

ANZLEC5: Sustainable Legal Ethics

The Australian and New Zealand Legal Ethics Colloquium is holding its two day 5th bi-annual meeting at Monash Law's CBD chambers on the 3rd and 4th of December 2015.

Join legal ethicists, practitioners, regulators and students and contribute to an expanding understanding of legal ethics. Legal ethics is developing rapidly as more jurisdictions require that the discipline be taught in Law schools and not just as a part of practical legal training. In the South East Asian and Australasian regions, we are also beginning to recognise the importance of strengthening lawyers' fundamental values in the context of corruption, human rights abuses and a warming world. Sustainable (and resilient) legal ethics are moving into the forefront.

Featuring:

- Plenary panels with leading scholars and practitioners on "Virtue versus Rules in Lawyers' Ethics", "Commercial Realities in Teaching Ethics Across the Professions" and "The Impacts of the (Almost) National Regulator of Legal Ethics"
- Special sessions on the "Hard (Clinical) Skills of Ethical Practice" and "Religious Institutions, Lawyers' Faith and Moral Conversations (Reflections on the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse)"
- Free Public Panel Discussion: "Should Lawyers Challenge Emitters?" at 4pm, Friday 4 December, followed by a Musical Experience and Open Conversation with drinks and canapés about the potential for strategic litigation against climate change at 5:30pm to 7:30pm (extra cost of $30)

Date: Thursday 3 and Friday 4 December 2015

Time: 8.45am – 5.00pm

Venue: Monash University Law Chamber, 555 Lonsdale Street, Melbourne
