition girls were completely independent.

"They're very well looked after," Mrs. Wells said firmly. "Fifteen to 20 staff are involved at each camp, including the principal, full-time matron and an instructor and assistant in charge of groups of 10 girls within each course.

"In camp the girls sleep in comfortable huts with mirrors, cupboards, sheets and blankets, and they're cooked for. On expedition, though, they're totally self-reliant.

"A lot of people feel the courses must be tremendously strenuous and demanding. We try to stress that they're jolly good fun."

Mrs. Wells said the range of girls attending the courses was "incredible and tremendously interesting."

Girls were either sent by their parents, volunteered themselves or were sponsored by industry, banks, service organisations or churches.

"One of my recent groups of 10 included a fully trained veterinary surgeon, two teachers, a schoolgirl of 16, an Aboriginal girl of 19, and a couple of bank clerks.

Adventure for 30

Thirty physical education students and staff went in search of adventure during the May vacation this year.

Establishing a camp at Wilson's Promontory for six days, they were presented with a series of challenging outdoor activities, including rock climbing, swimming, canoeing, camp and outdoor work, bush walking and camp relating.

Students and staff all were successful, some students mentioning their conduct to waste resources through the river supporting an appropriate pattern on an impressive and bush activities.

One of the detailed study of students was to plan and execute a three-day expedition. Initial training was given, but equipment, clothing, a map, compass, shelter, food, and other items were the students' responsibility.

The route was to Wilson's Cove via Mt. Discovery.

The following day, a fishing boat from Port Phillip arrived at the cove to take the group to islands off the Promontory. In rough seas, the journey began, but after attempts to round the lighthouse, the boat had to return, depositing a group of wet but cheerful people on the first island.

The return to Tidal River was accomplished efficiently, groups sharing great improvement in their ability to cope with the challenge.

The camp, although physically demanding, provided an enjoyable experience and appeared to achieve its aim to work efficiently. Most important, however, it provided students with opportunities to learn from shared group experiences.

SCHOOL SPORT

To start the football season, the football team of the school, which is a member of the Victorian Football Association, played a match against the school of the Victoria Football Association.

The match was played on the school's football field, which is a member of the Victorian Football Association.

SCHOOL SPORT

In 1967, the Frankston Teachers' College organised a sports meeting for the pupils in "rural schools" attached to the College training circuit.

During this day, pupils from these schools keenly compete for a trophy presented by the College's Student Representative Council.

This year, the sports program was organised by students at the College, and under the guidance of the SRC, the meeting was held on the College oval last Tuesday.

Despite inclement weather, most of the program was completed successfully and the Carium rural school gained the trophy for the highest number of points.

Chief organisers, John Crofts and David van Put, are to be congratulated for their excellent work in making this day a memorable one for these children.

MATHS — EDUCATION FOR UNDERSTANDING

To multiply by 10, shift the decimal point one place to the right . . . The product of two negative numbers is positive . . . To divide by a fraction, turn it upside down and multiply . . .

The mention of rules such as these will bring back unhappy memories of arithmetic lessons for many people.

In past days the programmes given to students developed in children the ability to manipulate numbers in a given situation.

When these children later faced with mathematics at higher levels, their memory was invaluable; they lacked an understanding of the basic concepts to apply and relate to new areas.

Over the past decade, there have been changes in emphasis in primary school mathematics. It is now accepted that many of the difficulties encountered by children in learning and using mathematical ideas were largely the result of rote learning which frequently prevented children from developing the appropriate mathematical thought processes.

Today, the child's own reasons of the reason why a particular operation is carried out is considered to be of prime importance. The rote learning of a rule or of a series of steps to which the answer is obtained is now looked upon as inappropriate.

To aid the development of mathematical thinking, students are now provided with situations and materials from which they can make relevant generalisations. These concepts of generalisations provide the mathematical ideas that are necessary to cope with a variety of situations and to give the basis for future growth in knowledge of mathematics.

STUDENT GROUP FOR SAY IN POLICY

The Students' Representative Council is an extremely important body in college life. It is the only form of organized group that acts for the students when they wish to have a say in college policy, or wish improvements in college equipment and the like.

The students are formed into groups at the beginning of the year, each group elects one of its members to act as SRC representative.

Every fortnight, these representatives meet and discuss any problems or put forward any requests that their particular group may have.

A decision about the problem or request is then made and appropriate action is taken.

The SRC has a constitution and is led by a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and so on. First-year students will have representation on the executive, a Junior Vice-President. The SRC now has over thirty staff, 100,000 per year. This includes all the students in a student council.

Because of the way in which SRC acts as a liaison between staff and students, and the way the principal reports SRC to all interested responsible bodies, it operates on an extremely democratic and controlled basis.

A budget machine, photocopier, typewriter, ground improvements, new teaching equipment and so on are made available of the way in which SRC acts to the students of the school and helps him to form a successful career.

The SRC also handles more than $10,000 per year. This emphasises its importance as a student organiser.

Because of the way in which SRC acts as a liaison between staff and

A hot-drink machine, photostat copy machine, ground improvements, new teaching equipment and so on are many examples of the way in which SRC adds to the comfort of the student and helps him to form a successful career.

Library a focal point

The library and study room at the college are a focal point of college activities. In the library, more than 12,000 books and 89 educational journals taken on subscription provide a wide variety of reading for the students' studies.

Borrowing the books continues to be popular and it is also not for the use of temporary lecture rooms which are used as reading rooms, "reading room" would be the order of the day.

In the busy study room, students borrow up to 500 books per day to read them in their teaching experience while in the library school.

Trainers, tape recorders, record players, charts, pictures, musical records, slides and film strips are used extensively by students and themselves of the opportunity of learning teaching techniques through practical experience as part of their course.

Library a focal point

The library and aids room at the college are a focal point of college activities. In the library, more than 16,000 books and 80 educational journals taken on subscription provide wide sources of reading for the students' studies.

Borrowing records continue to be broken and if it was not for the use of temporarily vacant lecture rooms which are used as reading rooms, "standing room only" would be the order of the day.

In the busy aids room, students borrow up to 900 aids per day to assist them in their teaching experience while in the training schools.

Projectors, tape recorders, record players, charts, pictures, musical records, slides and film strips are used extensively. Many students avail themselves of the opportunity of becoming qualified motion-picture projectionists as part of their course.

The large audience every evening of staff and students has been responsible for the success and building of the school of music, singing and dancing.

Seniors loved it

On behalf of the members of Freshman Teachers' College, I would like to say "Thank You" to a wonderful group of young people who recently gave us a most delightful evening's entertainment.

I refer to the organization and performers of "The Gypsy Baron" at Freshman Teachers' College.

The singing, singing and dancing were something to remember with great pleasure for a long time, and the accompaniment of the orchestra was excellent.

Students to stage operetta

A popular operetta, The Gipsy Baron, by Johann Strauss, will be staged by students of the Frankston Teachers' College on August 14-17 at 8 pm in the college hall.

Under the direction of producer, Mr. Gordon Brennan, and musical director, Mr. James Ogden, the large cast of student performers has worked for many weeks rehearsing the vocal score and dialogue, and learning the colorful dance routines choreographed by Miss Gertrude Kentish for the production.

The large back-stage crew composed of staff and students has been responsible for the design and building of sets, the making of costumes, lighting and publicity.

GYPSY FINGER- WAGGING

● An emotional scene from "The Gypsy Baron," being rehearsed last week by Frankston Teachers' College students for presentation on August 14, 15, 16 and 17, from 8.15 p.m. Pictured are Greg. Simmons ("Zsupan," the mayor), Dianne Lane ("Vanya"), Sandra Jacques ("Franzi") and Marie Carruthers ("Arletta").

A black and white photograph showing a woman in a gypsy costume, including a headpiece with large flowers and a dark dress with a white ruffled collar and floral patterns. She is leaning over the open window of a car, holding the hand of a man sitting inside. The man is looking up at her. The background is slightly blurred, suggesting an outdoor setting.

PALM OUT FOR THE PRINCESS

• Just for luck, gypsy princess "Saffi" (played by Frankston Teachers' College student Claudia Cox) crosses the palm of Elwyn Gibson in her car at the college during a break in rehearsals for the musical comedy, "The Gypsy Baron," last week. It is to be staged by the students at the college on August 14, 15, 16 and 17.

TEACHERS' COLLEGE SCORES WITH "GIPSY BARON"

Haunting Strauss melodies in colorful settings by a well-trained chorus under music director Jim Ogden entranced almost a packed auditorium for the opening night of "The Gipsy Baron" at Frankston Teachers' College last Wednesday.

The cast was drawn from college students, some of whom had their first taste of stage lime-light.

Thus, perfection, of course, was impossible, but the producer, Gordon Brennan, handled his material in a masterly fashion.

Even after the performance, he marshalled the cast on stage, pointed out some of the acting deficiencies and no doubt suggested many improvements. He's a demon for "spit and polish."

The players were no less enthusiastic. Some had quite good voices for amateurs. They combined well as a team, and that they gave great pleasure to their patrons was made very clear to them by the generous applause that greeted their efforts.

There were three scenes in the three acts. In the first, outside the gates of Kalman Zsupan's residence on the outskirts of Zrinyi, Hungary, in the 18th century, there was a spirited, well-rehearsed chorus to greet the Gipsy Queen, Czipra (Ingrid Werrching) — "Up in the Morning With the Lark."

Queen superb

Incidentally, the Gipsy Queen gave one of the best performances both in acting and vocally in the production.

Otto (Gavin Byrt), a young blade not overburdened with grey matter, aspires to wed Arletta (Marie Caruthers). But Arletta, in a moment of pique, lets her romantic emotions loose by singing "I Have'nt Found the Right Man Yet." This was a hit number well sung and the vocalist figured as an engaging individualist.

Zsupan (Greg Simmons), pompous, vain (and ludicrously portly with an artificial paunch (just as well it was artificial, too, for his future in the Education Department!) and a self-appointed Gipsy potentate, greets Queen Czipra with tact and sings an appropriate song incorporating this rare attribute.

Throughout the light opera, Mr. Simmons played the major comic role with unabated nerve and unbridled gusto. His artificial tummy enabled him to spring into the air in a daring and tricky fashion without risk of fracturing his pelvis.

The story of the opera is rather involved. The drama gets into gear when the Queen's grand-daughter, Saffi (Claudia Cot) darts into the picture. Miss Cot was no Melba — she didn't have to be, anyway — but she looked good and acted with animation.

Teachers' College scores with "Gipsy Baron"

Zsupan ruthlessly dynamites the Queen's prophesy that Sandor Barinkay (Desmond Bunyan) will return to his ancestral domicile, and the lovely gipsies give him a Royal reception and make him their gipsy baron — all very romantic and glamorous.

Dramatic climax

And so the story goes on to a dramatic climax after the discovery of hidden, priceless treasures by Czibra.

The Hungarians are involved in war and when the warriors return from the battlefield agleam with victory, Zsupan is plastered with medals from head to foot, front and back, and with his arm slung in a redundant sling which he intermittently discards without realising the folly of his unheroic disclosures.

In the manner of a sawdust Caesar, he gives a mythical but graphic account of his ferocious encounters with the enemy.

His song, "How I Done It," was another hit, run and dance number, if not a dramatic sensation.

Barinkay's singular courage and resource on the battlefronts wins him a title and permission to marry the girl of his choice — Saffi.

The ensembles and costumes were arresting and romantic. Many very pretty girls were on stage.

The success of "The Gipsy Baron" was due to teamwork which no doubt improved on the three subsequent performances.

Mr. Simmons had a whale of a comedy roll. He had the audience rocking with laughter for most of the evening, but I did not entirely concur with his technique.

He didn't have to be subtle, but in my book he oversprang some of his circus leaps, which were unrealistic for a greybeard not in the full flush of youth. I may have done him an injustice. After all, nothing succeeds like success on any stage.

Big hand

At the conclusion of the performance, when the principals took their bows, he was greeted with deafening applause, whistles and cat-calls.

Overall, The Gipsy Baron hit the bullseye of popularity.

A creditable character role was played by John Durrant as the cunning, unscrupulous Count Kareska; Robert Leeson, Ian Bennett, Marie Carruthers, Desmond Bunyon, Graeme O'Toole, Rick Francis, Richard Bruce and Graeme Elmer were others in the limelight.

George Pappas was the associate producer and Geoff Jones the associate music director.

The orchestra comprising 16 instrumentalists, rendered excellent service.

The strings, clarinets and flute and pianist (Geoff Jones) and organist (Robert Bilsborough) were most important to the very charming melodies, and the brass and percussion did their stuff according to Hoyle.

The production had one cardinal virtue. It gave great scope for the performers and gave them confidence in developing individualistic poise — attributes they will one day pass on to the rising generation. —"T.P."

"THE GIPSY BARON"

THE ACTION TAKES PLACE IN HUNGARY IN THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY. THE GIPSIES HAVE GATHERED OUTSIDE THE GATES OF KALMAN ZSUPAN'S RESIDENCE TO AWAIT THE COMING OF CZIPRA, THE GIPSY QUEEN. THEY GREET THE DAY WITH A ROUSING CHORUS. ("UP IN THE MORNING WITH THE LARK").

OTTO, A CHEERFUL IDIOT, DECLARES THAT HE PLANS TO MARRY ZSUPAN'S DAUGHTER, ARLETTA, SO HE CAN INHERIT HER FATHER'S PIG-BREEDING BUSINESS. ASKED BY THE GIPSIES IF SHE INTENDS TO MARRY OTTO, ARLETTA REPLIES, "I HAVEN'T FOUND THE RIGHT MAN YET".

THE SELF-IMPORTANT ZSUPAN DECIDES TO GREET QUEEN CZIPRA WITH "TACT", BUT WHEN SHE ARRIVES WITH HER GRAND-DAUGHTER, SAFFI, HE ATTEMPTS TO RIDICULE HER PROPHECY THAT SANDOR BARINKAY WILL RETURN TO HIS ANCESTRAL HOME. CZIPRA AND SAFFI WARN OTTO AND ZSUPAN TO BEWARE AND NOT TO REPAY KINDNESS WITH RIDICULE. ("STRANGE ARE THE POWERS").

MIRABELLA, THE HOUSEKEEPER, PLANS TO MARRY ZSUPAN AND LOSES NO OPPORTUNITY TO IMPROVE HIS CHARACTER. ACCOMPANIED BY OTTO AND ARLETTA THEY SING "BIRDS IN THEIR LITTLE NESTS AGREE".

THE SCHEMING AND WILY COUNT KARESKA ARRIVES FROM VIENNA WITH BARINKAY WHO GREETS THE GIPSIES WARMLY. ("DANUBE, RIVER OF DREAMS"). DURING HIS ABSENCE, BARINKAY'S ESTATES HAVE BEEN APPROPRIATED BY ZSUPAN WHOSE SPOILT DAUGHTER, ARLETTA, TRIES TO WIN BARINKAY'S HEART. SENSING ZSUPAN'S DISLIKE FOR BARINKAY, KARESKA ENLISTS ZSUPAN'S AID TO DISCOVER AND CLAIM A TREASURE THAT HAS REMAINED HIDDEN IN THE VAULTS OF THE CASTLE FOR MANY YEARS.

ARLETTA TELLS BARINKAY THAT SHE IS A SIMPLE GIRL ("I'VE LIVED A SHELTERED LIFE") BUT HE REBUFS HER ADVANCES AND FALLS IN LOVE WITH SAFFI WHOM HE PLANS TO MARRY IN TRUE GIPSY STYLE IN HIS FATHER'S DILAPIDATED CASTLE. ("DARE I BELIEVE MY HEART").

THE GIPSIES WELCOME BARINKAY ("SONG OF WELCOME") AND PROCLAIM HIM THEIR GIPSY BARON. KARESKA IS FURIOUS AND THREATENS TO REPORT BARINKAY TO THE AUTHORITIES. HIS THREAT IS IGNORED FOR BARINKAY PREFERS "A GIPSY LIFE AMONG GIPSY FRIENDS". ("SWEET IS A GIPSY LIFE").

CZIPRA DISCOVERS THE HIDDEN TREASURE AND PRESENTS IT TO BARINKAY AND SAFFI. ("THE TREASURE WALTZ"). THE SCENE IS INTERRUPTED BY THE ARRIVAL OF SOLDIERS TO ENLIST MEN FOR THE WAR. LED BY GRAF PETER HOMONOY THEY SING "THE RECRUITING SONG" DURING WHICH ZSUPAN AND OTTO ARE TRICKED INTO ENLISTING. BARINKAY HEEDS THE CALL AND RESOLVES TO LEAD HIS PEOPLE TO BATTLE. HOMONOY LEAVES SAFFI AND THE TREASURE IN KARESKA'S CARE. REALIZING SHE IS NOW IN HIS POWER, SAFFI WEEPS AND THROWS HERSELF INTO CZIPRA'S ARMS.

SAFFI TRICKS KARESKA AND ESCAPES, BUT DURING THE VICTORY CELEBRATIONS IN THE PALACE HE RECOGNIZES HER. SHE IS SAVED WHEN HOMONOY ARRIVES AND BANISHES KARESKA FOR HIS EVIL DOINGS.

THE MEN RETURN FROM BATTLE AND ZSUPAN, PRETENDING TO BE WOUNDED, TELLS THE GIRLS OF HIS EXPLOITS AT THE FRONT. ("HOW I DONE IT"). ARLETTA REALIZES SHE HAS ALWAYS LOVED OTTO AND MIRABELLA IS REUNITED WITH HER FUTURE HUSBAND. BARINKAY'S HEROIC BATTLE CONDUCT EARNS HIM A LEGAL TITLE AND PERMISSION TO MARRY SAFFI.

So very feminine

The feminine look was very much to the fore in the interesting display of spring and summer fashions, presented by Galloni's, of Wells St., Frankston, for Frankston Teachers' College Welfare Association at the college last Thursday night.

Among the large audience at the parade was college principal Mr. H. Jenkins and Miss Jenkins. The parade clearly demonstrated that "the fanny" is voluminous, with most garments featuring a waistline which has been slanted from the fashion scene for some years.

Most color story was navy and white, shown in a variety of attractive styles.

An outstanding garment was the double-breasted cape suit in the pastel pink, the cape falling almost to knee level.

A long outdoor suit in periwinkle green was styled with a sailor neck and made of cord fabric.

A very young, very beautiful evening gown was of white tulle, high necked, with a crystal collar and long sleeves. It featured a pink blue suit, and was the dreamy sort of frock every mother and her daughter is.

The parade organizers were John Ward, of Galloni's, Modest, who assisted, and Miss Eignerson, Miss Eignerson, and Miss Eignerson.

EVER had that feeling that someone is following close behind you? Peter Cooke had it all the way down the straight in the 220 yd. race in the Combined Teachers' College sports at Olympic Park yesterday. That's Peter, of Toorak College, nearest the camera, winning in record time of 22.1 sec. And almost completely hidden by him is the reason for the new record, John Hassett, of Frankston, beaten by a fraction.

Just made for beauty — and for study

A long white finger of stone points at the sky from the quadrangle of school buildings.

Two girls are beside it, one kneeling and the other stretching up to scrape its side, oblivious of the students of Frankston Teachers' College walking past.

The four-ton rock stands at the junction of the classroom paths and the college drive. Behind it are native shrubs and trees.

"It's a piece of environmental sculpture designed for the gardens and architecture of the school," said one of the girls.

They are Virginia Davidson, 21, and Lyn Turner, 20, third year infant teachers who are majoring in art.

The rock is their practical work for part three art.

BEAUTIFY

"When the trees have grown to hide the buildings, its lines and shapes will be silhouetted against the green," they said.

The idea to sculpt the large, abstract shape came when the college principal, Mr Jenkins, suggested that the five students taking part-three art might help beautify the college by doing some mosaics or sculpture for the grounds.

After three terms of work and the help of the art lecturer, Mr Owen Piggot and sculptor Ray Ewes, the girls have almost finished.

"All we have to do now is to straighten up the lines which did not meet properly when the two pieces of rock were joined and repair the damage caused when the sculpture was moved to its site," said Lyn Turner.

MODELS

The girls said the sculpture had cost about $300

"We spent all of first term making models and designs and second and third term scraping and chipping away," Virginia said.

They would work for about six hours each week-end.

After seeing the sculpture, The Herald Art critic, Alan McCulloch, said: "As a student project it is remarkably successful."

"Its greatest attribute is the thought given to its placement in the college grounds. It harmonises with the garden and architectural background."

virginia Davidson, 21, left, and Lyn Turner, 20, both of Frankston, put the finishing touches to their sculpture.

Seen at the foot of

The first breast-beaver, the al-
bi and the low water creek under the vi-rescent hills are

Best sign change last month. They read: "We plan to start next year."
The sign is still there.

And just past the last sign, the road ends. Again
a dead end.

lies at the foot of the Black Spur on Fishers Creek, 51 miles from Melbourne.

Population: About 200. Industries: Timber, milling. Climate: Refreshing. Aspect: Delightful.

It's a different world at Narbethong. As you leave the smog of Melbourne and travel through Healesville, everything changes around you.

The forest becomes heavier, the air chillier and the low misty clouds make the surrounding hills look snow-capped.

Road signs change their warnings. They read: Nine miles of winding road. Caution Koalas Crossing. Steep Ascent.

And just past the Black Spur Inn, like Brigadoon, appears Narbethong.

Fairy tale

But it's only the light mist and drizzle on a wintry day that gives it this fairy tale atmosphere.

Life goes on in Narbethong as it does everywhere. And, of course, the children have to go to school.

Narbethong State School 3459 is a two-room weatherboard house with 27 pupils.

grumpy old bespectacled headmaster for them. They have one straight out of teachers' college — only 21 and not even twice the age of the eldest pupil.

He's Mr Don Wallis. His assistant is Miss Rae Switzer, 20, and she's straight from college too.

But between them they keep everything under control and running smoothly.

Won prize

The school has no real claim to fame.

A few years ago it managed to win the Marysville and District Sports Shield and in 1966 was awarded an Australian Natives' Association prize for its school gardens and grounds.

Its charm lies in its setting — surrounded by tall pines and gum trees and the nearby spurs of the Great Dividing Range.

Pupils at the school are mainly the children of dairy farmers or mill hands.

Three of them are aboriginal and belong to the one family.

About 30 years ago, the number of pupils dropped to five and the school closed down. It was pulled down and reassembled at nearby Marysville.

When the timber industry built two more mills at Narbethong several years later, the school was again assured of more pupils.

The present school was built in the early 1940s, with only one classroom at first.

Although lack of electricity supply to the area prohibits use of the most up-to-date comforts, pupils generally are academically well-equipped. They have two sets of the SRA reading library and an I.M.P. individual mathematics program.

These were all provided by the mothers' club.

For its size, Narbethong State has one of the best libraries of any school.

The junior library caters for 11 pupils and has more than 500 books. The senior library has about 400 books to keep the 16 older students content.

★ Laurie Peckham clears the bar

Victorian Laurie Peckham, Australian and British Commonwealth high jumping champion, will do hours of swimming during the next fortnight.

It will be part of an emergency training program to strengthen an aching ankle — at his take-off foot — which has robbed him of a month's preparation for the Mexico City Olympic Games in October.

"It's going to be a tough job for me to get back to my top form but with an even break of luck I reckon I can make it," says Peckham.

The 4 ft. 6 in. tall Melbourne athlete was expected while training on a Commonwealth last December. He did not have to see action at the time.

A week later he went to Paris, France, to take part in the Commonwealth Games. After his first jump, he was badly hurt.

An X-ray showed he had a cracked bone in his ankle and for three weeks he wore a plaster cast. The ankle had to be fixed.

But Peckham did not let his ankle keep him out of training without a doubt.

He kept his body and mind in trim by the swimming and some trackwork at home and working steadily from the pool with his legs supported in a swimming board.

He even helped on his ankle, but with his "cushion" he pushed out in front of him.

Now says Peckham will get back to his normal form and take a double hour in the pool. Then he will have several sessions in a field which he likes.

Peckham, 24, is the Australian high jump champion at 1.75 m. (5 ft. 9 in.).

The high jump world record was held by 1.75 m. (5 ft. 9 in.).

Victorian Lawrie Peckham, Australian and British Commonwealth high jumping champion, will do hours of swimming during the next fortnight.

It will be part of an emergency training program to strengthen an injured left ankle — of his take-off foot — which has robbed him of a month's preparation for the Mexico City Olympic Games in October.

"It's going to be a tough job for me to get back to my top form but with an even break of luck I reckon I can make it," says Peckham.

The 6 ft. 4 in. tall Melbourne athlete was injured while bouncing on a trampoline last December. He did not know it was serious at the time.

A week later he went to Port Moresby, New Guinea, to coach native athletes. After his first demonstration jump he could hardly walk.

An X-ray showed he had a chipped bone in his ankle and for three weeks he wore a plaster cast. This was taken off last Tuesday.

But Peckham did not take this break from his normal training without a fight.

To keep his body and arms in trim he did weightlifting and long workouts of raising and lowering himself from the waist with his feet strapped to a reclining board.

He even hopped on his right leg with his "gammy" leg poked out in front of him.

Next week Peckham will get back to running — slow going for a few days and then a gradual build up to speed. Then he will tackle weight training as a final lead-up to jumping.

Peckham shares the Australian high jump record at 7.2½ with Victorian Tony Sneazwell, who also is bidding for selection for the Mexico City Olympics.

The high-jump qualifying standard is 6.10½.

Peckham hopes to be back at his peak for the Australian championships in Sydney in March.

Lawrie Peckham, Australian and Commonwealth Games high-jump champion, will return to high-jumping at Olympic Park tonight . . . but he's fit for the wrong sport.

"I'll be the best conditioned swimmer at the meeting, but I'm not sure how I'll go as a jumper," he said.

Peckham has not been in jumping competition since last December when he cracked a bone in his left ankle — his take-off foot.

He has lost count of the miles he's swum in recent weeks in a bid to strengthen his ankle.

Tonight he will be in the Victorian senior high-jump championship against titleholder Tony Sneazwell. They share the Australian open high-jump record at 7.2¼.

They probably will meet again at the Australian championships at Sydney next month — the final selection trials for the Mexico City Olympics.

PECKHAM IS CAPTAIN

By STEVE HAYWARD

Victorian high jumper Laurie Peckham will captain Australia's men athletes at the Mexico Olympic Games in October.

John Roberts, Victorian general manager, will captain the Australian women's team.

The appointments were announced today in Sydney by Mr Frank Mahoney, general manager of the Amateur Athletic Union of Australia.

Mr Mahoney said that Pat Clarke had not been nominated for the men's 100m sprint because Clarke would not join the team until they arrived in Mexico City after competing in England and Scotland.

Clarke missed the first trials selection for the 100m because of a hamstring strain which he was competing against.

Mr Clarke was regarded as the top 100m sprinter and already held a longer shot 100m time of 10.8 seconds.

Most of the Australian Olympic team will leave Sydney for Mexico City on September 12.

Jean Roberts, Victorian discus thrower, will captain the Australian women athletes.

The appointments were announced today in Sydney by Mr Arthur Hodsdon, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union of Australia.

Mr Hodsdon said that Ron Clarke had not been considered for the men's captaincy because Clarke would not join the team until they arrived in Mexico City after completing his European and American visits.

Clarke missed the Australian captaincy for the 1966 Jamaica Commonwealth Games when he was competing overseas.

But Clarke was captain at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics and Sydney high-jumper Helen Frith the women's captain.

Most of the Australian Olympic team will leave Sydney for Mexico City on September 16.

Likeable Lawrie has gold medal prospects

Lawrie Peckham is a very likeable young man who could gain an immortality of sorts by winning a gold medal at the Olympic Games in Mexico City next month.

The 23-year-old phys. ed. teacher lives in Hatter St., Oakleigh, and has lifted his 6 ft. 4 in., 13-stone frame over a slender crossbar perched 7 ft. 2½ in. above terra firma.

He has won three national high jump titles, collected a gold medal at the Commonwealth Games in Jamaica, has competed five times in America, once in Japan and a couple of times in Europe.

Lawrie is a rather remarkable product of this brand of sport, a lonely affair where the competitor digs deep into his psychic to perform well.

Despite the success and the paid overseas trips, Lawrie is completely unassuming, an adjective you can not use with authenticity to describe all of the athletes who will carry Australian colors to Mexico.

This is the reason why many people connected with athletics, people who have watched Lawrie rise through the ranks, would prefer a medal struck in gold for the high jumper before any other team member.

As his profession indicates, Lawrie has a great love for sport. He could perhaps have made a name for himself in any one of a number of branches.

He turned down a possible career in League football for high jumping and his prowess at golf was potentially championship calibre — he has shot a 79 at Metropolitan and notches low 80's at public courses.

But it was this remarkable athletic ability which guided the modest young man towards fame.

High jumping happened to Lawrie Peckham, more by accident than design, as a Grade 4 pupil at Hughesdale State School, more than a decade ago.

A football injury had almost crippled him, but he was forced into the high jump event at his school, when the house champion was unable to compete.

And he earned accolades of praise throughout the school by hobbling over four feet to finish second in the event, a remarkable effort considering the handicaps.

Determined to go one better than second the following year, Lawrie trained diligently for several months before tackling those same house sports a year later.

He finished 10th!

That incongruous reversal did more for Lawrie's career than his courageous performance the year before — he got to hate the sport a little and determined to master it.

His father, Lawrie senior, stood by and watched the youngster try to teach himself (using a piece of rope on the front lawn) before stepping in to help.

"If you are that serious about it, you should learn to jump properly. Go over it face down," was Dad's advice, and the beginnings of a polished straddle style.

Except for a brief period when Lawrie trained under leading Melbourne coach, Fred Graf, Mr. Peckham has supervised the entire career.

In 1961 — when Lawrie was stringing together a list of schoolboy titles — Russian star, Valeri Brumel revolutionised training schedules for high jumping.

Brumel scaled an incredible 7 ft. 5½ in. to set a world record which has defied all subsequent emulation efforts.

But it was the preparation — weight-lifting as the principal training ingredient — that impressed Peckham and arch Australian rival Tony Sneazwell more than the actual height Brumel achieved.

In training stints, the Russian had lifted weights which then surpassed existing national heavy-weight records.

Exercise!

Peckham and Sneazwell switched to weights in their drive for extra height and Olympic honors — Lawrie now terms the sport "an exercise in weight-lifting."

Lawrie out-jumped reigning champion, Sneazwell, successor to "Chilla" Porter's mantle, at the Perth Commonwealth Games and Tokyo Olympics but did not win his first national until 1965.

Successful nationals wins in '66 and '67, plus Jamaica's gold medal and the benefit of three private trips for competition in America, and Lawrie had forged away from Sneazwell.

But a bout of hepatitis after Jamaica and a broke en ankle after a game of bounceball at Brendan Edwards' gymnasium in Camberwell put Lawrie on the sidelines over the next year.

He is back to peak form now — wrestling 419 lbs. in front squat exercises, hefting 200 lb. lifts above his head and even jumping 150 lbs. across his shoulders for skipping jaunts up and down Hatter St. — and wants that gold medal very badly.

Main threats will be the Russian trio of jumpers, American freak Dick Fosbury, who couldn't better 5 ft. 10 in. with the orthodox straddle but reached 7 ft. 2 in. with a reverse layout off a scissors jump, and Australian team mates, Sneazwell and Peter Boyce.

The personality aspect will have a great effect on Mexico's result. The winner will have to survive four or five hours, perhaps six, of competition before the winner is crowned.

After Mexico City?

There are gold medals offered at the Edinburgh Commonwealth at Munich Olympic Games, and perhaps an engagement to attractive Janie Winder.

● The picture, appropriately taken in a "Spring" setting, shows Lawrie at training in the garden of his Oakleigh home.

The weighting Games

High jumping is an exercise in single lifting," says Larry Perkins, gold medalist at the Jamaica Commonwealth Games and three-time Australian champion. "It's a very different type of lift, but it's the same as the other lifts in that you have to get the bar up over your head and then you have to get it down again."

The weighting Games

"High jumping is an exercise in weight-lifting," says Lawrie Peckham, gold medallist at the Jamaica Commonwealth Games and three times Australian champion.

To prove the point, Lawrie regularly lumps as much as 150lb. across his broad shoulders and runs with it up and down Hatter St., Oakleigh, where he lives.

The running action is a duplicate of that last step Lawrie takes before launching himself skywards, and the weight he carries in this exercise strengthens the muscles he uses at take-off point.

Lawrie leaves Australia on Monday for Mexico City and a possible gold medal at the Olympic Games. He is the only athlete living in The Journal's circulation area to earn a berth in the Australian team; marathon runner Derek Clayton is employed by Springvale City Council but does not live in the district.

Olympian's captain's working with him now

If Olympics athletics captain Leslie Peckham comes home from Mexico City with a gold medal, Montano can take some of the credit.

He was a Mexican good friend, Mr. David Pryor, who trains with him regularly at Montano's house. Mr. Pryor was Peckham's captain at the Commonwealth Games in Jamaica and now is national chairman-in-charge of Montano's training.

A former Australian football champion, he was captain of the Perth Commonwealth Games.

If Olympics athletics captain Lawrie Peckham comes home from Mexico City with a gold medal, Mentone can take some of the credit.

So can a Mentone resident, Mr. David Prince, who trains with him regularly at Mentone Reserve. Mr. Prince was Lawrie's captain at the Commonwealth Games in Jamaica and now is physical education instructor at Mentone Grammar.

A former Australian hurdles champion, he also competed at the Perth Commonwealth Games.

Fellow students and teachers from Bentleigh High School days could feel they had a part in Lawrie's success, too. There, he started his athletics career, winning the 100 yards for Fawcner House at the age of 12.

Next year he switched to jumping and cleared 5 ft., winning an event for Bentleigh in inter-school sports at Olympic Park.

Everyone forecast he'd make the Olympics some day. He did, but didn't strike his best form at Tokyo in 1964. However, he made up for it with a gold medal for a 6 ft. 2 in. jump in the Commonwealth Games at Jamaica in 1966.

Currently, now 23, he holds the Australian record with a jump of 7 ft. 2½ in.

Like his pacemaker, David, he's a physical education teacher.

BELOW: RAAF Pilot-Officer, Ross Mathieson, who has recently returned from 12 months duty as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam, escorts his attractive young bride, former Lang Lang State School teacher Miss Marylyn Coram to their car following their recent wedding.

The Rev. R. Bolt, of Cranbourne, officiated at the late afternoon ceremony at the Church of Christ, Tooradin, and 90 guests were afterwards greeted by Marylyn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Coram, of South Gippsland Hwy., Tooradin at a reception in the Tooradin Hall.

The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Mathieson, of Stanhope, and he and Marylyn will be making their home in Canberra until Ross receives a further Air Force posting.

Graham, brother of the groom, was best man, and a close friend was in attendance as groomsman.

A banding of guipure lace on the moulded Empire waistline was a focal point on the bride's 'A' line gown of linen boucle which was styled with a soft rounded collar and long sleeves. She added a matching material-tailored pill box head-dress misted in ground length tulle and carried a small shower bouquet of white azaleas.

Azaleas also created the shower bouquet worn by her sister Mrs. Janette Watson, matron-of-honor, and a friend from the Teachers' Training College, Miss Diane Russell, of Ballarat.

Janette and Diane also favored a roll collar finish to their striking 'A' line frocks of rich crimson Thai silk and they fastened harmonising crimson bows in their hair. They matched the cream accessory finish in their tinted shoes. — Picture by Judy Hallisey, Devon Meadows.

The bride, formerly Avis Florence Charlesworth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Charlesworth, of Southampton Road, Frankston, wore a white gown of Swiss origin.

It featured straight, full-length sleeves with broad pinstriping in front, and her three-quarter length veil was held in place with a cluster of white roses.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Susan and Anne, and Jan Ridgway, sister of the bridegroom.

All wore speeches similar to that of the bride, but with some slight variations around the neck, down the front and upon the sleeves. They carried white posies of a sweet shade.

The groom, second son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Ridgway, of Long Lang, had his mother, John Marie, as best man. His bridesmaid was another cousin, Lillian Gilbert, from Adelaide, and Gwendoline Gilbert, also from Adelaide, was an usher with Peter Dutton, of Frankston.

One hundred guests sat down to a lavish wedding reception at Malo House, Frankston, last Saturday week.

They did, with a few others, and saw Sandra, wearing a shapely single gown of white crepe married to Keith by Mr. E. Molloy, of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

Toasts were made again, the stars sang, and AT LAST, the wedding cake was cut.

Mr. and Mrs. John Malcolm Ridgway cut their wedding cake at the reception held at Wingham Lodge, Karingal, earlier this month, after they were married at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Frankston.

The bride, formerly Avis Florence Charlesworth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Charlesworth, of Humphries Rd., Frankston, wore an A-line gown of Swiss cotton.

It featured straight, full-length sleeves with laced panelling in front, and her three-quarter length veil was held in place with a cluster of white roses.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Susan and Anne, and Jan Ridgway, sister of the bridegroom.

All wore frocks similar to that of the bride, but with cerise ribbon threaded around the neck, down the front and upon the sleeves. They carried tulle pom-poms of a cerise shade.

The 'groom, second son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Ridgway, of Lang Lang, had his cousin, John Martin, as best man. Groomsman was another cousin, Lyndon Gaborit, from Adelaide, and Geoffrey Gaborit, also from Adelaide, was an usher with Peter Duncan, of Frankston.

Someone was missing..

One hundred guests sat down to a lavish wedding reception at Malo House, Frankston, last Saturday week.

Bridesmaids Jennifer Reeves, sister of the bridegroom, the bride's younger sister, Jillian Shone, and Karen Patterson, wore charming frocks of apple-green satin striped voile, and were duly toasted by the bridegroom, Keith Reeves.

Keith was attended by Douglas Moore as his best man, his brother Robert Reeves as groomsman, and Laurie Sparke as usher.

A choir of 30 school children, trained by the bride, entertained guests with singing.

If the guests' smiles were a little fixed, and conversations were inclined to spurt rather than flow...if there was a slight sense of strain — it was BECAUSE THERE WAS NO BRIDE.

Sandra Shone, the would-be bride, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Shone, of Frome Av., Frankston, a teacher at Overport State school, developed a 24-hour virus the day before the wedding.

Determined to be well enough for the wedding, she went to her doctor and was given an injection.

Disaster struck when it was discovered that Sandra was allergic to the injection and, on the day of her wedding, couldn't move.

It was too late to contact the guests, so the reception went on, with the bridegroom explaining the position to the guests in a brief speech, in which he said it was hoped, from minute to minute, that the bride might recover sufficiently to be present at her wedding.

The end of the evening came with still no bride, and guests were invited to return again on the Monday night.

They did...with a few extras...and saw Sandra, wearing a classically simple gown of white crepe married to Keith by Mr. R. Mobbs, of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

Toasts were made again, the choir sang, and AT LAST the wedding cake was cut.

Moorabbin sub-district all-rounder, Bob Stein (above) concentrates to block a ball in the practice nets at Moorabbin ground.

With the season just more than a week away, Moorabbin cricketers are getting plenty of practice.

Players are expected to practise most of tomorrow afternoon, Show Day.

The curator has the three wickets in top condition for the season.

John Williams, Max Papley, Jeff Pountney, Kevin Neavan and Geoff Swan are senior players who are beginning to show the benefits of an early start.

Club coach Bruce Bowan said younger players who starred last season with the thirds and fourths could be promoted.

They include Jeff McCormack, Philip Lunt, Richard Firth, John Carlson, Chris Charleston and Alan Stubbings.

An extra Under 16 side will be fielded this season, giving the club two Under 16 sides and two Under 14 sides.

A pre-season social when the teams for the first match will be announced will be at the club rooms next Thursday night, October 3.

NO SHAKES FOR QUIRK

CARLTON half-forward flanker Bryan Quirk, one of the stars of the VFL second semi-final, will not worry about "Grand Final nerves" tomorrow.

Quirk, 21, who is in his fourth season with Carlton could be rated a grand final specialist.

Before joining Carlton he was in three grand finals in a row with Morwell.

"I was in the Under-17, Thirds and seniors in reaching the grand final in successive years," Quirk said.

In switching to Carlton, Quirk did not break his grand finals' appearances, although the Blues did not go that far.

"I was with Frankston Teachers' College in grand finals in 1965 and 1966," Quirk said.

"But tomorrow's Grand Final means more than all those others rolled together.

"And I think I feel more confident about tomorrow than in any grand final I have played," he said.

MONASH PLAYERS' "TWELFTH NIGHT"

Monash University Players are presenting Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" from March 6 to 19 at the Alexander Theatre at Monash University at 8 p.m. Bookings can be made at 544-0611, ext. 3996.

The play is presented during Orientation Week, when new students and parents can see some of the year-round activities of students. Matriculation pupils and teachers will also be interested, because the play is on the Matriculation and Leaving syllabus.

Frankston readers will note with interest the appearance of Graeme Hindley, once resident in this district. Graeme will be remembered by people at Frankston Teachers'

College and Peninsula Light Operatic Society. He is now a teacher at Heatherhill High School, and a part-time student at Monash. Only 23, he has written lyrics for songs and scripts for reviews and has a general interest in theatre.

His performances in "Princess Ida", "The Mikado", and "Oklahoma" will be remembered, but the straight acting required in "Twelfth Night" is a new experience in acting for him. He finds the discipline of his role of Feste, the wise fool companion to the Lady Olivia, rewarding, and he also brings a new freshness to the role from his musical comedy experience.

In the play there is a mixture of romantic comedy, with a wise fool (Graeme Hindley) and clowns (Jon Hawkes and Bill Walker); a bawdy, mischievous lady's maid (Anne Kelly) and two devious lovers' plots involving Viola (Lesley Hardcastle) and the Duke Orsini (Donald Robertson) and also Sebastian (Anthony McKenzie) and the Lady Olivia (Emole Szen-dei).

The play is produced by Peter Smith, the manager of the Alexander Theatre.

Kay Stammers

↑ VIOLENT things happened at St. Leonard's Presbyterian Ladies' College, Brighton, yesterday.

For example Kay Stammers (above) had to "grapple" with a python.

She grabbed its head to desperately keep it away from her body.

But it was all in the cause of better acting.

The Council of Adult Education began its summer school of theatre last Monday and it will last until January 20.

"I've been acting at school and university for a few years, but have never had to do anything like that before," said Kay, 20, of Moorabbin.

"I just remembered how Tarzan did it in the movies."

Equally as strange things were going on in other parts of the college.

Naomi Swart, 15, of Ringwood, was pleading for her life while her "executioner," Kim Dalton, 17, of Moorabbin, stood irresolute.

About eight students acted as machines. They made noises and body movements to represent man being replaced by machines.

"I know these things sound gruesome, but it is the best way to start them off," said the school director, Mr Harold Baigent.

"Most of them are a bit shy when they begin and by doing violent, aggressive things it brings them more out into the open.

"We want them to improvise and express their own feelings.

"Later they will do more tender and calmer emotions, for example, in a family group."

There are 70 people taking part in the school. Most are aged from 15 to the early 20s.

They also learn theatre production, make-up, lighting, attend local shows and have talks by well known actors.

THIS ONE WILL GO — BUT THERE ARE MANY MORE OF THESE FORGOTTEN SCHOOLS

THIS WAS THE TREATMENT given to the story by The Age, while readers were referred to an inside story which gave further details of bad rural schools disclosed by the survey.

Published by the Victorian Teachers' Union, 20 Bank Place, Melbourne, and printed by The Rankin Press Pty. Ltd., 19 Lonsdale St., North Melbourne.

A survey taken by the V.T.U. of the 1,180 rural schools in Victoria has shown that at least 130 are in an unsatisfactory condition.

This one is Winton Tiers, deep in the timber country at Morgan's Mill, via Eriks, V.T.U. Organizer Barry Marshall took Age education correspondent Mr. Peter McLaughlin and photographer Arthur Delaney there recently, and the result was the front page treatment shown.

The immediate reaction of the Minister was to order the closing of the school—something the V.T.U. had been sub-ing for several years. This is contingent upon transport arrangements being made for the children.

However, the closing of supplementary schools is not necessarily the best answer. Children obliged to leave home very early and travel weary hours daily to and from school do not learn well, either.

The problem highlights the reluctance of the Government to spend money on these schools. It professes to hope that children will come to present themselves in the locality, thus relieving the Department of an embarrassing problem.

Is this our worst school?

BELOW: The teacher's residence supplied by the Education Department.

Lessons in leaks and creaks

Western Tyers State School, 10 miles from Walhalla in Gippsland, is little more than a dilapidated shed. It must be the worst school in Victoria.

It is 25 years old and appears never to have had any attention. No paint is left on the outside walls.

The iron roof is rusted all over and rocks are used to keep the sheets from lifting. When it rains, water rushes down one of the inside walls.

The school has had no electricity since a power line was pulled down by a falling tree in January.

Conditions at Western Tyers are not typical of standards in rural schools.

The teacher, 23-year-old Greg Lawrence, described his near-hopeless task as "child-minding duties."

In the history of the school only three pupils have graduated to secondary school.

Some leave the area before completing primary education and others stay on until they reach the minimum leaving age of 15.

Mr. Lawrence travels over eight miles of bush track to and from the school each day because a residence in the school grounds is uninhabitable.

The house is a 10-foot square room and porch. It has no power, plumbing or

The Victorian Teachers' Union has estimated that one-fifth of Victoria's rural primary schools are in need of repair. Some have been condemned. Education reporter PETER McLAUGHLIN visited some of the schools and found . . .

MAKE-DO SCHOOLS

Poor lighting and the placement of blackboards is feared to be affecting the eyesight of children at Milford, whose school is a rented room in a hall.

Milford's teacher, Patrick Murray, said the local doctor had recently referred five of the 20 children to eye specialists.

Serious disabilities were detected in the sight of two children and the doctor blamed the lighting as a contributing factor, he said.

Mr. Murray said the room in the hall had been the school's home since 1937 and although a permanent building had been promised since 1965, "we are still getting the run around."

The school committee had recently selected a site. He understood the department was going to ask for a valuer's report.

At Mirboo East, for the past 40 years, school has been the supper room of the local community hall.

The teacher, Alan Burdekin, stood at the door of the 10 by 20 foot room his 11 pupils occupy, and complained of lack of space.

"It's very difficult when you have several classes going at the same time," he said. "You can't place the blackboards properly."

"And it gets cold in winter," he said, looking at the small open fireplace in one corner.

"Pretty cold"

Ferndale school, near Warragul, is very picturesque—from a distance.

But closer it is obvious that the foundations of the school—built in about 1900—are dropping. There are gaps of up to two inches between the bottom of the wall and the floor.

"It was pretty cold last year with the wind coming through but now we have a heater," said the teacher, Elvion Williams.

Mr. Williams said tenders had been called last July to have the building repaired but nothing had yet been done.

"It would be a very expensive job," he said. "The workmen would have to travel from Warragul each day."

The committee at Wooragee school, near Beechworth, hopes to interest the National Trust in having its 70-year-old building classified by the National Trust as being of historical interest.

But it has been condemned for more than six years.

The schools at St. Germain's, via Kyabram; Strathbogie, near Euroa; and Beech Forest, near Apollo Bay — each more than 70 years old — are among others that have been condemned.

The windows at Beech Forest have been nailed up to prevent them falling out and vents in the ceilings are in danger of falling on children.

Ten per cent. of the State's primary school children attend Victoria's 1180 rural schools.

They are divided into two categories — the one-teacher schools with fewer than 20 children and others with between 20 and 99 pupils and up to three teachers.

Teachers are mainly in their early 20s, especially in the one-teacher schools, remotely-situated and often lacking suitable accommodation.

The smaller schools are often in danger of closing because there are no longer enough children to warrant the Education Department keeping them open.

The low enrolment schools are often housed in the 70 premises the Education Department leases.

The Victorian Teachers' Union has carried out a survey of the rural schools and found that about half the schools the department leases urgently need attention.

The general secretary of the VTU (Mr. D. P. Schubert) praised the work of teachers in coping with the adverse conditions.

"You have to be impressed with the job these young teachers are doing," he said. "Very often they are just out of college and are gravely hampered by lack of facilities."

Mr. Schubert said the schools were mostly ill-equipped because parents had to meet the cost of extra aids.

Because there were so few parents, the amount they could raise for Government — subsidised buying was limited.

The country pupils were put at an educational disadvantage compared with metropolitan children.

"They have to travel long distances for secondary education," he said.

"If there is a lack of facilities and poor conditions in the primary schools, this only dampens their enthusiasm to go on higher."

It's a tangle...

THE synthetic fibre and wool people are in a tangle over who makes the best football guernseys.

Synthetic fibre interests fired the first shot in the battle when they said reinforced wool guernseys were inferior to 100-per-cent acrylic guernseys.

The Australian Wool Board has tried an out-flanking movement by asking the CSIRO to test guernseys made of both fibres.

And, says the board, the wool guernseys performed better than the one made out of acrylic fibre.

The tests were made to determine weights after soaking and water repellency.

The board says the tests prove:

- Weight for weight, and style for style, the acrylic guernsey would hold more water than the wool one for the duration of a football match.

- The wool garment was at least 11 times stronger than the acrylic guernsey.

In one test Melbourne half-back flanker Neville Stone was sprayed with water for four minutes while wearing a guernsey of each fibre in turn.

The synthetic fibre was then more than 2½ times its dry weight

SHE'S GOT DRIVE!

• BY JENNIFER SHAND

LIFE never has been dull for Frankston housewife Mrs Kenneth Greatrex . . .

While her three children were growing up, she helped her carpenter husband to build four houses for the family — and now she is one of the few women in Victoria who runs a driving school.

Three years ago Mrs Greatrex was looking for an outside interest, and decided to try for a car instructor's licence.

She formed the Peninsula Driving School, which now operates with four women instructors, and her husband also helps occasionally.

Confidence

Mrs Greatrex said: "With two cars we operate around Frankston, Mornington, HMAS Cerberus and farther down the Peninsula.

"Our third car, lent by Mornington Motors is used to instruct students at Frankston Teachers' College.

Many of Mrs Greatrex's clients are housewives.

"Their greatest problem is nervousness and lack of confidence," she said.

"Also, after they get their licence, they don't drive enough to become proficient.

"However, over-confidence seems to be the main problem with our Frankston students and other young people.

"And this is often more dangerous than lack of confidence."

But Mrs Greatrex thinks the greatest road dangers are not driving to road and traffic conditions, not knowing the road rules — and, most of all, not fully understanding the right-of-way rule.

"Many older drivers have never bothered to study it thoroughly," she said.

Before Mrs Greatrex started the driving school she helped her husband build their split-level Frankston house.

She said: "I chopped down trees to clear the block, worked on foundations, mixing cement and laying bricks, helped with the ceiling — which collapsed on us — installed sliding glass doors and even pitched the 15ft.-high roof.

"And I enjoyed every moment of it.

"The house took us six months to build, and it was very economical doing it ourselves."

This was the fourth house the Greatrexes had built. The first two were in Pascoe Vale, and the third was on the Gold Coast, where they lived for 18 months.

Decorating

While they were building the first just after the war, Mrs Greatrex lived in a bungalow with two of her children for 15 months.

When not driving or building, Mrs Greatrex enjoys cake decorating, and recently has been busy decorating wedding cakes.

Her son, Colin, also a carpenter, has just married, and her daughter Christine, who hopes to get her instructor's licence soon, is engaged.

The Greatrexes also have another daughter, Kaye.
