Scope	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• All teaching activities at Monash University</li> <li>• All students</li> <li>• All staff</li> <li>• All Australian campuses</li> </ul>
Purpose	The purpose of this document is to set out the objectives and principles by which scheduling decisions will be made. The primary objective of the policy is to produce an early, stable, flexible timetable that takes into account the needs of students and staff, and maximises the efficient use of facilities and equipment.
POLICY STATEMENT

Scheduling principles

Scheduling principles are based on what students need from scheduling to maximise their engagement and participation in learning activities. Scheduling principles for the timetable are:

- Released early: Personal student timetables are known at least four weeks in advance of classes for returning students.
- Stable: Minimal post-publication changes and minimal scheduling clashes where students follow standard progression.
- Flexible: The timetable provides options for class times without large gaps or multiple campus locations in a single day where possible. The options are based on unit offerings by faculties.

Scheduling objectives

Students

The learning needs of students are of the highest priority in developing the timetable, reflecting the University's strategic goals of enhancing the student experience and learning outcomes.

The primary purpose of scheduling is to create a timetable for students that aligns with the scheduling principles to maximise student attendance and effective participation.

While the University attempts to accommodate student choices, the timetable may not allow for every student to attend their preferred combination of units.

Staff

The allocation of teaching duties is the responsibility of each faculty. Teaching duties will be allocated in accordance with the faculty or academic unit's academic workload model and the University's obligations under clauses 59 (Academic Workloads) and 60 (Summer Teaching Periods) in the Monash University Enterprise Agreement (Academic and Professional Staff) 2014.

The scheduling and allocation of teaching activities will also be consistent with:

- the University's commitment to equity and diversity, including reasonable accommodations for staff and students in regards to family responsibilities, religious beliefs and disabilities (see Related Policies below); and
- the University's Occupational Health and Safety obligations (see Related Policies below).

Space

The timetable will be optimised to ensure the efficient use of existing facilities and equipment.

Measures and targets

The effectiveness of scheduling will be assessed against agreed quantitative and qualitative measures and targets.
